BURNS FREE; JERSEY NIPS EXTRADITION

Spectators Rush To Shake Hand Of Accused.

KISSING HIM, MOTHER CRIES

Lawyers Argue Two Hours; Russell Is Surprised.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Robert Elliott Burns is no longer a fugitive from justice—so far as New Jersey is concerned.

Gov. A. Harry Moore early tonight flatly refused to send the convict-author back to a Georgia chain gang from which he twice escaped.

After listening to tales of alleged brutalities in chain gangs, of the use of "sweat boxes" and "stocks" in Georgia prison camps, Gov. Moore announced he decided the case "upon its merits." The United States Constitution leaves the governor no apparent discretion in extradition proceedings, he said, but the United States and New Jersey Supreme Courts have ruled he may decide upon merits.

ROBERT ELLIOTT BURNS.

Rush to Shake His Hand.

Burns, a short, nervous person, was pushed and pulled by spectators who rushed from the Assembly chamber galleries to shake his hand. His mother rushed across the chamber, but could not reach her son. His brother, the Rev. Vincent J. Burns, threw his arms about the former fugitive in elation.

The former convict, who had listened intently to the hours of debate by his eminent array of counsel, supplied by the American Civil Liberties Union, and the representatives of Georgia, was taken to a rear room. There he met his mother. Tears in her eyes, she kissed him.

Anxious to thank Gov. Moore, who made his freedom possible, Burns was taken to the executive offices. He pumped the governor's hands as he expressed his gratitude. He was obviously surprised by the governor's reaction.

Welcome in Jersey.

"Burns," said Gov. Moore, "you can stay in New Jersey as long as you lead an honest life and remain a good citizen. But never mind the publicity stuff. It is now up to you whether you go back."

The diminutive Burns, accused by John I. Kelley, Georgia assistant attorney general, with misrepresenting the treatment he received in the southern prison camps, was taken back to the Newark jail, where, dispatches later reported, he was formally released from custody by Police Judge Harold Simandl.

Whether Burns can be sent back to a Georgia chain gang by Gov. Moore's successor was apparently de-

Tellez Is Now Foreseen As Ambassador to U. S.

Mexico City, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The resignation of Manuel C. Tellez, minister of foreign relations during the past year, has been accepted by President Abelardo Rodriguez, it was announced at the presidency here tonight. The president, however, declined to indicate who would be Mr. Tellez's successor, or when such an appointment would be announced.

Informed politicians consider it certain that Dr. Jose Manuel Puig Casaurane, Ambassador to Washington, will be named minister of foreign relations and that Tellez will become Ambassador to Washington.

Nitti's Condition Decidedly Worse

His Attorney Raps Charge, Saying He Did Not Fire Pistol.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Frank Nitti's condition changed decidedly for the worse today, his attorney told a criminal court judge. [illegible] a month must elapse before physicians could predict whether he would live or die.

Furthermore, Attorney Rocco de Stefano asserted, a charge of assault to kill against the Capone gang chieftain is unfounded, because he did not fire his pistol against police who captured him and six companions in a downtown office.

Physicians said Nitti's condition was so critical that he could not be moved for X-rays to be taken. Three bullets still are lodged in his body, one near his spine. He is in a private hospital following his removal yesterday from the City Jail Hospital after $25,000 bail was posted.

BAN ON ARMS SALES TO NATIONS SOUGHT

Hamilton Fish Sees Hoover on Curb of Munitions to Latin Americans.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

A general move to vest the President with sufficient authority to declare an embargo on all arms shipments to countries engaged in foreign war or domestic disturbance was started by Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican, New York, ranking Republican of the foreign affairs committee, yesterday. The New York representative called at the White House and remained with the President for some time. His visit was caused by reports that the President is contemplating making such a recommendation in a forthcoming message to Congress.

Traffic in arms has been a most pernicious element in the fomenting of revolutionary activities in Central and South America. Of late years this tendency has been somewhat mitigated by the act of 1922, which authorized the President to lay an embargo on arms shipments to countries in danger of domestic disturbance.

However, the continued traffic in arms, and particularly in airplanes, has been a constant cause of bellicose activity in Latin countries even beyond their own borders. The present conflict between Bolivia and Paraguay has been augmented in great measure by the shipments of airplanes, ammunition and machine guns from the United States.

The latent conflict between Colombia and Peru over the territory of Leticia has brought the activities of American armament manufacturers to a fever pitch. The most recent purchase reported in authoritative circles here was the shipment of a 38,000 District Motorists Must Obtain Plates Within 6 Days.

Where are the motorists of yesteryear?

This question, or something to the same effect, is puzzling Director of Traffic William A. Van Duzer. With only six days left in which to obtain 1933 automobile license plates, he is wondering just where 38,000 District motorists are keeping themselves.

Based on the numbr of applicants last year, Mr. Van Duzer declared that at least 110,000 machines should be licensed by the end of December. To date, only 72,000 automobile owners have applied for new tags.

More than 9,000 new applications, sent by mail throughout the city, have been returned marked "no such person." Whether these persons have left town or moved and left no forwarding address is just another problem to be worked out by Mr. Van Duzer and his staff.

Six days to go—38,000 machines yet to be licensed. Let's go, motorists, the line forms on the left!

Mr. Van Duzer pointed out that many are waiting until the last minute to obtain tags, thus causing a rush that will be impossible to handle by midnight, December 31.

And still another problem is confronting the traffic director's office. Out-of-town car owners are creating a jam at the license bureau, Four-and one-half street and Pennsylvania avenue. Apparently unfamiliar with the District title law, these motorists are applying for new tags and scores or clerks are kept busy attempting to explain the title regulations.

HOOVER WANTS GOV. ROOSEVELT TO RECONSIDER

Negotiations for Debts Parley Are Thought Continuing.

PRESIDENT FAVORS SUCCESSOR'S VIEWS

Democratic Leader Is Firm in Opposition to Plan for Commission.

(Associated Press.)

Continued White House silence on the exchange of views between President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt over the war debts situation led to the belief last night that further communications were proceeding between them.

In his reply to the Chief Executive's first proposal that they cooperate in the appointment of a commission to review war debts, disarmament and world economic questions, the President-elect declined to participate.

However, he is understood to have shown a sympathetic attitude toward early study of the war debt problem which came to a head last week with several nations defaulting in payments.

First Reply Still Secret.

There is every reason to believe the President is still seeking a basis of accord that will bring united action which would continue into the next administration.

At the Capitol it is assumed that this is the reason Mr. Hoover has not made public Gov. Roosevelt's first reply to his invitation.

It is also assumed that the White House is willing to listen to Gov. Roosevelt's ideas on how the problem should be attacked, namely, through regular channels and without linking debt relief with the economic and armaments conferences.

Democrats Are Concerned.

Democrats here are somewhat concerned that the President has not made public the response of the President-elect so that his views and his reasons for the position he is taking would be known.

If President Hoover should yield to Gov. Roosevelt's proposals, there is speculation that he would go so far as to permit the governor to name special envoys immediately to discuss the war-debt problem with the debtor nations.

However, the White House has kept secret the conversations between the President and the President-elect.

Speculation has brought into discussion the names of John W. Davis, former Ambassador to London, and Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, as two Democrats who might be in mind as debt negotiators in behalf of the United States.

Black Offers Bill To Cut Work Week

Alabaman Says Proposal Is Designed to Make Places for Jobless.

(Associated Press.)

A bill to establish the five-day week and six-hour day in all industries was introduced yesterday by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, who said he would press for its early consideration.

The bill, referred to the judiciary committee, would prohibit shipment in interstate or foreign commerce of goods produced by persons employed more than the proposed day and week limits. A fine of not more than $200 or imprisonment of three months, or both, for violating its provisions is provided.

"We have got to take some action, and take it quickly," said Black, "to absorb the millions of unemployed, and this would enable millions to be given work. I think it is the most important legislation yet proposed in connection with the unemployment situation."

Boxing or Pink Teas?

Frank W. Ballou Assailed on Denying School's Use for Glove Practice.

Boxing or pink teas?

Henry Gilligan, two-fisted Board of Education member, made these two alternatives the issue before the board yesterday afternoon when he forced an explanation from Superintendent Frank W. Ballou that Columbus University had been denied the use of McKinley High School Auditorium for boxing because the sport "is associated in the public mind with prize fighting and ought not to be identified with a public school building."

"Teddy Roosevelt," Mr. Gilligan stormed at the placid superintendent, "would turn somersaults if he heard that!"

Then, addressing reporters, Mr. Gilligan said, "They'll be having pink teas in our high school gymnasiums next."

Everything was as peaceful as an old ladies' party on Christmas Eve at the preholiday board meeting when Mr. Gilligan asked if any action had

TWO MEN ARE HURT IN DOWNTOWN FIRE

Paper Box Maker's Son Is Saved From Death; One Fireman Injured.

One man narrowly escaped death a fireman was injured and considerable damage was done by a spectacular fire which broke out early today in the upper floor and roof of a 5-story brick building at 1209-11 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Flames leaping from the roof could be seen all over the downtown business section.

S. E. Killian, 44, son of the proprietor of the paper company, was taken from the fifth floor by firemen. He had been overcome by smoke. After the administration of oxygen at Emergency Hospital, the man revived sufficiently to explain that he had gone to the fifth floor late last night to get boxes of Christmas gifts. He was unable to explain the cause of the blaze, saying that the first thing he knew he was enveloped by dense smoke. Mr. Killian lives at 516 Twelfth street northwest.

John R. Mowatt, 38, a fireman attached to the Sixth Engine Company, was also taken to Emergency Hospital suffering from cuts on his left hand and arm, received in breaking glass in the window through which to stretch the fire hose.

Although the blaze had made considerable headway when the alarm was turned in, firemen were successful in confining the flames to the top story, which was used only as a storage room, and roof. Their greatest difficulty was in stretching hose to the floor on fire.

The street floors of the building are occupied by Baer Moser & Co., a tailoring firm, and George P. Killian Co., a paper box and stationery concern.

Coney Island Fire Damage Is $200,000

Bathhouse Burns in Board Walk Blaze, But None Is Hurt.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Fire destroyed a two-story bathhouse and other small frame buildings in a one-block area on the Coney Island boardwalk tonight. Police estimated the loss at $200,000.

A brisk wind from the ocean fanned the flames and authorities, recalling the $5,000,000 blaze of last July, which left 1,000 persons homeless, sounded five alarms, calling out all the apparatus in the Borough of Brooklyn. The blaze was brought under control, however, about an hour after it started.

The few persons in the bathhouse when the fire started escaped and there were no casualties.

Plead Guilty in Baltimore; 'King of Bootleggers' Is Hunted by Agents.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 21.—Federal officers tonight were searching southern Maryland for William Plummer, who, according to testimony in the United States District Court today, is the "king of the bootleggers" in Calvert County, as well as the "best informer" dry officials in Washington ever had.

The search for Plummer and a Negro known only as Tyler was started after Judge W. Calvin Chesnut had sentenced Joseph D. McCaffrey, Louis Brown and Henry G. Carter to five, four and three years, respectively, in the penitentiary for their participation in the hijacking of prohibition investigators in Calvert County last September.

Plummer and Tyler also are charged in warrants issued for them with taking part in the hijacking during which seven armed men stopped a truck load of seized liquor convoyed by Thomas Bailey, John Bell, Joseph Williamson, I. T Dryden and Charles E. Reinke, investigators.

Bell, Williamson, Reinke and Stanley Kefauver, a Government mechanic who was driving the truck, were made prisoners and the liquor taken away from them.

Later the prisoners were released and the liquor was recovered after the truck overturned.

Today McCaffrey and Brown pleaded guilty to the hijacking charges, and Carter pleaded guilty to transporting and possessing the stolen liquor. E. A. Mumper, a former Washington policeman, who also was arrested in

Diver Sees 10 Dead In Valparaiso Bay

One Corpse Identified as Professor Anabalon, Radical Agitator.

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—The presence of ten corpses in Valparaiso Bay, all tied to iron rails, was reported by a diver working in the bay today.

One of the bodies, which he recovered, was believed that of Prof. Anabalon, who disappeared last July. The diver reported the bodies were all about 600 yards from the shore.

Prof. Anabalon was a Communist agitator, particularly active during the regime of Carlos Davila. The Association of Professors of Chile has asked the government to send another diver down to recover the other bodies.

DEFINITE MOVE DUE ON MERGER MEASURE TODAY

Austin to Seek Decision on Present Bill if Accord Fails.

FRANCHISE PHASES MENACE PROPOSAL

Littlepage and Capper Are Still Optimistic After 6-Hour Parley.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Basic differences on power and franchise phases of the District traction merger bill, still paramount after a six-hour conference yesterday at the Capitol, last night menaced successful culmination of the concerted effort to arbitrate the 25-year-old consolidation project.

Senator John J. Blaine, who Monday launched an effective filibuster to defeat the measure, today will resume his fight to the finish if one last effort at compromise scheduled for this morning fails to produce results.

Senator Warren R. Austin, leader of the Senate merger forces, said a definite decision one way or the other will be reached this morning. If the compromise falls through, he will press for action on the present bill when the Senate convenes at noon.

Littlepage Optimistic.

Chairman Thomas P. Littlepage of the citizens joint transportation committee, who Tuesday night thought he had reached a basis of accord on the principles involved, still was optimistic following yesterday's conference.

Chairman Arthur Capper of the Senate District committee, who stands with Blaine against the merger unless substantial railway company concessions are made, shared Littlepage's hopes for agreement.

But Senator Blaine would not venture a prediction. Following yesterday's conference, he plainly stated that power and franchise provisions are the bones of contention.

No Agreement on Points.

"There was no agreement on these two points, the most important at issue in the bill," he said.

Blaine wants an indeterminate franchise provision embodied in the resolution, which would specifically reserve for Congress the right to amend, alter and repeal the new company's franchise.

This is substantially what exists today, but the bill now pending gives Congress no such authority. Congress would have authority only to amend, alter or repeal the resolution authorizing the merger.

The other outstanding difference has to do with power control by the new company. Under the present bill, contracts of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. to supply power to three out-of-town concerns, under contract, would be continued in the Maine Hunters Cut Off As Flood Halts Rescue

Carafunk, Me., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A wall of ice and water rushing across the main highway here drove away a crew of workmen who were starting construction of a temporary road today and washed away, at least temporarily, any hope for releasing hunters stranded in this vicinity.

It had been planned to pile a strip of fill across an expanse of inundated land, to enable the marooned hunting parties to drive out over a temporary road. The sudden rush of water covered the area where the work was started to a depth of 10 feet, forced members of the road crew to flee for their lives and compelled the last family remaining in the flooded area to abandon its home.

Ohio Train Wreck Costs Three Lives

Several Others Are Hurt When Erie Express Goes Into Ditch.

Lima, Ohio, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—At least three persons were killed and several others injured in a train wreck 2 miles south of here tonight. The dead were tentatively identified as Court Scott, engineer, of Huntington, Ind.; Earl Swihart, fireman, of Huntington, Ind., and Charles Aldrich, of Lima, a railroad towerman.

The train, Erie, No. 7, en route from New York to Chicago, went into a ditch at a Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad crossing. The wrecked train was composed of a baggage and mail car and two passenger coaches. Fire broke out in the baggage and mail cars, both of wood construction.

Fire-fighting equipment was sent to the scene from Lima.

RAIL PAY CUT PLAN ACCEPTED BY UNIONS

Firemen and Enginemen Are Only Holdouts Against 9-Month Extension.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A nine months' extension of the 10 per cent wage reduction affecting 1,200,000 railroad employes was tentatively agreed to tonight by the railway managers and all union labor representatives, with the exception of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Railroad executives late today proffered to employes a compromise to extend for nine months the 10 per cent wage reduction which will expire next January 31. The offer provided in addition that either side may, after June 15, sue for a revision of the basic wage scale, in accordance with the railway labor act. The proposal was submitted to the 21 railroad brotherhood heads three hours after a joint conference had reached an impasse.

Previously the railroads had offered to extend for at least six months and an indefinite period thereafter the deduction entered into a year ago, which provided that the basic rate remain the same but that labor take a voluntary 10 per cent wage reduction. It did not guarantee restoration of the basic rates.

Labor representatives had rejected the roads' first proposal as being too

Graduation

Expenses Called Too High, Petworth Citizens Ask for a Minimum.

Believing that costs to parents of high school graduations are excessive, the Petworth Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution asking that the costs be held to a minimum. The resolution will be sent to Dr. Frank W. Ballou and the Board of Education.

The cost of milk in the District also was discussed and a special committee was appointed to investigate milk prices. It was pointed out that milk was selling in many of the larger cities for 8 and 9 cents, compared with 13½ cents in Washington.

In another resolution, the association requested the Park and Planning Commission to convert the grounds at the Tuberculosis Hospital on Upshur street northwest, which is to be abandoned, into a playground. In support of the resolution, it was pointed out that there are no playgrounds in the Petworth section other than at the schools.

The association also urged the extension and completion of New Hampshire avenue to the District line and asked that stop signs be installed at Fifth and Randolph streets northwest, where several accidents have occurred recently. These requests also were embodied in resolutions, which will be sent to the proper authorities.

Mrs. Elizabeth T. Sullivan, of the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown, and vice president of the federation, discussed the part women should take in civic and political activities.

Chance for Senate Victory Is Seen Enhanced.

DRY LEADERS IN GALLERIES

Cheering From Floor and Visitors Greets Vote Result.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The trumpeting antiprohibitionist army yesterday in the House smashed through the weakened ranks of the drys to win their first victory since the eighteenth amendment was adopted and Andrew Volstead's name was made a household word, of good or bad repute, dependent upon the household.

Riding down every proposal to change the measure, the House majority by the surprising vote of 230 to 165 passed the Collier bill to legalize beer of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content, just as it was reported from the ways and means committee by Representative James W. Collier (Democrat), of Mississippi, committee chairman, and supported by Speaker Garner and Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic leader.

When Speaker Garner announced the bill was passed there was a tumultuous shout from the floor, in which were mingled shouts from the galleries filled with interested spectators, not all of whom, however, felt that happy about the decision.

Dry Leaders in Galleries.

Among those in the galleries were Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Church, which has ruled the Government with such a powerful hand for so long; F. Scott McBride, who is tripping about in the too-large political mantle of the dead Wayne B. Wheeler, who was a political power when he ran the Antisaloon League of America, and several others.

Disappointed, hurt and disapproving, these and other leaders of the prohibitionist forces are going ahead trying to rebuild the breached walls of their political empire, but they found little solace in the fact that the size of the beer vote in the House was construed almost immediately by House and Senate leaders and political observers as materially enhancing the prospects of passage of a Volstead modification law by the Senate.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, who carries the title of party leader in the Senate, said afterwards that he expected prompt action on the measure in the Senate. His optimism was given an

PART OF VETERANS' FUND CALLED DOLE

Economy League Speaker Brings Quick Retort of Indiana Senator.

(Associated Press.)

The word "dole" applied by William Marshall Bullitt to Federal disability allowances to veterans for troubles not traceable to service duty yesterday set off a wordy encounter before the joint congressional committee on veterans' legislation.

Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, who has repeatedly announced opposition to reducing the yearly $1,000,000,000 veterans' relief bill, heatedly took exception to this remark by Bullitt, who appeared for the National Economy League.

Explaining the league's recommendations for reductions aggregating about $450,000,000, Bullitt estimated $104,000,000 was in the disability allowances, which he described as "nothing but a dole * * * a pure dole given to a man not because he was disabled there but because he was once in the service."

Robinson interrupted and retorted: "These allowances are not based on charity. I think that is a perfectly outrageous statement. You did not have any such idea in 1917 did you?"

Bullitt replied the subject was one over which there could be a difference of opinion. He said the league felt the allowance "might be fairly eliminated," estimated 560,000 would draw such payments by the end of this year, and that this total would increase as the veterans grew older.

When Robinson insisted on ascertaining whether the view the payment was a dole was Bullitt's or the league's, Bullitt replied the league's opinion was that "the money thus paid * * * is neither more nor less than a gratuity or a dole."

Bullitt outlined other recommendations of the league, including an estimate of savings of $125,000,000 by changes in the disability compensation laws to remove "the presumption" that an ailment originated during service.

Emergency Alien Bars Keep Out 500,000

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson yesterday reported to President Hoover that as a result of emergency bars against immigration, more than 500,000 aliens who normally would have entered the United States "during the economic depression" have been held out.

The Secretary reported this result had been accomplished solely through the enforcement of existing provisions of law, principally the clause excluding persons "likely to become a public charge." Breaking down his total into smaller figures, Stimson said that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932, only 12,697 quota immigration visas were issued as compared with the total annual quotas of 153,831.

Conferees Agreed On Philippine Bill

Bingham Keeps Details of Tentative Pact Secret Until Final Draft.

(Associated Press.)

A tentative agreement on all controversial features of the Philippine independence bill was reached by congressional conferees yesterday and a complete agreement was predicted by today.

Announcing the results of an afternoon meeting of the Senate and House groups, Chairman Bingham of the Senate territories committee, withheld details of the tentative composition of differences until the language of the final draft has been prepared and approved. The rapidity with which the two groups came together on the big points of difference between the Senate bill, granting independence to the islands in twelve years and the House eight-year proposal, surprised most of those present.

Bingham said if an agreement is signed today an effort would be made to obtain quick Senate approval and then forward the conference report to the House.

Bank Robber Wounded Fleeing in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—An unidentified robber was shot and perhaps fatally wounded here today in the second bank holdup within three hours. The man took $600 from Kathleen Bastian, cashier of the Hyde Park branch of the Bank of Inglewood. He was shot by a guard as he fled.

The first robbery was at the Melrose Avenue branch of the Bank of America, where a holdup man used a girl stenographer as a shield while he compelled the manager at pistol point to open the vault and pour $10,200 in currency into a sack. He escaped, leaving four employes locked in a back room.

The three women and nine men started deliberating the case at 6 p. m. yesterday and the report that came out of the closely guarded room 28 hours later was the first indicating the possible verdict that might be reached in the first-degree murder trial that resulted from the killing of Loren's brother, Earl, 20, and the latter's girl friend, Thelma Woods, 17.

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO LEGALIZE 3.2 PER CENT BEER, 230 TO 165

added significance in the minds of some because of his seeming past lukewarmness toward forthright anti-prohibition declarations of his party's platform.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, said he expected passage of a beer bill by the Senate this session, unless the predominantly dry subcommittee of the judiciary committee, appointed by the very dry Senator George W. Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, resorted to some of their former tactics and delayed action.

The subcommittee is headed by Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, an avowed wet. But three of its five members are Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, who was even considered as the possible presidential candidate of the Prohibition party in the last campaign; Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Democrat), of Montana, and Senator Clarence C. Dill (Democrat), who comes from Washington, the State which sent Senator Wesley L. Jones (Republican), of 5-and-10 liquor law fame, to the Senate.

The plan is to send the House beer bill to the Senate judiciary committee first, have it report on the question of constitutionality, and then send the bill to the finance committee for consideration of its revenue aspects.

Amendment Vote Forced.

Several senators came over to the House to see the beer battle yesterday. Among them were Senator Robinson, of Arkansas; Senator John Cohen (Democrat), Georgia, who is said to be a very close friend of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt; the happy Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, who was a wet before it was the popular thing to be; Senator Alben Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, who was selected by Gov. Roosevelt to make the keynote speech at the Democratic convention in Chicago last June; Senator Bingham and others.

There was only one occasion when the Democratic leaders appeared in danger of losing control of the situation. That was when Representative William I. Sirovich (Democrat), New York, an advocate of beer, resorted to the practice of offering an amendment to get the floor and talk. He proposed to strike out the enacting clause. When he had done he asked to withdraw his amendment, but opponents of the bill would not agree, and forced a vote on it. It caught the House by surprise.

Representative William B. Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, was presiding. It took him a long time to count those who stood for and against the amendment. Meanwhile, Representative Thomas H. Cullen (Democrat), New York, head of the Tammany delegation, was frothing at the mouth at the situation, and Mr. Sirovich was doing what he could to overcome the situation he had created. Finally Mr. Bankhead announced that the Sirovich amendment was beaten.

Demand Teller Count.

But Representative Thomas H. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, who is a dry among drys, and Representative Grant E. Mouser, jr. (Republican), Ohio, demanded the House members march down the aisle to be counted by tellers. Mr. Mouser also is a dry. Representative Fred L. Britten (Republican), Illinois, called him a bigot on Tuesday, and he returned the compliment by telling Mr. Britten he was daffy. The inept Sirovich amendment was beaten on the teller vote by 163 to 118, but the scare was sufficient to cause scouts to rout out everybody they could find, including Speaker Garner, who walked past the tellers to vote against the amendment.

That marked victory for sponsors of the measure, and probably accounted for several additional votes from members who were just as willing to be on the winning as the losing side.

The final vote showed the following division: For the bill, 230: Democrats, 133; Republicans, 96; Farmer-Labor, 1. Against the bill, 165: Democrats, 64; Republicans, 101.

There were 60 lame ducks who voted for the bill, including 17 Democrats and 43 Republicans, while 81 lame-ducks voted against the bill, including 69 Republicans and 12 Democrats.

The bill is designed to give Federal authority to beer, ale, porter, lager beer of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content by weight which is something under 4 per cent by volume. It imposes a tax of $5 per barrel of 31 gallons, Federal license fees of $1,000 a year for brewers, and the old internal revenue taxes on other handlers.

The ways and means committee estimated the bill would raise $300,000,000 a year in revenue. Estimates of others vary. Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills estimated the revenue would not be more than $125,000,000 to $150,000,000.

The bill's permission to manufacture and sell 3.2 beer and similar beverages is specifically restricted by State and municipal laws. The beverages may not be produced or sold in violation of local laws.

By way of contrast some of the former votes on proposals to repeal or modify the prohibition laws might be cited. On December 5, the opening day of the present session, the Garner straight-out prohibition amendment repeal proposal was voted down, 272 to 144, with 13 not voting. It failed by six of the two-thirds vote required.

Previous Wet Defeats.

The O'Connor-Hull beer bill was beaten in the House in the last session by a vote of 228 to 169. On March 14 last the Beck-Linthicum bill wae beaten by 227 to 187, with 18 not voting. In the Senate, last session, Senator Bingham's proposal to legalize 4 per cent beer by an amendment to tax revision bill, was beaten, as was a subsequent proposal to legalize 2.75 per cent beer to develop revenue in place of something like $250,000,000 proposed to be got from various so-called nuisance taxes.

Later, on July 11, another Bingham beer proposal was beaten when it was sent to the judiciary committee by a vote of 50 to 25, with 21 not voting. This was after the two parties had held their conventions in Chicago. Twenty-four Democrats voted to put the Bingham beer proposal on the shelf.

The Volstead act, which the Collier bill passed by the House yesterday proposes to amend, was passed by the House on July 22, 1919, by a vote of 287 to 100, with 3 voting present and 40 not voting. It was passed over the veto of President Wilson by a vote of 175 to 55, with 3 voting present and 198 not voting, which was tantamount to accepting the prohibition enforcement act.

House Group Views Rau Report on Power Plant

The House District appropriations subcommittee met for the first time yesterday to study the Rau report in a central District power plant, but arrived at no conclusions. The committee will meet again after the Christmas holidays, when hearings will open on the District appropriations bill.

The power plant, which would furnish heat and light for both the District and Federal governments, has been the subject of an extensive investigation, for which Congress has appropriated funds in the past three appropriation bills. Details of the engineers study and recommendations have never been made public.

M'FADDEN UNSHAKEN BY G.O.P. DISCIPLINE

Hoover Critic, Removed as Delegation's Secretary, to Continue Fight.

(Associated Press.)

The secretaryship of the Pennsylvania House delegation was taken from Representative McFadden yesterday for his attacks on President Hoover, but his only comment was that he would continue to "fight against double dealings between officials of the American Government and international bankers."

He would say nothing directly on the action of Pennsylvania Republicans ousting him as their secretary because of his recent attempt to impeach the Chief Executive. But he did say:

"I am still concerned about the debt snarl, we now find ourselves in, largely due, I am convinced, to negotiations and commitments involving President Hoover's moratorium."

Since beginning his fight against international bankers, McFadden has twice gone to the House floor to criticize President Hoover. Last session, he said the Chief Executive had "sold out" to Germany and international bankers. He was deprived immediately of the right to suggest persons for appointment to political positions in his district.

McFadden carried the issue back to his district and was reelected to the next Congress by a majority of more than 50,000. Last week he moved to impeach President Hoover, for "high crimes and misdemeanors."

His impeachment resolution, however, was tabled. The Pennsylvania Republican delegation met immediately and demanded his resignation. McFadden did not reply.

Representative Darrow, a leader of the Pennsylvania delegation, said of the action ousting McFadden and electing Representative Swick as his successor:

"We thought Mr. McFadden had had ample time to consider our request for his resignation. Many members of the delegation were present today, and most of those who were not indorsed the action."

Curtis to Light Christmas Tree

Ceremonies Will Begin at 4:30 P. M. Saturday in Sherman Square.

Vice President Curtis, accompanied by Mrs. Dolly Gann, will attend the annual Christmas Eve celebration at the National Community Christmas Tree, in Sherman Square, on Saturday, and will light the living spruce that is representative of Yule trees throughout the land, it was announced yesterday.

The ceremonies will begin at 4:30 p. m. with a Christmas concert by the Marine Band, conducted by Capt. Taylor Branson. The vice presidential party will arrive at 5 o'clock, to be received by the national committee chairman for the celebration, Senator Arthur Capper, and the executive committee chairman, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, of the Community Center Department, and a guard of honor of Boy and Girl Scouts.

Senator Capper will introduce the Vice President, who will then press the button transforming the tree into a colorful blaze of light. The Gordon Junior High Carolers and the Girls' Glee Club of George Washington University, will then sing carols. Other choral exercises have been arranged.

Man, 75, Hurt by Cab On Leaving Hospital

Dismissed from Emergency Hospital yesterday, where he had been under treatment for a carbuncle on his leg since December 12, James E. Douglas, 75, Aldie, Va., was taken back to the hospital a few minutes later suffering from lacerations about his face and body.

When he was released from the hospital, Mr. Douglas is said to have started on a walk to stretch his legs. At Madison place and Pennsylvania avenue he was knocked down by the taxicab of Nathan Blum, 25, 513 Keefer place northwest. The driver was absolved of blame.

Akron's Scouting Planes Set Mark in Maneuver

Further proof of the value of lighter-than-air craft as carriers of scouting planes was reported yesterday at Lakehurst, N. J., when the U. S. S. Akron returned with her brood of planes after a training flight at sea.

The maneuver of attaching the planes while on night flight was successfully carried out with a decreased time interval. Rear Admiral William H. Moffett was aboard and observed the trials.

Russian Farms Behind In Deliveries of Grain

Moscow, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The state farms, to which the Soviet government looks not only to furnish approximately one-seventh of its grain resources, but also to set an example for collective and individual peasants, were said tonight to have fallen down badly in their deliveries of grain to the state.

Senate Bill Authorizes Naval Sale of Clothing

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday adopted a resolution authorizing the Navy to sell at a nominal price its surplus of old clothing for relief.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Shortridge (Republican), California, chairman of the naval committee, now goes to the House. The materials would be sold to the Red Cross and other relief agencies and States and cities.

Man Steals Signs for Baby Crib.

Kansas City, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Signs failed Charles Beggs today. He uprooted them from a highway which they marked, he told a deputy sheriff as the cell door swung shut on him, explaining he needed them to build a baby crib for a new arrival expected soon at the Beggs home.

Husband Divorces Peggy Rich.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Freddie Rich, music impresario, was awarded a divorce by a supreme court jury today in his suit against Peggy Lawton Rich, former Follies dancer. After deliberating two hours, the jury decided Mrs. Rich was guilty of misconduct with John L. ("Jack") de Ruyter, broker, on April 25 last.

10-Cent Store Fire Routs Yule Throng

Hundreds of Adults and Children Escape Blaze in Peoria, Ill.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Fire, fed by flimsy tissue paper holiday decorations, raced through a downtown 10-cent store tonight, routing several hundred adults and children engaged in Christmas shopping. The building was destroyed, but firemen said they believed no lives were lost. Several persons were injured slightly in jumping into life nets and a few suffered minor burns as they rushed to safety as the flames swept swiftly through the establishment after an electric light bulb had exploded.

Fire officials said the quick action of store officials who threw open the front doors and advised customers to file out without rushing averted possible fatalities.

CAROLINA IS MOVING FOR RETURN OF LEAS

Action to Exact Penalties in Bank Fraud Case Is Started.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The legal machinery whereby the State of North Carolina hopes to ultimately exact the penalties imposed on Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher, and his son, Luke Lea, jr., for their conviction in a bank fraud case was thrown into gear today.

Formal notification that the United States Supreme Court had declined to intervene in the case arrived here from Washington, leaving only a possible fight against extradition to this State as the Leas' lone hope of avoiding execution of their sentences.

The State Supreme Court forwarded the papers in the case to the Buncombe County Superior Court in Asheville. The Leas were convicted there in connection with the failure of the Central Bank & Trust Co., a $17,000,000 institution.

The elder Lea, a former United States senator, was sentenced to serve six to ten years in prison. His son was given the alternative of paying $25,000 in fines and costs or serving two to six years in prison.

The papers sent to Asheville today will probably be returned to Raleigh shortly after they are received, as the Leas are not in Buncombe County and, unless they go there to surrender, the sheriff will not be able to serve the capias.

When the court here receives the unserved capias, it will notify the solicitor in Asheville who will then take steps to extradite the Leas and to have their bonds forfeited.

Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles, of the Buncombe District, has announced, however, that he will not move to extradite the Tennesseans or to forfeit their bonds until the January term of Criminal Court, giving the Leas until then to surrender in this State.

No announcement has been made in regard to a possible fight against extradition, but persons familiar with the case are of the opinion that such a fight will be made.

BRITISH GRAIN ORDER HITS U. S. SEAPORTS

London Says Wheat Canada Ships Must Go Through to Get Tariff Cut.

London, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A decision regarded by grain traders as a distinct blow at United States ports and elevator organizations which have heretofore handled much Canadian wheat was returned today by British customs authorities.

The ruling established that if Canadian wheat shipped to the United Kingdom market is to get the new British tariff preference of 6 cents a bushel, it must be consigned to a point in the United Kingdom before it leaves the dominion.

The policy was established by means of a test shipment of three carloads of grain from Fort William, Ontario, on a bill of lading marked "for export to the United Kingdom." The grain went to a Buffalo elevator and was shipped by rail to New York, where the International Export Association delivered it to the steamer Laconia, which landed it at Liverpool December 7. By today's ruling the preference was denied.

Grain traders expect the decision to benefit Canadian seaports and to amend the practice of shipping Canadian grain to United States elevators for later sale abroad.

By today's ruling, the "for export to the United Kingdom" on the bill of lading accompanying the Fort William shipment was not considered an indication of through consignment.

All the intermediate stages of the shipment were accompanied by certification of the identity of the grain, and at all stages it was in bond. Original bills of lading and photostatic copies were supplied to the British authorities. When the shipment reached Liverpool customs officials, they referred the question to London because of its great importance.

The concrete effect of the ruling on maritime ports, which look forward to handling the bulk of Canadian grain for the British market, can not be estimated here. It apparently hinges on the point of whether Western grain shippers can consistently route grain on through consignment via the United States to England, which might imply purchase of the grain before it left Canada.

25 Are Feared Killed By Explosion in Italy

Rome, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—An unexplained explosion today in a dump of a hundred aeronautic light flares at Fort Appio killed seven persons and eighteen laborers were missing.

The 25 men were working around the ancient fort, but they were doing nothing in connection with the dump, giving rise to suspicion that the explosion may have been of criminal intent. The fort, on the Appian Way, outside Rome, was once a defense on the estate of the Orsini family. At the exact time of the blast five soldiers were killed in the explosion of a projectile on the artillery practice field at Nettuno, 40 miles away.

ceived late last night declared that the good saint of childhood was counting on The Post Toy and Doll Fund to keep up his good reputation among the children of Washington. "I may fly over Washington early," he stated, "and it will be fine to know that The Post Fund folk will have everything ready and waiting for me when I arrive, because it will save my time and enable me to do more for the children in the other cities. Cheerio until Saturday," boomed Santa Claus, as he rang off to help Mrs. Santa Claus pack a specially fine stocking for one of the Tiny Tims of the world.

More than 2,000 toys were contributed to the fund yesterday. At times the holly-decked elevator of The Washington Post resembled a toy shop with happy-faced people bundle-laden riding to the fifth floor where Santa Claus headquarters have been set up by the Santa Claus Lady.

They made the Santa Claus Lady's eyes shine with joy and how the toys already there welcomed the newcomers. It was like an Old Home day in Toyville and the place resounded with the faint sweet voices of the dolls, the barks of the pet woolly dogs and the musical tops whirled around like an Indian dervish dancer in their delight at the new arrivals.

A dozen human interest stories could be found in the motives behind the donations. Some of them came in memory of dear ones. Ding-How's pals, the pets were well represented among the donors, other gifts meant real sacrifice for the sake of little children, departments of the Government despite pay cuts and payless furloughs had given their mites for the fund and altogether it was a wonderful witness to the eternal goodness that abides in the human heart.

The spirit of Christmas is abroad in this city, despite everything that may appear disheartening. The letters received with the gifts prove this.

A few quotations will make this most apparent:

This note accompanied a gift of $2 from two little girls, Harriet and Ruth, who put their Christmas thoughts into rhyme as follows:

To some little Unknown Friend
Santa Claus told us to send
Just a bit of Christmas joy
For a happy girl or boy.
Santa said to send his love,
For that is what his heart is made of.

True enough, Harriet and Ruth. That is also what the hearts of those who are helping The Post Toy and Doll Fund are made of—love for others, love for little children and sympathy for those in trouble and distress.

There is to be no forgotten child in Washington on Christmas morning if these kind people have their way. Join up with the army of Santa Claus aids before it is too late.

Another line in a letter said: "In memory of a dear old mother who loved children."

A grandfather wrote, "With keenest regret that this little gift can not be larger, and with every good wish for the abundant success of The Post Toy Fund."

Here is a wage earner who sent in his thank offering for a job and chance to earn a livelihood for his family and with it this touching letter:

"To express a little of my appreciation for a job and sufficient health to earn a livelihood for myself and family, I am inclosing small check for this fund.

"May there be no one with a dollar to spare who will refuse to make glad the heart of some little child this coming Yuletide. 'Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.' 'Give and it shall be given unto you.' These are sacred admonitions of the One whose birth we are soon to celebrate."

There is a fine suggestion in that gift for other wage-earners. In these days of depression any one with a job has a right to be truly thankful and should be willing to give his or her mite in order to help others less fortunate.

Jimmy Ray, the dancer at the Madrillon Restaurant, yesterday joined the recruits for the Santa Claus aid brigade and contribute a number of cakes and toys for The Post Toy and Doll Fund. Clements, the chef, put particular care into the making of the cakes and they will brighten some of the Christmas baskets given to the needy on Christmas through friends of The Post.

Thus the thrilling story goes, with new angles every hour and new friends for The Post Toy and Doll Fund. You can be a friend to little children, too. Send or bring in your donation or a toy. Ask for the Santa Claus Lady on the fifth floor. Any one in The Post Building can tell you where she is for there the true spirit of Christmas abides to the joy of all privileged to help.

Mail all checks to The Post Toy and Doll Fund, Washington Post. Remember, only two days more to Christmas, but there is still time for you to do your part.

Bankers' Association Approves Glass Bi

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The American Bankers Association today went on record as approving the main features of the Glass banking bill except for that part which would drive banks out of the investment security business. The association has forwarded its conclusions to Congress, it was announced by Francis H. Sisson, president.

The memorial stated that members banks of the Federal Reserve System both State and national, have supplied long-term capital to industries as well as to States and municipalities for many years and that such action is a legitimate function of the bank. The demand for long-term credit of this character, it pointed out, has averaged more than $7,000,000,000 annually, and "of this amount certainly more than one-half has been provided by member banks."

EARTHQUAKE SHAKES WEST COAST SECTOR

Epicenter of Shocks, Laid to Mountain Growth, Is in Nevada.

San Francisco, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Earthquake shocks felt last night and early today over a considerable portion of the Far West are attributed by the Carnegie Institution seismological laboratory at Pasadena to the growth of mountains in Nevada.

Aftershocks were experienced today, particularly in west-central Nevada, the apparent epicenter. Chimneys toppled and windows were broken at Fallon.

The main shocks, starting at 10:11 o'clock last night, were felt over a wide area from Denver, Colo., to Long Beach, Calif.

Dr. Charles F. Richter, Pasadena seismologist, said today the epicenter should show some "interesting effects" when examined. He said the aftershocks showed a continuous movement of mountain growth and that the upward thrust of the earth was of considerable area.

Dr. Beno Gutenberg, an authority on earth movements, said the quake was directly related to the upward thrust of the earth in Pleasant Valley, Nev., in 1915. A 40-foot vertical fault appeared at the surface as the result of that movement seventeen years ago.

Dr. Gutenberg described the current shocks as evidencing a southerly progression of that fault. The recordings, he said, showed the pressure behind the thrust apparently had been between 10 and 20 miles below the earth's surface.

Prof. Perry Byerly, University of California scientist, said the shocks appeared to be of about the same intensity as those felt in Montana in 1925 and those which caused considerable damage to Santa Barbara, Calif., the same year.

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Supreme Court Justice George H. Homewood, a young riding master of New City, N. Y., was convicted a fortnight ago of seduction on promise to marry, and was sentenced to serve from 1½ to 3 years in prison and fined $500. The complaining witness was Miss Charlotte Gibson.

DEFINITE ACTION DUE TODAY ON TRACTION MERGER PLAN

name of the new company. For this power the Washington Railway & Electric Co. gets $200,000 anhually, and after the merger that sum would go to the consolidated firm. Blaine doesn't think the contracts should be continued on such a basis. He does not believe the Washington Railway & Electric Co. should be permitted to market at a profit, electricity produced by its subsidiary, Potomac Electric Power Co.

A proposal that the company be allowed to continue its power contracts, provided the Public Utilities Commission is given full regulatory and rate determining authority over power produced, was discussed yesterday, but no agreement reached.

Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Roberts outlined the three-point proposal, sponsored by the Public Utilities Commission. It would leave out-of-town power contracts undisturbed, give the Public Utilities Commission 100 per cent power control and provide a guarantee of adequate power for use of the new company.

On the franchise issue, Roberts drafted an amendment that would reserve for Congress the right to repeal the new company's franchise, and require it to pay for that franchise in event the lines ever are taken over for operation by the Government. Again, there was no agreement.

Alert to protect the public's interest in whatever agreement is drawn up, People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, who shares, on the whole, Senator Blaine's views on the merger issues, played an active role in the proceedings.

As the afternoon wore on and differences sifted down to the power and franchise issues, Harley P. Wilson, a director in the North American Co., which controls Washington Railway & Electric Co. stock; President John R. Hanna, of the Capital Traction Co., and President William P. Ham, of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., were summoned to the Capitol.

This morning's last attempt at harmony will begin at 10:30 o'clock in the Senate District committee room, with leaders on the citizens' joint transportation committee, traction officials and Senators Blaine, Capper and Austin in attendance.

Destitute

Widowed Mother of Four Is One of Thousands Asking Police Aid.

Dear Sir:

Will you please send some one to see me about something for Christmas. I have been sick in bed for more than four months and anything that you can do for me would be appreciated. I have no husband, and four children to support. Please, if there is anything you can do, please help me. I have nothing to make a fire.

Respectfully, ——

This is only one of the 3,000 requests that the police have received for help, in their annual Christmas relief activities. Last night Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan, in charge of the drive, said that only 500 of this number could be aided.

Tonight there is a benefit wrestling match at the Auditorium to augment the funds. In the lobby there will be placed a box for cash donations.

12 HELD IN ALABAMA ATTACK ON DEPUTIES

7 Warrants Out and More Are Expected; Posses Are Dispersed.

Dadeville, Ala., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Seven Negroes, charged with assault with intent to murder four county officers, were held in jail here tonight, as authorities sought to round up all suspects in connection with disturbances near Reeltown Monday in which one Negro was killed and several wounded.

At least one other Negro, Ned Cobb, was in jail here and several still were at Tuskegee, officers estimating that, all told, 12 were under arrest. No formal charge had been made against Cobb.

The seven charged with assault to murder in warrants sworn out today were: Walter Pogue, Alfred White, Lloyd Simpson, Emmett Wood, Jug Moss, Bud Greathouse and Judson Simpson. The latter was in serious condition from wounds received at his home Monday night.

Only Sheriff Kyle Young and his deputies were at work on the case today, posses that swept through the Reeltown section Monday night having dispersed at the request of the sheriff.

Solicitor J. Sanford Mullins from Alexander City said more warrants probably would be sworn out, but did not indicate when this action would be taken.

The four officers, Clifford S. Elder, D. Ware, J. H. Alford, and J. M. Gantt were wounded when they went to the home of Cliff Jeans, near Reeltown, to serve a writ of attachment on some live stock.

Mountain Lioness Wins Decision Over Leopard

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A mountain lioness challenged Queen, 6-year-old leopard and prize exhibit of the San Diego zoo, yesterday. Queen came off second best, with two toes of a front paw fractured.

Drs. G. W. McCormick and C. R. Schroeder put Queen under ether and amputated two of her toes. Hugh Rubin, a student dentist, also took advantage of Queen's helplessness to fill cavities in two of her teeth.

Grade Crossing Crash Fatal to Virginia Couple

Newport News, Va., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Mr. and Mrs. George Hopkins, of Oyster Point, were killed in a grade-crossing accident 8 miles west of here today.

Their bodies, together with that of a pet dog, were impaled on the pilot of an eastbound Chesapeake & Ohio train.

ROOSEVELT PARLEY STILL HOOVER'S AIM

mendations to Congress Monday had confirmed his belief that the European nations can not be dealt with by a commission, such as Mr. Hoover proposed, without the determination of an American policy.

This belief, they said, probably will keep the New York governor in the role of interested spectator during any negotiations that President Hoover's administration may conduct with European powers prior to Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration as President on March 4.

They said the cable dispatches from Europe relating to President Hoover's proposal for a commission, clothed in the authority of both President and President-elect to study the war debt, world economic and disarmament problems, convinced him the Europeans would expect a great deal more than fact-finding from such a commission.

Continues Silent.

Roosevelt himself continued silence on the Hoover proposals and declined to discuss the matter of the telegraphic reply he is generally understood to have made to President Hoover. His friends said, however, that while he would welcome an opportunity for fact-finding in connection with the European situation his principal objection to the Hoover proposals is that they seem to him certain to involve a discussion of terms and policies.

Mr. Roosevelt is understood to have his own plans for dealing with the debtor nations separately and through regular diplomatic channels after he becomes President.

Mr. Roosevelt's friends said that unless the limitations of a commission, such as Mr. Hoover proposed, were clearly stated, the United States Government might later be accused of misleading the Europeans, by not following what the Europeans would be likely to regard as the American policy, as determined by the commission.

Premier Finishing Message.

Paris, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour spent the day putting the finishing touches with his cabinet to the ministerial declaration, which will be presented to Parliament tomorrow, two of the chief problems being debts and the budget.

Best informed quarters expect he will refer to the debts briefly, taking the position that it is indispensable to continue negotiations with the United States. The Chamber of Deputies' recent vote deferring payment undoubtedly will be accepted as the guide for these negotiations.

No interpellations on debts have yet been introduced, but it is likely Louis Marin and Henry Franklin-Bouillon, both bitterly hostile to payment, may press the premier to explain conditions under which negotiations are proceeding. It is expected M. Paul-Boncour in his reply will tell the chamber he will report when he has something definite.

The disposition continues in chamber circles to seek some arrangement with the United States along the lines of a debt conference.

Soviet Plot

Several Russian Leaders Jailed in Scheme to Oust Stalin.

Berlin, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—One minister and a number of former government leaders have been arrested in Moscow, charged with conspiring to overthrow Josef Stalin, virtual dictator of Soviet Russia, the United Press learned from a reliable source tonight.

The United Press was informed that Nikolai B. Elamont, commissar for agriculture, was among those arrested, and that V. N. Tolmasheff, chief of federal motor transport, was taken into custody.

Meanwhile, Michael Tomsky, head of the state publishing trust and former leader of the right opposition, and Alexei Rykov, commissar for posts and telegraphs and former premier, are suspected of a part in the conspiracy, it was said here.

Further Cut Faced By Navy Workers

Payless Furlough Looming Unless Budget Figure Is Increased.

Navy yard workers throughout the country, already hard hit by existing economy act personnel and pay restrictions, may have to take additional slashes in pay up to 30 per cent, via the payless furlough route, if Budget Bureau estimates are not increased in the Navy appropriations bill.

A rotative furlough plan is in contemplation at the Washington Navy Yard and elsewhere, if Congress does not restore $13,535,000 cut from Navy estimates by the bureau, officials said. The situation will be aggravated by failure of wage boards to meet for another year, under economy act provisions, it was said.

N. P. Alifas, president of District No. 44 of the International Association of Machinists, said his organization will not only oppose further restrictions, but will seek additional naval construction to keep navy yard workers busy. He already has voiced his protests at Senate economy committee hearings.

Wendel Case Claimant Indicted as Falsifier

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Thomas Patrick Morris, Scotch house painter, who for weeks appeared to be the leading claimant to the vast estate left by Miss Ella Wendel, multimillionaire recluse, today was charged with drawing up false documents and with conspiracy in four grand jury indictments.

Morris' claim that he was a son of the late John Gottleim Wendel, Miss Wendel's brother, by a secret marriage, was denied in Surrogate's Court last month. Three of the indictments also name as defendants Mr. and Mrs. James McAban, of Dundee, Scotland, and John Doe, otherwise unidentified. Mrs. McAban is Morris' foster sister.

the case, was freed after charges against him were nolle prossed when the other defendants came to trial. Mumper, who was arrested here, had been in jail for three months because he was unable to raise bail of $20,000.

The only person who identified Mumper was Bell, and the three men who pleaded guilty asserted that he had had nothing to do with the hijacking.

Testimony of Blanford.

Carter, McCaffrey and Brown, in their statements to the court, said that Plummer was the man in charge of the hijacking and had led them to believe that they were going to hijack some bootleggers.

All three men denied knowing that the truck was in possession of Federal officers until it had been stopped and said that they dropped the whole thing when they learned that their prisoners were Federal officers. It was at this juncture that William R. Stanford, deputy prohibition administrator for the district, was called on to testify.

Blandford said Plummer had tipped him off about a large quantity of liquor being stored in a mansion and had arranged for the officers to seize a truckload of this liquor.

Plummer, who, Blandford said, was half drunk when he talked to him just before the seizure, asked that he be given a quantity of the liquor in return for his information, and Blandford said he refused.

"King of Bootleggers."

The officers working in southern Maryland, which is in the jurisdiction of the Baltimore dry office, seized this truck and procured a search warrant for the mansion from which they were taking the liquor when the hijacking took place.

Judge Chesnut then asked Blandford what he knew about Plummer.

"Bill Plummer is a notorious bootlegger and the best informer I ever had," Blandford said. "He is the king of the bootleggers in Calvert County, and he does not like outside competition. When somebody else enters his territory he lets us know and we go down and make a seizure."

Blandford denied that he had ever allowed Plummer to have any seized liquor, but said the man always asked for it.

Simon E. Sobeloff, United States District Attorney, who with A. Risely Ensor, assistant prosecutor, handled the case, asked Blandford why Plummer always called him when there was work to do instead of going to the regular investigators.

Convictions in Washington.

Blandford said that Plummer had been working with him for several years and might not have known that he no longer was in charge of enforcement in southern Maryland.

Blandford said he could not understand why Plummer would tell the Federal officers where to make a seizure and then arrange to hijack the seizure itself. Blandford also said that Plummer had been convicted on liquor charges several times in Washington.

In imposing sentence Judge Chesnut said he did not believe that the men before him had known they were going to hijack Federal officers.

"That would amount to war against the Government, and if I believed these men guilty of that I would impose the maximum sentence of 15 years in this case," Judge Chesnut said.

2 U. S. FISHING BOATS SEIZED BY MEXICANS

Latin Republic Says Vessels Were in Restricted Zone Off Pacific Coast.

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A controversy between American fishing boats and Mexican patrol boats over fishing off the coast of the Southern republic was renewed today.

The market fishing boat Bijo, commanded by Capt. W. C. McPhail, returned to port and the captain said his boat had been boarded on the high seas, and the Peerless, another San Diego fishing boat, had been seized on the high seas by the Mexican patrol boat ROF No. 1.

The Peerless was convoyed to Ensenada, where it joined the Acalin, San Pedro, Calif., fishing boat, which was confiscated October 20, and the Bon Jesus and the Mercedes, San Diego boats, seized last summer, at the prison anchorage. The boats were valued at approximately $30,000 each.

Amandos Amador, Mexican vice consul here, said he was sending a report of the seizures to the Mexican Embassy at Washington.

He said he understood both the Bijo and the Peerless were in what is known as the 20-kilometer area, a restricted fishing zone, and carried no licenses. He said Mexico had jurisdiction within 125 miles of shore.

McPhail said he was hailed by the ROF No. 1 7 miles at sea off San Hipolito, 400 miles south of here, last Saturday. A man came aboard the Bijo, he said, confiscated its papers and announced it and its four-man crew were in custody.

"I protested that my boat was on the high seas," McPhail said, "but the Mexicans said we had Mexican products aboard and could be boarded anywhere. I explained that the fourteen tons of yellowtail I carried were caught 50 miles farther off the coast, but they would not listen."

The Bijo was convoyed to a point 6 miles off San Pablo, McPhail said, where at 5 p. m. the Peerless was sighted. The Mexicans boarded the Peerless, he said, arrested its crew and posted four men with rifles aboard her. The patrol boat sighted the lights of another boat at 10 p. m and gave chase.

McPhail said the Bijo's generators failed and Agustin Valenzuela, the guard aboard the Bijo, was unarmed. The Bijo proceeded homeward in the darkness. Valenzuela was turned over to immigration officers here, who released him, to wait the arrival of the Mexican patrol boat here later this week for fueling.

BALLOU IS ASSAILED ON OPPOSING BOXING

been taken on the request of Columbus University for the use of the McKinley gymnasium for boxing.

Dr. Ballou then revealed that the committee on use of grounds of the board had denied the request on his recommendation. Pressed by Mr. Gilligan for an explanation of a reason for the rejection, Dr. Ballou said that boxing is not a part of the public school program, and that the Community Center Department, under its present regulations, can not grant permission for the use of a gymnasium for this sport.

Dr. Ballou received the support of Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer, who said that school officials felt that the public as a whole had not yet reached the point where it would reconcile the use of school buildings for boxing.

"I don't see any difference between basket ball and boxing," Mr. Gilligan said heatedly. "It is a fine sport and builds men."

Then, as other board members remained silent, Mr. Gilligan, with Dempsey-like tenacity, tore into the action of the committee and made a motion that the recommendation be withheld and that a complete report, explaining the action, be submitted at the next meeting. Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith seconded the motion and it was carried.

The committee on use of buildings, which will make the report, is composed entirely of women—Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle and Mrs. William C. McNeill.

But for the intercession of Mr. Gilligan, the matter would have passed over without attention, as it was not brought up during the meeting.

Dr. Ballou submitted a report on school accommodations showing that congestion is considerably more severe in senior high schools than in the elementary and junior high. He pointed out that congestion in the senior high schools would be worse than it is if a large number of new school buildings had not been opened during the past year.

Dr. Kramer told the board that a double shift at Western after February 1 could probably be avoided. The condition at Eastern, he said, is more serious.

ANDREW D. LOFFLER DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Funeral of Provision Man Is to Be Held Tomorrow; Retired 2 Years Ago.

Andrew D. Loffler, 54, retired head of the Loffler Provision Co. and father of its present president, died yesterday at the Takoma Park Sanitarium after a two-day attack of double pneumonia.

Mr. Loffler, who inherited the business from his father, retired two years ago and since that time had traveled in Europe and lived in his summer home at Bay Ridge.

He was a member of the Elks and a Thirty-second Degree Mason. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Elsa Loffler, and two sons, Andrew Loffler, jr., and Leonard E. Loffler. His local address was 724 Eleventh street northwest.

Funeral services will be held from his home at 2 p. m. tomorrow, with burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Fist Attack Ends Holdup of Store

Boxer - Wrestler-Merchant Overpowers Youth, 17, Who Is Arrested.

The youthful robber, who attempted to hold up George Haje, proprietor of a delicatessen at 1101 Thirteenth street northwest, yesterday struck a tartar.

To a command to "come across," Haje responded with a series of lefts and rights. Haje's punches sent the would-be robber's revolver clattering to the floor. The youth then offered no resistance, as the storekeeper, changing to wrestling tactics, stepped in close and pinioned his arms. A passerby called police and John ("Spud") Harris, 17, was locked up to think it over.

"I don't mind giving a fellow something to help him out," Haje explained, "but it just burns me up to have anybody try to take anything from me by force. It made me mad when that guy pulled a revolver on me, and I made up my mind to get him—or get shot trying!"

BAN ON ARMS SALE TO NATIONS SOUGHT

fleet of 30 Curtiss-Wright bombing planes to Bolivia. The Colombian government at the same time negotiated for the purchase of 20 hydroplanes from the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation in Buffalo. An agent of the Brazilian government, Senhor Mayrink Veiga, was in the United States last summer with commissions for the purchase of more than $3,000,000 worth of war materials. Senhor Mayrink Veiga was principally concerned in the purchase of Waco bombing planes and Boeing scout planes.

Hoover's Support Sought.

With these factors in mind, Representative Fish yesterday called on the President and asked him to support his resolution introduced last March for a "multilateral agreement renouncing the sale or export of arms." Representative Fish pointed out the situation existing in Bolivia, where purchases of arms and ammunition are being made by the Bolivian government with money advanced to them by American investors on which payment has been defaulted, was notably grievous. He said:

"Our bankers have lent 20 millions to Bolivia, with which she has bought munitions of war, largely in England, while millions of American men and women are urging peaceful relations among nations. The use of American money for arms and ammunition in Bolivia is simply incredible."

However, the position of the Government is particularly difficult, it subsequently developed. The State Department is perfectly willing to eliminate, insofar as it is compatible with reciprocal arrangement with other nations, the arms traffic. But it would be an unnecessary hardship if the President declared an embargo which would work only to the disadvantage of American manufacturers and leave the field open for others.

Hoover Urged to Lead.

Representative Fish urged the President to "take the leadership in extending the spirit and purpose of the Kellogg-Briand pact renouncing war as an instrument of national policy by outlawing the sale and shipment of arms between nations."

The Fish proposal is being watched with great interest here on account of the arms traffic proposal now on the table of the Geneva Disarmament Conference. This proposal would establish the strictest supervision over all arms shipments and would tend to control the clandestine trade in arms which extends all over the world.

The great advantage of the Geneva proposal would make the arms traffic agreement a general understanding, binding equally on all nations. The Fish proposal would greatly hasten the general agreement on this Geneva proposition, which seems to be on the way to the deepest pigeon hole at the League of Nations.

Paraguay Stands Firm Against Peace Proposal

Asuncion, Paraguay, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The government, in a communication to the Neutrals Commission, which seeks to conciliate the dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia in the Gran Chaco, today reaffirmed its refusal to accept the commission's proposal of December 15, but indicated that arbitration negotiations might be renewed if suitable security were guaranteed.

The neutral nations' proposal that hostilities cease and that a neutral strip be designated in the Gran Chaco was said in the government's reply as having the possibility of creating a situation which would damage Paraguayan rights.

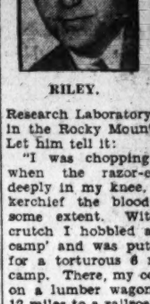
The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

RECENTLY Washington Post readers were stirred by the story of the Midwestern farmer who cut off his own arm when his hand became snared in tractor gears while working alone in a cornfield. By severing his arm at the elbow with a pocket knife the farmer saved his own life. Then with Spartan nerve he walked home several miles.



RILEY.

The accident is comparable to that which befell Robert H. Canfield, associate physicist, Naval Research Laboratory, during a survey in the Rocky Mountains in Colorado. Let him tell it:

"I was chopping down a sapling when the razor-edged ax lodged deeply in my knee. Using my handkerchief the blood was stopped to some extent. With an improvised crutch I hobbled a mile to our 'fly camp' and was put on a pack horse for a torturous 6 miles to our base camp. There, my companions put me on a lumber wagon for still another 12 miles to a railroad flag station over a pioneer road running most of the way in a stream bed. At the station, South Fork, several hours for the train wait ensued. Arriving at Alamosa my wound, then more than twelve hours old, received its first attention from a doctor. Then I went on to a hospital at Salida via a stretcher in a baggage car." Then Mr. Canfield adds:

"The most lasting impression of the whole adventure was my being carried through the streets of Salida by six Mexicans."

On looking over this expert mathematician's book shelves we saw year books from Johns Hopkins University and the University of Colorado. The class section pages to the C's we found that Mr. Canfield holds degrees of Ph. D., M. S. and B. A. and is a member of the following fraternities, Alpha Sigma Phi, Phi Beta Kappa, Tau Beta Pi, Sigma Tau, Sigma Psi and Gamma Alpha. He speaks German. While in Berlin after the war—well, that is a story later.

Swarmi Fedd, following the trend toward economy, this time is wishing his friends a Merry Christmas and satisfactory New Year for three years, 1932, 1933 and 1934.

There mustn't be any broken little hearts because of broken dolls this Christmas, Arch Coleman, First Assistant Postmaster General, tells the holiday mail handling forces over the country. "Careful handling" is the slogan to keep joy in Christmas for the little ones, not to mention the way to keep down replacement-from-damage costs.

ACCOUNTS AND COLLECTION TEAM, Income Tax Bowling League, has increased its lead to two games by winning two from C-8. The set of 1,566 was high set for the week. Meanwhile, Executive 2 were taking a pair of games from Records 1. The Executives pulled some deep stuff by changing their line-up each game and the Records bowlers were so busy figuring out the different handicaps that they fell down on their bowling.

Swarmi Fedd finds that much of his own stamping ground, Kansas City, Los Angeles, and points West, also are one-time homes of Roy E. Miller, Forest Service, and former newspaperman.

Among other things we like about Dr. Axel H. Oxholm, director, national committee on wood utilization, is the fact that he puts his interviewer fully at ease. No condescension. He makes one feel it is a pleasure and a privilege to talk for publication. Maybe that is why he makes such a success in his work. He has no secrets. The door is open.

FIFTEEN-SECOND INTERVIEWS IN AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT.

Employes of the Agriculture Department who contemplate official travel at this season of the year should be careful to take advantage of the especially low round-trip holiday rates offered by the railroads in all sections of the country—Dr. W. W. Rockberger, director of Personnel and Business Administration.

Anemia and pernicious anemia, which most commonly affect adults, can not be cured by the many types of nostrums which the Federal Food and Drug Administration has seized in 25 years' operation. In fact, there is no drug nor combination of drugs known to medical science which can cure pernicious anemia.—Dr. F. J. Cullen.

Agriculture is undergoing a drastic readjustment as the result of two sets of economic factors, one internal, the other from without, either of which would have brought violent disturbances.—Nils A. Olsen, chief, Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

By the application of a simple method, coupled with the assistance of dry cleaning establishments, sheep breeders may determine from a small sample the clean-wool yield and density of the fleeces of their sheep.—Dr. John I. Hardy.

The Department of Agriculture Welfare Association is a volunteer organization, receiving funds entirely from employes. The money is loaned without interest or takes the form of gifts where parties are unable to repay for emergency operations, deaths in families, &c.—Miss Carrie Davis, secretary of the association.

Washington Bicentennial was thoroughly observed from the Postoffice Department's standpoint. A series of twelve George Washington stamps was issued in 1932.

Here's a chance for someone to do something big. Remove the rainstains from that giant toothpick we call the Washington Monument. Nominations are in order.

GRANVILLE M. HUNT, then United States postmaster at Peking, recalls the menu served Christmas Day at Camp Reilly, Peking, at civilians mess, December 25, 1900. Here it is:

Mock turtle soup, fried trout, tartar sauce; shrimp salad, queen olives, pickled walnuts, English pickles, macaroni, Italiano; peach fritters, Chinese quail on toast, broiled; leg of lamb, caper sauce; cold ham, stuffed goose, cranberry sauce, canvasaback duck, American potatoes, hashed and creamed; green corn, French peas, English plum pudding, brandy sauce; apple pie, cream pie, fruit cake, cream cake, frosted; coffee, chocolate, tea, nuts, American cheese, raisins, gingerale, Philippine cigars. And EGGNOGG.

Is that a mouthful?

Here are names of some of the diners:

George H. Peck, adjutant general's office, China Relief Expedition; Maj. J. C. Byron, quartermaster's department, China Relief Expedition; O. M. Wilson, voucher clerk, quartermaster's department; M. L. Robb, clerk, ordnance department, China Relief Expedition; Arthur W. Coppock, clerk, New South Wales Naval Brigade (guest); Fred J. Mallory, chief clerk, quartermaster's department, China Relief Expedition, and O. N. Anderson, clerk, quartermaster's department.

The Federal Trade Commission Bowling League of four teams rolled off the first half of the season the other night with these results:

High set, Robert H. Winn, 355; high game, Gilbert W. Mooers, 144; high season average, Arne Solem, 109. Others who won prizes are Garland Kendrick, Barney Crane, Edward L. Smith, William Galbraith and Edward Fischer. Eight prizes were donated by Edward Reardon and E. J. Hornibrook, chief counsel's staff.

The sack of mail on the way from Standards to Commerce is safe and okeh. Some one found the pouch lost Tuesday from the truck driven by William Reeder. It was delivered to the Postoffice Department.

It's the payoff! It's the Christmas payoff! That long line of clerks on the second floor, Commerce, headed toward C. W. Palmer's office. Workers allowed to draw on their salaries, as much as they have earned, so they can get in the last-minute rush that tries our patience and crushes our bundles just before Christmas.

And have the young women in Mr. Palmer's office been swamped with work since the economy act became effective with pay rolls and record-keeping? But Emily Towles, Ferda Oppenheimer, Alice MacDonald and Mary Hunt have cheerfully met demands, impounding cash, deducting leaves without pay, furlough and the like.

GAZING into his nickel-plated glass doorknob, Swarmi Fedd gets a preview of approximately 150 members of the Tacomis Club receiving an individual greeting card from this organization of United States Tariff Commission personnel. . . . Adjusting his monocle for more intensive gaze, Swarm sees the picture change to the weary arms of the several members who assumed the task of addressing this formidable pile of mail. The focus is poor and so the old crystal gazer can only distinguish that one of the group is Mrs. Bertha M. Robertson—if you should not recognize the handwriting. . . . Yes, we said weary arms—not fingers—because with our well-known reportorial ability we discovered that Mrs. Robertson uses the Palmer "arm-movement" method of writing.

Albert Strucker, Current Information, Commerce, we're glad to see you back after illness. We hear E. A. Tupper, Economic Research Division, is off with a heavy cold. It's Christmas, let's prescribe. And Kathryne Dickinson, chief clerk's office, home with grip.

Someone has a brief case belonging to Robert W. Webb, cotton technologist, Department of Agriculture. He wishes that someone would return it. When last seen, it contained official papers, said to be worth $150 to the department. Webb believes he left the case in a taxicab from which he alighted at 2 p. m. Saturday. Reported to police Wednesday.

MISS ALTA SMITH.

Piled on a large table yesterday afternoon lay gifts of Federal Trade Commission employes gathered by the Fetracom, welfare organization. The presents, purchased this year at Kann's, were bought systematically with a particular child's requirements in mind. Here was a brown outfit. There was a blue. There were games, candy and fruit in stockings. Miss Alta Smith, social committee chairman, was assisted by Miss Dorothy Day, Miss Margaret Herrity, Mrs. Madge Harkness, Mrs. Helen Drawbaugh, Shirley D. Mayers, Miss Dorothy Allen, Mrs. Frances Cramer, Mrs. Mabel Smith, Miss Dorothy Baxter, Miss Emma Greer and Mrs. Lavinia P. Farnsworth.

Mrs. Young died early yesterday after a brief illness following an attack of bronchitis.

Mrs. Young was born here on January 4, 1851. Her father was John McGowan Barclay, who was journal clerk of the House of Representatives for many years. She attended private schools here and was graduated from Brook Hall, at Media, Pa.

Four children survive her. They are Mrs. Glenn A. Smith, John Russell Young, James Barclay Young, American consul at Southampton, England, and Miss Julia Coleman Young. Two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren also survive.

GEORGE L. BEARD DIES.

Funeral Set Tomorrow for Chief Engineer of Mayflower Hotel.

George L. Beard, 61, chief engineer of the Mayflower Hotel, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 942 Longfellow street northwest. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the Chambers funeral establishment, 1400 Chapin street northwest, with interment in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A member of Sharon Lodge, F. A. A. M., of McLean, Va., and of Columbia Council, No. 3, Royal and Select Masters, Mr. Beard was a long-time resident of Washington. Besides his widow, Mrs. Grace Beard, and a daughter, Miss Bertie Beard, Mr. Beard is survived by three brothers and two sisters.

SERGT. NELSON FUNERAL.

Inventor of Submarine Device Will Be Buried Today.

Funeral services for Master Sergt. Paul R. Nelson, Coast Artillery Corps, inventor of a system for control of submarine mines, which, it is estimated, will save the Government $1,000,000 in ten years, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Arlington National Cemetery.

Sergt. Nelson never was rewarded for his invention. A measure to commission him a captain upon his retirement was pending in Congress at the time of his death at Walter Reed Hospital Monday. He was 58 years old.

"Oh, That's Fine," Says Burns' Wife

Refuses Further Comment, However, on Mate's Winning Case.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Emilia Pino Burns, wife of Robert Elliott Burns, chain gang fugitive, expressed pleasure today upon learning his extradition to Georgia had been refused by the New Jersey Governor, but declined to discuss her intentions for the future.

"Oh, that's fine!" Mrs. Burns, known here as Mrs. Pino, exclaimed, when informed of Gov. A. Harry Moore's decision denying the extradition. Further than that, she would say nothing.

Burns was rearrested here three years ago on information reportedly furnished authorities by Mrs. Burns after they had separated and he allegedly became friendly with another woman.

TWO STARS IN OPERA ARE CHEERED HERE

Mme. Stueckgold Appears With Andre D'Arkor at Musical Morning.

Two great opera companies were represented ably at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's Sixty-third Musical Morning yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel, when Mme. Grete Stueckgold, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Andre D'Arkor, tenor of the Royal Opera, Brussels, were joint artists in a comprehensive program.

Both of the artists won favor with the audience, and M. D'Arkor received many encomiums through his singing.

His mellow tenor, with gorgeous tones in it, was welcomed every time he appeared after his first song, with spontaneous applause, and the audience was particularly enthusiastic over the Aria from Donizetti's "L'Elisire d'Amore," while the lovely "Fantoches," by DeBussy, also was prime favorite of the morning.

One of the high points of Mme. Stueckgold's portion of the program was her rendition of Caccini's "Amarilli." Her German group also pleased the audience.

The soloists at the next Musical Morning at the Mayflower under Mrs. Townsend's auspices will be Richard Crooks, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Mme. Ninon Vallin, soprano, of the Paris Grand Opera, on January 4, when she will make her Washington debut.

Decision Is Near In Gas Ownership

Utilities Body Continues to Study Bride's Plan of Settlement.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday continued its study of the recommendation of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride regarding a settlement of the Washington Gas Light Co. ownership case and indicated an announcement probably would be made today.

The recommendation also is believed to cover a subrosa request upon the part of the gas company to issue additional bonds. Although the bonded indebtedness of the company is already large in proportion to its stock, the gas company wishes to issue new bonds as soon as approval is obtained from the commission and to sell new stock if the pending bill to merge the Washington and the Georgetown companies is approved.

Riley Elgen, vice chairman of the commission, yesterday explained the delay of the utilities body in reaching a decision on its counsel's proposal as being due to the complicated nature of the new set-up which gas company officials contend is in conformance with the LaFollette anti-merger act.

RAIL UNIONS ACCEPT OFFER OF CARRIERS

indefinite and suggested that the deduction agreement be extended an entire year.

The roads' latest offer provided that should either side wish to revise the basic rate after next June 15, the other side would cooperate with it in procuring prompt and Nation-wide settlement, subject to the rail labor act.

Immediately after the executives made their offer, Alexander F. Whitney, general chairman of the labor representatives, said labor delegates would study it this evening and meet in another joint conference with the executives to give their reply.

The latest proposal of the carriers offered labor a definite terminating date for the deduction, as labor insisted should be done, but did not guarantee automatic restoration of basic rates at its expiration.

The Willard agreement, now in effect, made no provision for serving of notices by either side for changes in the basic scale which was suspended last January 31, but will be restored February 1 unless an agreement is reached.

Labor has insisted during the past ten days that the Willard agreement precluded any attempt to change the basic rates. The carriers have asserted they always possess such right. However, they offered to hold off until July 1.

The new proposal attempted to settle the disputed interpretation, but moved back to June 15, the date prior to which the carriers would not attack the basic scale. Being a new proposal, labor might be forced to reject it, for its representatives announced at the start they had authority only to negotiate an extension of the current agreement.

It also would commit labor to expedite any possible proceedings before the Federal Mediation Board, an eventuality which union leaders have refused to discuss. The proposal, however, would guarantee no change in the basic rate prior to November 1.

The roads withdrew their original offer yesterday, saying it was their final plan. A day of oral discussion across the table, with lawyers excluded, evolved the new plan without a counter offer from labor.

BURNS' EXTRADITION IS REFUSED

batable. It was the opinion of legal experts that a new governor would hesitate to overrule his predecessor, but there seemed to be no precedent. Attaches of the governor's office could not recall a refusal by a New Jersey executive to extradite.

Two Hours of Pleading.

More than two hours of pleading by such eminent counsel as Arthur Garfield Hays, former Judge Harry V. Osborne and Charles Handler for Burns' freedom was climaxed by the statement of Samuel Bernstein, the grocer he robbed of $4.80, that he didn't think the convict should be returned.

Injection of Bernstein into the hearing was accompanied by a touch of the dramatic. Suddenly, Osborne, who had been urging freedom for the convict, turned to the "best judge"—Bernstein, now a resident of Far Rockaway, N. Y.

"Do you think Burns should go back to a chain gang?" he asked.

"I do not," replied Bernstein.

"The defense rests," said Osborne to Gov. Moore.

Then, Merritt Lane, a leading member of the New Jersey bar, calm and deliberate, opened Georgia's case. It was, he said, quoting a court opinion, "an absolute obligation" of the governor to honor the requisition of a sovereign State.

Refers to Those Protesting.

"The people," Lane said, referring to citizens who had protested extradition, "have asked you to rule that the people of Georgia are no longer fit to govern themselves and that they are not fit to rub elbows with the rest of us."

"Is your excellency," he asked, "going to condemn the State of Georgia on exparte statements made here? If you deny the extradition, the effect of your denial will be just that thing."

Kelley spoke for more than an hour. He denied Burns had been mistreated, defended prison conditions in Georgia and asserted if the alleged abuses were true, "thousands of homes in Georgia would rise up in wrath for the protection of their own flesh and blood."

Does Not Condone Everything.

"I do not condone everything done in Georgia," Kelley said, "just as you wouldn't condone everything done in this State. But if a guard in those camps oversteps the bounds of reason he won't stay there long. * * * If we are denied the right to this prisoner we will defer to your decision without feeling or reprisals or desire on our part to deny any reasonable request of New Jersey. I speak not for the governor of our State but for the people of Georgia. We are proud of our State in its history."

Among those who spoke in Burns' behalf were his mother and brother.

The brother made an impassioned plea; said the State of Georgia, "not my brother," was on trial, and ended, "Your excellency, my brother will, I know, if you refuse to sign this extradition, live up to your confidence in him."

Cites Other Refusals.

Hays cited cases where governors had refused extradition, and concluded by asking:

"Were these governors derelict in their duty, ignorant of the law? They knew the matter was one of moral duty. It is up to the governor to do what his conscience tells him he should do. They say Burns is a fugitive from justice. He is a fugitive from injustice."

During the hearing, the question of whether Burns had been promised a pardon when he returned voluntarily to Georgia after the first escape was debated.

Gov. Moore read a telegram from Judge Joseph B. David of the Cook County Superior Court, which said: "My recollection is Stanley stated if Burns returned to Georgia voluntarily he would be released, either paroled or pardoned, in 90 days." Vivian Stanley was a member of the Georgia prison commission.

Kelly argued a representative of the State was "without power" to make "a contract."

Russell Is Surprised.

Atlanta, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—Gov. Richard B. Russell, jr., of Georgia, manifested incredulous surprise late today when informed that Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey had denied his requisition for the extradition of Robert Elliott Burns, widely publicized "fugitive from a Georgia chain gang."

"It is my understanding of the United States Constitution," he said, "that in the case of a convicted criminal, properly identified, granting of such a requisition is mandatory."

The possibility of further legal action by Georgia to seek return of Burns, coperpetrator in a $4.80 armed holdup here in 1921, was suggested to the governor, who replied:

"I shall probably have a statement on the situation tomorrow, but I do not care to comment on that possibility until I have had an opportunity to study the matter and the testimony on which the governor's decision was based."

E. L. Rainey, chairman of the Georgia State Prison Commission which had formerly requested the governor to requisition Burns' extradition, was asked his reaction to the testimony introduced in Burns' behalf at Trenton today.

"Maudlin sentimentality," he replied.

The governor took the firm position that the size of the robbery, $4.80, was "entirely beside the point." Rainey collaborated in a telegram to Gov. Moore yesterday characterizing Burns' charge of mistreatment of prisoners in Georgia "slander upon an enlightened sovereign State and its officials, made for purposes of gain."

Resent Suggestions.

Georgia officialdom privately resented the widespread suggestion that medieval practices of brutality were prevalent in the State's treatment of its convicts. Some refused to be quoted, but used the word "slander" long before the prison commission openly used the word in its communication to Gov. Moore.

Gov. Russell, meanwhile, took the position that the palpable intent, and not the size of the loot, was the all-governing element in the Burns case. He drew a comparison between it and the career of the notorious Jesse James, declaring:

"The only essential difference is the fact James used to get as much as $20,000 a holdup. Both employed intimidation with deadly weapons."

Indication that the State's youthful governor will take further legal action, if possible, came in his deliberated remark:

"As far as I'm concerned, he (Burns) will have to take his medicine."

Doubts Conviction.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The possibility of finding witnesses was given tonight as the determining factor in the decision of whether New York will try to accomplish what Georgia failed to do—have Robert Elliott Burns extradited from New Jersey.

The situation in this city, where Burns is said to be wanted on an old indictment charging forgery of a $50 check, was understood to be little changed by the decision of Gov. Moore of New Jersey not to grant Georgia's request for extradition.

District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, in announcing yesterday that he would not send a representative to the hearing in Trenton today, said: "There is doubt whether Burns could be convicted."

Christmas cheer will be brought to more than 100 children and 47 families tonight at the county-wide Christmas party in Washington-Lee High School. The Rev. Isaac Steenson, pastor of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church, will act as master of ceremonies, with W. W. Willis as Santa Claus.

Preceding distribution of gifts to children and baskets of good things to eat to heads of families a program of entertainment will be presented. It will include singing by the High School Glee Club. A feature will be a play, "Mother Goose Christmas Party," by pupils of Teresa Clark's Kindergarten.

This party has been made possible with the cooperation of Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of the Welfare Board, by the following organizations: Business and Professional Women's Club, the Clarendon Business Men's Association, Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Monarch Club, Red Cross, Arlington Post, American Legion, and Auxiliary; Boy and Girl Scouts and the Woman's Club of Ashton Heights, Arlington and Lyon Park.

The arrangements committee consists of Mrs. Pearle W. Sharpe, chairman; Mrs. R. E. Rowell, Mrs. Teresa Clark, Mrs. Frank Sherwood, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, Raymond Nickols, Roy L. Miller, David Lockling and Mrs. Stanton Moore. It is stated that no one whose needs are known must go hungry on Christmas Day in Arlington County.

Pursuant to the writ entered on December 17 by B. M. Smith, William P. Ames, J. Vernon Smith, Charles T. Jesse and Harry R. Whitehead against the Arlington County Board, prohibiting them from entering an amendment or approving minutes of the board of supervisors in 1931 in rezoning the property of James Head, the court yesterday granted a continuance. Action was to allow time for filing of pleadings to the writ.

The Clarendon Baptist Sunday School will hold its Christmas entertainment tonight at the church at 8 o'clock.

All members of the church have been asked to bring money or food to be distributed to needy families.

G. Frank Allwine, former chief of the Jefferson Fire Department, was reelected to serve his third term as president of the Arlington-Fairfax Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association at a meeting last night. Other officers are Elmer Blackmer, of Arlington, secretary-treasurer; E. B. Chapman, of Cherrydale, treasurer of the relief fund, and Albert C. Scheffel, of Arlington, county fire marshal.

Robert E. Janson, Walter U. Varney, Frank Vitale and the Rev. J. W. Townsend were appointed a committee to arrange for the annual memorial services on January 15.

The following committee was appointed to audit books of the relief fund: George F. Cook, Herbert F. Smith and Hugh Allen, and those to audit the accounts of the association, Frank Tracy, Fred S. Biggs and Douglas Royston.

Cooperation of the Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties Real Estate Board was assured the Arlington County Board yesterday in its plan to bring about policies that will insure uniform street development before any subdivision is accepted by the board.

Further consideration will be given to the many recommendations made by the board which would provide that all streets be properly improved with curb and gutter and that water and gas be provided. Members of the real estate board committee representing members from Arlington County were Ashton C. Jones, Frank Lyon, Henry C. Morris and Charles W. Smith.

Brothers Are Held In Attack on Child

One Berwyn Man Is Jailed and Alleged Aid Is Freed on Bond.

One man was held without bond, charged with a statutory offense against a 12-year-old girl, and another was held in bond as an accessory, after a preliminary hearing yesterday in Hyattsville police court.

Kermit, alias Joe Daniels, of Berwyn, was ordered held in jail until the grand jury can consider charges against him, while his brother, Irwin, alias Mike, was held for the jury on bond of $2,500. Two other brothers, Horace, alias Buck, and Charles, alias Pete, were released when Judge J. Chew Sheriff decided that the evidence against them was not sufficient to hold them.

According to Policemen Claude Reese and Eugene Plumer, the men picked up the child near her home in Mount Rainier, offering to drive her home. Instead, the policemen allege, they took her to the home of one of the men, where she was kept all night.

Woman Is Found Dead From Gas

Mrs. Leat Is Discovered in Home by Son, With Stove Overturned.

Mrs. Leona Stella Leat, 65, 417 New Jersey avenue southeast, was found aspyxiated in her home late yesterday. She was discovered in a room with gas flowing from an overturned stove by her son, Theodore L. Leat, when he returned home.

The rescue squad made an unsuccessful attempt to resuscitate the woman. She was pronounced dead when the Casualty Hospital ambulance arrived.

Harvey Heads Exchange Club in Prince Georges

S. H. Harvey, of Hyattsville, yesterday was elected president of the Prince Georges County Exchange Club to succeed B. W. Anspon, whose term expired yesterday.

Daniel Cox Fahey, jr., was reelected first vice president, and the Rev. Clyde Brown was chosen as second vice president. Members of the club selected Robert W. MacCullough as third vice president. J. B. Waters was reelected to serve as treasurer, while Dr. Hugh Cawthorne was chosen again to act as secretary.

Marine Officer Is Rescued Again From Asphyxiation

Capt. Allen, Takoma Park, Found Near Death From Gas Second Time.

For the second time in as many months, yesterday the life of Capt. James T. Allen, 48, of 32 Benwood avenue, Takoma Park, Md., of the United States Marine Corps, was saved by Takoma Park police from asphyxiation.

The police used the new fire department inhalator for the first time in reviving Capt. Allen. The captain, who is an employe of the Veterans' Administration, was found in the kitchen of their home yesterday morning by his wife, Mrs. Ethel Allen. Four jets on the gas stove were open. Mrs. Allen called Walter Reed Hospital for an ambulance. Unfamiliar with the town, the ambulance driver stopped at the Takoma Park police station to get Town Policeman C. Earl Thomas.

When they reached the house, Capt. Allen had ceased to breathe, but they found a feeble pulse action. The Army men carried the officer into the open while Policeman Thomas hurried back to the firehouse for the inhalator and Steve La Scola, assistant fire chief, who helped to operate the apparatus. Resuscitation methods were applied for more than 30 minutes. James Ware, of the Fire Department, and Policeman Frank Lane aided. The captain then was removed to Walter Reed Hospital, where his condition rapidly improved so that he became conscious yesterday afternoon.

On September 30 Capt. Allen's life was saved by the quick thinking of County Policeman Joseph Nolte, also of Takoma Park. Capt. Allen was found in his closed garage, seated in his automobile, overcome by carbon monoxide gas. Policeman Nolte, without waiting for aid, tossed the man into his police car and took him to Washington Sanitarium Hospital, where he was revived. At that time it was said that Capt. Allen had been overcome while dusting out his automobile.

RITCHIE TO PAROLE 41 FOR CHRISTMAS

One Convicted in St. Marys and Three in Prince Georges Included.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 21.—At least 41 prisoners serving time in State penal institutions for various offenses will be made happy for the Christmas season as the result of the action of Gov. Ritchie, who has ordered their parole on Friday, unless objections are raised in the meantime. All of the cases were, however, investigated by State Parole Commissioner Kennedy and received his favorable recommendation. Included in the group are three men convicted in Prince Georges County and one in St. Marys County.

Among the more important cases to receive executive clemency is that of Saul Margulies, indicted in Anne Arundel County, but convicted in Howard County after his case was removed under a change of venue, for selling poisonous liquor that resulted in the death of two persons and caused several others to become blind or impaired their eyesight. Nelson Owens, a farmer of the South River section of Anne Arundel County, died within a few hours after drinking some of the fluid, and his son died several days later. Margulies has served most of an eight-year sentence for conviction of manslaughter.

Margulies is 62 years old. He has a wife and four children.

Other cases that gained the governor's favor are:

Clarence Walters, convicted in the Prince Georges County Circuit Court for stealing some chairs and a stove, and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, from which he was transferred to the penal farm. He has served all but 10 months of his term.

Denison Gittis, Negro, sentenced by a Prince Georges County magistrate to serve seven months in the house of correction for carrying concealed weapons. A month and a half of his term remains.

Henry Russell, Negro, also sentenced by a Prince Georges County magistrate to one year in the house of correction for driving an automobile while intoxicated. Russell has served all but a month and a half of the penalty.

James Goldsborough, sentenced by a St. Marys County magistrate to a year in the house of correction for assault. Five months of his term remain.

Culpeper Assault Case Nearing Jury

Defense Rests in Suit of Woman Who Accuses J. A. Swan, Jr.

Culpeper, Va., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The defense rested late today in the trial of the $25,000 damage suit against James A. Swan, jr., who is under a twelve months' suspended sentence on a charge of malicious assault and battery on two women.

Suit was brought by Mrs. Ruth C. Crowson, of Chester, S. C., who said that Swan attempted to enter the bath house in which she and her sister, Mrs. Pearl C. May, of near Culpeper, were bathing. Mrs. May has entered suit for $15,000.

Ten-year-old Ruth Lyle Crowson, daughter of the plaintiff, corroborated testimony which had been given by her mother. Sarah Bennett, 11-year-old neighbor of the Mays, who was called as a defense witness, contradicted this testimony, and broke into tears when cross-examined by counsel for the plaintiffs. Rebuttal witnesses will continue their testimony tomorrow with the expectation that the case will reach the jury the following day.

Higher Religious Wine Quota Urged

Doran and Woodcock Will Discuss Allotment to Jewish Families.

Liberalizing of governmental restrictions on sacramental wine allowed Jewish families is under consideration by Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol. Doubling of the present maximum quota of five gallons to a family is a chief feature of the proposal under study.

Revision of the detail requirements in regulations governing records kept by rabbis with regard to sacramental wine is part of the proposal under survey. Dr. Doran expects to discuss the whole matter at a conference with Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition.

Jewish families are now allowed one gallon a year per member of the family up to five.

FAIRFAX OFFERS AID IN PAYING DOCTORS

Board Would Give Physician Half of Normal Fee to Treat Needy.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors at its meeting yesterday adopted a resolution addressed to the county medical association offering to pay one-half the normal medical fee for treatment of the indigent sick of the county when authorized by the county superintendent of public welfare. This action was taken following a conference between the board and Dr. C. A. Ransom, of Falls Church, and Dr. E. C. Shull, of Herndon, of the medical association. The physicians said they would take the matter up with the association soon.

The supervisors indorsed the movement of the medical association in its drive during January against diphtheria, urging all children of school age to take the toxin-antitoxin treatments. The immunization treatments will be given the children by the county physicians at cost during that month.

Former Delegate to the State Assembly Leon L. Freeman, of Vienna, sponsor of the county firemen's relief act, appeared before the board relative to the blanket insurance policy for volunteer firemen injured in the line of duty, protesting the payment of such a large premium rate. It was stated that three years ago the premium was only $400 and the rate asked for next year will be approximately $1,800. He was informed that the board is required by law to carry such a policy and unless a lower rate could be obtained from some company this rate would have to be paid.

The regulations concerning the laying out of real estate subdivisions were amended to substitute the county surveyor for the county engineer, whose office was established when the Byrd law was adopted in the county. The plats and streets in the subdivision must be approved by him before they can be filed with the county clerk. H. N. Clark, of Fairfax, was appointed to act in this capacity when the county surveyor is ineligible because of interest.

FERRY CERTIFICATE APPLICATION FILED

Action Is Taken by Company to Attain Harmony and Thwart Litigation.

An application for an intrastate certificate of public convenience and necessity for its proposed ferry extension has been filed with the Public Service Commission of Maryland by the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co.

In explanation of the filing of the petition the company stated it was for a two-fold purpose—a desire to maintain friendly and harmonious relations with the State authorities, and to forestall the possibility of future litigation.

The company asserts it has been empowered by the Interstate Commerce Commission to extend its rail lines and operate a ferry from Calvert County to Dorchester County, across the Chesapeake Bay. The company further declares it proposed to finance the extension either by a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or other sources as may be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It is also stated that the company's charter has been amended to forestall any question as to the legality of the extension.

2 Men Are Sentenced By Hyattsville Court

Jail sentences, one for vagrancy and one for assault, were given to two men convicted yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court. Milton Prout, of Bowie, was sentenced to serve eighteen months for cutting Pearl Fleet with a knife during a fight at Bowie.

Arthur White, "who wanders about Prince Georges County and lodges in public places," according to the warrant, was sentenced to seven months for vagrancy. He was also held for the grand jury for destroying a fence around a coal yard, and fined $1 for being drunk and disorderly.

Radios Installed For County Police

Receiving Sets Placed in Substations in Bethesda and Silver Spring.

Short-wave radio receiving sets were installed yesterday at two additional Montgomery County police substations, Bethesda and Silver Spring. A short-wave set previously had been placed in Rockville headquarters.

The radio sets are installed as part of the process of modernization of the county police department under direction of Commissioner John B. Diamond, in charge of police, and Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley.

One scout car in Rockville has been equipped with radio set and has been functioning successfully. Scout cars at the other stations will be equipped later. The Takoma Park substation also will be equipped. County officials believe a closer cooperation between county and Washington officials in the apprehension of criminals will be achieved. The Washington Police Station will broadcast messages for the county.

BEER AND REPEAL.

The bill legalizing 3.2 per cent beer carrying a Federal tax of $5 a barrel passed the House as drafted, after a score of amendments had been defeated. The vote of 260 to 165 marks a turning-point in the attitude of the House toward restoration of traffic in liquor.

The crux of the proposed legislation is the question whether the liquor to be manufactured is or is not intoxicating. The House adopts the theory that 3.2 per cent beer is not intoxicating. Accordingly no safeguards are thrown around the distribution of the product. The license system relating to brewers is ostensibly only for the purpose of making certain the collection of the tax.

"The saloon is on the way back," remarked Senator Borah, referring to the Senate committee draft of a resolution repealing the eighteenth amendment. Many persons honestly believe that the beer bill, if it becomes law, will bring back the saloon, without waiting for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Supporters of the beer bill lay stress upon the necessity for raising revenue, and insist that since the proposed new beverage is not intoxicating there is no occasion for worrying over the possible appearance of the old-time saloon.

The beer bill affords an opportunity for the Senate to attach an amendment that will really raise revenue. The sales tax, as a rider on the beer bill, is in the offing. Dry sentiment is supposed to be stronger in the Senate than in the House, and if this be true it may be expected that efforts will be made to prevent the appearance of beer saloons. If the majority of senators, however, should conclude that 3.2 per cent beer is not intoxicating, the Senate debate may revolve about revenue rather than the saloon question.

The House vote indicates that the beer bill could not be passed over a veto. Fears are expressed that a veto will be forthcoming if the beer bill should reach the President as passed by the House, although it is assumed that if it should be embodied in a general revenue measure it would be approved. The strategy of beer advocates in the Senate may be directed toward the assimilation of the beer bill in a general revenue bill calculated to balance the budget, so that the President can not veto it.

Some lawyers contend that it would be very difficult to bring before the Supreme Court a case which would necessitate a ruling on the intoxicability of 3.2 per cent beer. Nevertheless, the Supreme Court did pass upon the question of alcoholic content, and doubtless the numerous and energetic drys would find a way to test the question before the highest tribunal.

The Senate committee draft of a resolution repealing the eighteenth amendment may hang fire in Congress for a long time. The third section of the resolution provides that "Congress shall have concurrent power to regulate or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors on the premises where sold." This plan to bar the return of the saloon will meet the objection that has been raised against the eighteenth amendment itself—that it is Federal interference in the affairs of the States. Few legislators believe that Congress would try to exercise the power to supervise the distribution of liquor legalized within a State, and perhaps no one can be found who believes that an attempt to exercise this Federal power would be successful.

The drys, therefore, may redouble their efforts to checkmate the beer bill, in the hope that sentiment against the return of the saloon can be solidified and made effective in defeating the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

ADULTERATED MONEY.

Representative William L. Nelson, of Missouri, is confident that farmers have "had their fill" of fanciful and unworkable panaceas and are no longer willing to stake their salvation on wild experiments. While he was making this hopeful prediction, Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, was notifying his headquarters in Chicago that a farm bloc has been created in Congress to work for inflation of the currency and reduction of the value of the dollar. An abiding faith in panaceas and quackery still seems to be the mainspring of the farm relief movement, in spite of the optimism of Mr. Nelson and other friends of the farmer.

Destruction of the monetary value of the dollar is the only important point in the program which has been tentatively agreed upon by the new agricultural bloc. It also manifests a desire to stop farm mortgage foreclosures and to give agriculture equality with industry and labor. But Congress can not lift mortgages from the farmer's back. Some relief may be afforded by again expanding the resources of the Federal Land Banks, but the Government can no more stay the hand of bankruptcy on the farm than it can in industrial areas. In this case the farm bloc is talking of an ideal and not a practical objective with which Congress may deal.

Equalization of agriculture and industry is without meaning. If the farm bloc refers to tariff protection, it needs only to look up the calculations of the Farm Bureau to find that the farmer has already been granted more extensive tariff protection than industry receives. Most of the inequality between agriculture and industry arises from the inability of the farmer to adjust output to consumption. No practical thinker believes that this fault can be removed by legislation.

The farm bloc seems to be basing its entire hope for improvement of economic conditions upon adulteration of the dollar. The currency has been greatly inflated since the depression began without having any effect upon conditions, except to accentuate the lack of confidence among the people. Shall the gold dollar be debased, then, to increase commodity prices and start business to booming? Any serious attempt to enact such a measure would create a furious demand for gold, and the country would be thrown into a monetary panic, which would only add to the woes of the farmer. The economic ignorance which is manifest in such an attempt to rescue agriculture is pitiful. If Mr. O'Neal has correctly represented the program of the new farm bloc, it may be relied upon to do the farmer more damage than any other comparable body in the country.

NEAR BLIND MAY SEE.

A remarkable new invention which restores vision to persons with extremely defective sight was announced this week at the meeting of the American Academy of Optometry at Chicago. It is the work of Dr. William Feinbloom, of New York. While the invention has not been previously announced it is in actual use by a considerable number of patients. Dr. Feinbloom estimates that 40 per cent of the individuals now disabled for want of sight may recover vision with the aid of his telescope glasses.

Dr. Feinbloom's generosity in donating this invention to science is no less remarkable than the invention itself. Every eye specialist has been invited to make use of this device for partially-blind patients who have heretofore been turned away as hopeless cases. Monetary rewards have been entirely subordinated in Dr. Feinbloom's mind to the benefit that may come to purblind individuals from his efforts.

Telescopes have been used heretofore for reading by individuals of extremely subnormal vision. But the use of telescopes for other purposes is impractical because they destroy a person's sense of distance. One who can see only through powerful magnifying lenses can not follow an occupation, because the things about him are not where they seem to be. It has been the work of Dr. Feinbloom to design a telescopic system that would magnify the image viewed and yet not disturb the patient's sense of space and distance. He achieved that result after long experimentation by substituting cylindrical lenses for the spherical ones used heretofore.

The telescopic glasses which are the result of Dr. Feinbloom's work resemble a pair of goggles. Each eye looks through a series of three cylindrical lenses. Sight can be thus restored to individuals with only 2 per cent of normal vision. Individuals who have been "industrially blind" are now working as bookkeepers, factory workers, doctors and merchants with the aid of telescope glasses.

Dr. Feinbloom has achieved distinction as both an inventor and a philanthropist. The world needs more men like him.

KEEP ALIEN BARS UP.

Immigration into the United States became a serious problem when the depression threw several million American workingmen out of jobs. It was solved by President Hoover without the enactment of new legislation or disturbance of the quotas now in effect. Secretary Stimson points out that 500,000 aliens who would have come here under normal conditions have been excluded since the depression began.

In the fiscal year 1932 only 12,697 aliens were admitted, in spite of the fact that the quota allotments amounted to 153,831. The number of non-quota aliens coming here was reduced 78 per cent. Rigid interpretation of the law has saved several hundred thousand jobs for American citizens, and has helped to preserve wage scales against being undermined by an influx of aliens.

These results probably could not have been attained by legislation. Every time Congress opens up the immigration question the various national groups press for greater privileges. Congress could not have cut off the influx of immigrants without raising a storm of protest and ill-feeling. But the President has accomplished the same result under the emergency clauses of the act without creating any ill-will, and without upsetting the basic immigration law.

Employment in the United States is shown to be declining slightly at present, but most of the contraction is of a seasonal nature. Even when economic conditions turn definitely toward recovery, it will be a long time before all of the unemployed can be absorbed into the industrial system. Continued restrictions upon immigration are necessary. This policy of excluding aliens likely to become public charges should carry over into the new administration.

BUYING IN WASHINGTON.

The stores of the Capital provide unrivaled attractions for holiday shoppers. Washington is offered a more lavish display of merchandise than has ever been displayed before. Local merchants have improved the stores of the Capital during recent years to an extent that is not always appreciated by residents who have watched the gradual transformation. Former residents who have returned this year after an absence of some time are amazed to find so many handsome stores which now provide all the facilities of the metropolis in matters of style and variety of assortment.

The great majority of Washingtonians do appreciate this advancement and are responding to it with increasing patronage. Many who formerly made regular shopping visits to New York now find that in virtually every line of merchandising their wants can be conveniently and satisfactorily catered to in Washington. If any discriminating buyers still remain in doubt on this subject it must be because they have not recently inspected the extent and great variety of offerings that are now provided for them here in the home market.

It goes without saying that prices this year are low when compared with those of recent years. If incomes have suffered some reduction there are few lines of merchandise in which offsetting benefits are not to be secured in Washington stores. Goods are not only to be found as reasonable here as in other cities, but the bargain sales of the Capital are noted for the opportunities they offer to the careful buyer. Money spent with Washington merchants has the added advantage that it remains in circulation in the home town to help every other local interest. When purchases can be made here with equal regard for quality, style and price the advantage of patronizing our own Washington establishments is a factor in the general welfare not to be overlooked.

This is the malt that lay in the House that Jack built. Beware of the rat, the cat, the dog, and the cow with a crumpled horn.

Political farmers are opposed to the sales tax, but they favor the allotment plan, which is a sales tax on food.

The Federal deficit is largely the work of lobbyists, and now many of them are out of work.

France may not succeed in cancelling the debt, but it has cancelled a lot of tourists.

After ten days of eggnog the Senate may decide that beer is pap for mollycoddles.

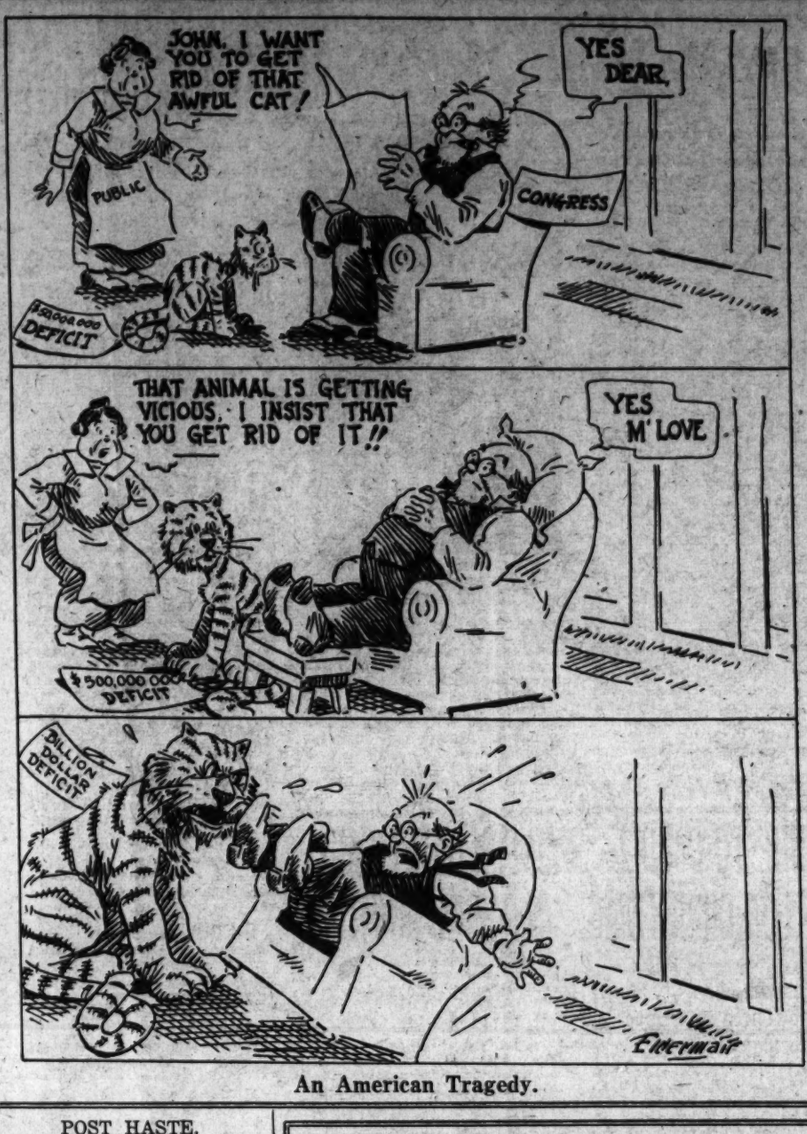
CHANGELINGS

From the New York Sun.

Thirteen years ago today, according to the Medical Press by way of the Medical Journal and Record, male babies were born to Frau Donk and Frau Beuth in a German maternity home. When one of the infants was put in Frau Donk's arms the next morning she declared it was not her child. Frau Beuth accepted the child confided to her as her own. The midwife and the managers of the home were confident that they had not made an error in their assignment of youngsters, and eventually both mothers accepted the situation.

Frau Beuth, who had not questioned the original allotment of babies, attended a circus in 1930, and among the performers saw a boy bearing a remarkable resemblance to her husband and to her eldest son. Inquiries disclosed that this boy's name was Donk. The Beuths and the Donks held council, and Herr Beuth eventually appealed to the court for a judgment, declaring Willi Donk his son and the boy he had reared to be the child of Herr and Frau Donk. The scientists were called: "expert evidence, finger prints, blood tests and the formation of jaws and teeth confirmed the suspicions of the parents that in all probability an actual exchange of the infants had occurred shortly after birth." So the youthful Beuth became a Donk and the youthful Donk a Beuth.

However, this did not end the matter. Each of the boys was happy in the family in which he had been reared. Neither desired to exchange places. Nor did any of the parents wish to give up the child to which he or she had become attached. The court will not order the boys to be exchanged. Notwithstanding the revolution in their legal status, for the time being they will live as they have lived, so far as physical environment is concerned. But there has been a psychological revolution as well as a legal revolution in the families. Can the new Beuth and the new Donk adjust themselves to acceptance of their accustomed relations with those whom they have regarded as their parents but who now turn out to be substitutes? Germany is rich in analysts of human emotion who are painstaking and persevering. Here is a matter to engage their curiosity as long as Donk (ex-Beuth) and Beuth (ex-Donk) survive.



An American Tragedy.

POST HASTE.

All that is now necessary is for the Senate, President and Supreme Court to agree that, really, real beer is not reely.

The rough House precipitated by mere discussion of 4 per cent is a bit ominous of what appearance in person may do.

The Senate would get sidetracked on an item of less than 2 per cent in the Economy League's saving program.

Moscow sees recognition from Roosevelt, and London already visualizes the new American Ambassador. Maybe we had better turn the telescope around that is trained on Albany.

The latest Chicago incident indicates need of target practice when a policeman plugs a prize gangster three times at short range without satisfactory results.

It certainly is tough on congressmen that they have to spend next week "working" just like ordinary plebeian Americans.

It entails no perspicacity to discern that young Pu-Yi is a wag, telling old dog Japan to withdraw from the league.

We will feel better about business reports when the optimists can stop talking about things being less bad and get back to the old gooder good.

Do the allotment sponsors think they can give a big subsidy price boost to wheat, pork and cotton without making people eat more corn and mutton and wear more rayon?

The league Manchurian committee probably stood only 15 to 4 for conviction, so adjourned without a verdict.

Figure out how much that installment is in centimes and you can measure how much payment would hurt a Frenchman.

If the President elects to appoint a committee of Democrats to study the debt problems, the President-elect's approval should be assured.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A TRAP FOR SANTA CLAUS.

One time I thought I'd lie awake and catch old Santa Claus,
And solve the curious mystery about him, just because,
Though I was only seven years old, enough I thought I knew
To say no man as large and stout could climb our chimney flue.
And being very smart back then—much smarter far than now—
If Santa really came that way, I thought I'd find out how.

You see, what really bothered me,
and what I wished to know,
Was how he drove his sleigh the time
there wasn't any snow,
And how he knew just what to bring and always have things right,
And how he got around to all the boys and girls at night.
So, doubting everything they'd said,
I'd planned awake to stay
And catch him, if he really came, before he'd get away.

So Christmas Eve I waited in my bedroom all alone.
I heard the shutters rattle and I heard the north wind moan;
I didn't hear his sleigh bells ring, or Santa holler, "Whoa!"
I didn't hear his reindeer on the roof, and yet I know
There surely is a Santa, because in there he crept
And left me everything I wished the little while I slept.

If You Use a Faster Vehicle, You Must Drive a Shorter Time or Go Too Far

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IF the ordinary American is to prosper and find happiness in the years to come, he must see to it that men who have authority solve the one great problem of our times.

Some of our present-day problems are products of the depression and their solution will be automatic when the depression ends.

But there are others that result from some basic fault in our plan of civilization, and these will continue to trouble us in good times and bad until their cause is removed.

Chief of these is the problem of controlling production. Our machine age has learned to produce too much and looks in vain for a market whHe pauperized millions ask for alms.

Do you remember the controlled production of the war period?

The man power of civilization was under arms. The millions in uniform were "unemployed," as were the other millions engaged in making tools for slaughter.

Yet the production of necessary and useful things was so well controlled that a fraction of the adult population, aided by machinery, was able to produce all the world needed.

The machine's ability to produce has increased since the war. A fraction of the world's workers, aided by machinery, still can produce all that mankind needs.

If more men are employed, the machines will produce too much.

But men who are not employed can not buy the machine's products.

If that is true, isn't it a great folly to work one group of men eight hours a day while another group has no work at all?

If idle men need profitable work and the machine needs cash customers, why is the problem difficult to solve?

Control production to match the world's needs; divide the labor of production to give every man a job.

If a farmer has six horses, will he work early and late to produce enough feed for twelve?

Or, if he must feed six in any case, will he overwork three while the others stand idle in the barn?

POLITICAL COMMENT

Payment Only Deferred.

New York Journal of Commerce.

Fortunately, the shock to general investment confidence caused by a purely political default is less severe than that which would result from default due to inability to pay. Moreover, it should be noted that France has not repudiated her obligations; the resolution voted by the Chamber simply instructs the government to defer payments.

As a revenue matter, the default has little significance, because the amount involved is small. As a first step necessitating a speedy reexamination of a whole series of debt settlements, it is, on the other hand, of great importance not only to the United States but to the entire world. If the incoming administration is prepared to approach the task of readjustment that awaits it with prejudice toward none, the French default may, therefore, prove to be a blessing in disguise, since it hastens the coming of the day when the debt problem will cease to disturb international peace.

"Return of Peter Grimm."

Nebraska State Journal.

There have been rumors that with the coming of the new Democratic administration, Col. E. M. House will again have a job as confidential agent of the President. With the European debt situation becoming acute it will not be surprising if Col. House soon finds business reasons for a trip to Europe. The colonel rendered valuable service to Woodrow Wilson. So far as the record goes his counsel and advice were safe and sane. Mr. Roosevelt might go far in hunting for a man who would serve in such a capacity to better advantage.

Shadowed.

Los Angeles Times.

The specter of fear, says Secretary Doak, still hangs over the country, retarding increased employment. In other words, until the specter scrams the ghost won't walk.

Wrong Label.

New York Sun.

It appears that "Do Not Open Until Christmas" was put on the beer keg by mistake.

And the Last.

Atlanta Constitution.

This will be the first Congress, however, in which the lame ducks make the biggest splash.

There's a Limit.

Macon Telegraph.

Stand back, folks, and give us room! Here's where we hop, skip and jump from the damp to the dry side. Some gump has gone to talking about making wine out of prunes!

Tax on Food.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

One phase of the allotment plan of farm relief that its backers can not dodge was emphasized in the hearing of the meat packers. They pointed out that the levy on the processers of pork would so increase the retail price that "the consumer would substitute right and left."

The allotment plan amounts to a sales tax on food.

Kansas City Star.

A bill calling for reduction of the pay of members of Congress by 25 per cent has been introduced by Representative Fulbright, of Missouri. A reduction of 8 1-3 per cent was made by the economy act of the last session. The larger cut would leave the salaries of the members $7,500 a year. As Congress hardly calls for service throughout the year, as times are hard and as everybody is for economy, this kind of proposal ought to command a lot of serious thought at Washington. At least, it would enable members of Congress to indicate just what they felt their services, or those of duly elected successors, might be worth to the Nation. And if the Nation itself could decide the matter, what does anybody suppose the salary figure would be?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Members of Congress Bound to Represent Majority of Their Constituents.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A. B. C.'s letter, appearing in Tuesday's Post, is so absurd that your readers will doubtless wonder why it escaped the waste basket. Your correspondent makes the following statement in summarizing his views on what he considers to be the duty of a representative in Congress:

"As I see it, the representative who votes as his constituents dictate and contrary to his convictions betrays the representative principle and demonstrates his unfitness for the office to which he was elected."

So far as is known Bishop Cannon is the only other person in the world who agrees with A. B. C.'s statement. In the first place it would be utterly impossible for any human being to be elected to Congress if he told his constituents in the campaign "If elected I promise you that I will on all questions ignore your wishes and views and vote according to my own convictions." Certainly no aspirant to office would thus commit himself in his bid for votes. The word "representative" implies that the person who has been elected to Congress will be the mouthpiece of his constituents; that he will truly be their representative. It is impossible on many, if on any one question, to vote according to the wishes of all his constituents and for this reason, among others, it is his sacred duty to endeavor to vote in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the people whom he represents.

The fundamental principle of our American government is that the majority should rule. The Constitution makes an exception in the case of amending that instrument, which is a wise one, but Congress can not and does not vote on an amendment to the Constitution. That duty is left to the States. But when the question is submitting an amendment to the States for the latter to make their decision, it clearly is the duty of the representative in Congress to cast his vote according to the wishes of the majority of his constituents on the proposition.

Protecting Dry States—A Problem for Which No Solution Has Been Found.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in Monday's Post on "Protection Against Beer" brings up the whole question of the differential treatment of the States by the Federal Government. Where the several States have different settled sentiments and regulations, the Federal Government has always experienced serious difficulty in attempting to interfere. The tragic issue between the free and slave States ought to furnish sufficient warning for all time to come. The free States demanded protection from the encroachment of slavery within their borders. In turn the slave States demanded the "fugitive slave law," safeguarding return of their human property escaping to the North. This intolerable situation led to Abraham Lincoln's famous dictum: "This Nation can not exist half slave and half free."

The present day analogy is painfully apparent. If this country is to remain half wet and half dry, the Federal Government will be wholly unable to serve as monitor between the warring halves. The headlong issue is inevitable. The question of beer growing out of the definition of an intoxicating drink is but the preliminary skirmish compared with the real issue which is to follow when and if the eighteenth amendment is repealed. The dry States will be wholly at the mercy of the wets, despite all constitutional guarantees. With the railroads, the automobiles, the submarines and the airplanes, liquor will flow across State lines with the fluidity of water. President Hoover in his speech of acceptance pointed out the difficulty of enforcing a Federal law against unwilling States. The fifteenth amendment is a case in point. Finding it too difficult to enforce, the Government has tacitly declared a moratorium against such time as popular sentiment will uphold and observe it. Might this not be the wisest policy for the eighteenth amendment, although it might take another generation to educate public sentiment to the point where it will be respected, upheld and observed?

KELLY MILLER.

United States Not Explored Yet, and People Don't Know Its Possibilities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have every reason in the United States to be prosperous and comfortable as never before. The only hitch is in our minds and our emotions.

This point is well stated in a recent editorial in the Business Week, from which I pass this paragraph on to your readers:

"There is one aspect of this Puritan complex which we think it may be profitable for some of us American business men especially to ponder. We don't have to pretend that we have just landed on Plymouth Rock. We have. We don't need to play being pioneers with hair in our ears. We are. We left a distant and quite done-for land forever three years ago, set forth on a stormy and uncharted sea, landed on a strange, stern and rock-bound coast. We have discovered, or are about to discover a new continent called the United States. It is unexplored, undeveloped, unexploited. It is covered with a wilderness of worn-out ideas, attitudes, methods, ideals. It is infested with commercial wild animals and peopled with industrial aborigines. We have as little conception of its size, its concealed resources, its potentialities of prosperity and progress today as our ancestors had three centuries ago when they first set foot on the shores of New England. It is the greatest mistake in the world for us to suppose that anything has been done with this country yet."

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

IN the good old days, when many persons had the habit of going to bed each night fairly well "jagged," a certain incapacity and discomfort the next morning was a common condition. Such a general thing was it that the German name of the disorder, katzenjammer, was in fairly wide use.

A man with katzenjammer had headache, was irritable, had what was commonly referred to as a "dark brown taste," appetite was absent, and perhaps the distaste for food went as far as to be marked by some nausea and a little vomiting.

The simplest treatment, and much the worst for katzenjammer, is to take a good stiff drink of whisky. This does not stop the discomfort, but it eases it somewhat and it makes the sufferer indifferent to his discomforts. It is by the latter action that whisky gives the most relief; in fact, it is about the only basis for the medicinal use of whisky that remains. The feature of the treatment that makes it especially hazardous is that it caters to a cell hunger that leads to chronic alcoholism and a form of addiction that is not easily broken.

Another treatment that is less prompt but better otherwise is to take a little food and follow with a laxative. Most experienced drinkers know that if they can get the stomach to working their discomforts will lessen.

A group of researchers have done some work in an effort to find a better explanation of the discomforts of katzenjammer in the hope thus to lay the basis for a better cure. They were of the opinion that the effects and after-effects of alcohol on the body cells did not supply all the explanation needed. Particularly did this apply to delirium tremens and mania a potu—the two worst after-states. They studied particularly the effects on the blood of alcoholism, as shown by the content of glucose, carbonic acid and lactic acid, and the blood reaction.

Not very long after the last drink has been taken the excess alcohol has been eliminated and blood tests for it are useless. Their research led them to think that there was an excess of lactic acid in the postalcoholic period and that this was the explanation of most of the katzenjammer symptoms. If these findings are confirmed the facts will supply a basis for the present-day treatment, consisting in a little simple food, such as fruit juice, clam juice and a clear soup, followed by a purge.

In many cases it would be well to also make use of those measures that are useful in the soreness and stiffness which follow violent exercise. These are: Hot baths, Turkish baths, sweats, massage, rubs. However, persons with bad hearts should be careful about Turkish baths. It is advisable to drink carbonated alkaline beverages, preferably not sweetened.

What Today Means

"CAPRICORN"

IF December 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m., and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 8:45 a. m. and from 10:30 p. m. to 11:45 p. m.

You will probably be aware of a certain tenseness in the air on this day. Things just won't seem to go right. You will have difficulty in getting things started, and once you do, there is little or no reason to believe that they will remain on the right course even with the closest surveyance. It will seem that you do not have to look for trouble on this lay; it will just pop up all around you. Sweethearts should carefully avoid disagreements of any kind.

Born on December 22, the child will have great possibilities for success on this planet. Possessed of an attractive and magnetic personality, a good mentality, and a healthy body, he should go far under the proper guidance. He will be extremely independent, not a little conceited, and often stubborn. He will require much affection, but his greatest danger is in demanding and receiving too much of it.

If December 22 is the date of your birth, you will probably plug along through life in a most unspectacular but very thorough way. When you do "arrive," people will appear somewhat surprised for your hardworking but direct path to your goal will have gone almost unnoticed. Scientific research of some kind should appeal to you and in all probability should enable you to lead a useful life. You should succeed in the field of education; you would, however, not be a teacher that would greatly inspire your students. You have a mathematical mind.

You are most economical except when it comes to your personal expenditures. You like to spend money lavishly on yourself, and this goes for your family, too. As an employer, you are not ideal; you are not as considerate as you might be and you demand your money's worth of work from them. Like most people, you are happiest when doing right, and even though you realize this, you occasionally allow yourself to get off the "straight and narrow."

Successful people born on December 22:

John S. Phelps, congressman and governor.

John S. Newberry, paleontologist.

Opie P. Read, journalist and author.

Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State.

Alfred Dolge, felt manufacturer.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THE woman who has no dressing table, will give you a cheering vote of gratitude if you present her with one. Husbands, this timely hint is intended for you.

There's such a variety of tables to choose from. If space permits a large, elaborate, semirrored one will lend dignity to the beauty rites of the lady of the house, the little woman who keeps things running so smoothly. For the very small apartment, there are tiny tables for dressing room or bathroom made in colors, a drawer or two, and a spacious top, partitioned if you like. These are fashioned after the famous French dressing tables. The top closes flat, the table looks insouciant enough, very much like a night or corner table. Then the top opens. Presto. Mirror in the lid, deep, roomy compartments for toilet articles, a small chair or stool goes with it and the proud owner can sit leisurely down to her beautifying rites, making the ceremony make-up should be. Believe it or not, it will add immeasurably to her good looks. It needs only a few inches of wall space, so even the small apartment can boast one of these tables.

By the way, an extra closet can be turned into a charming dressing room. Dressing table, mirrors, chair, proper lighting effect and—there you are! Around this table can be grouped the splendid utility cabinets obtainable at moderate prices in the better department stores. These cabinets have sections for shoes, hats, gloves, hose, &c. The last word in comfort and no longer limited to the chosen few.

And Individual Beauty Aids.

If you know the preferences in beauty preparations of the person to whom the table is going, its usefulness will be doubly acceptable.

For College Girl.

For the college girl coming home for the holidays, a new dressing table equipped with creams and lotions, a few manicuring articles would simply thrill her young heart. You might include some of the new perfumed emory boards, a compact or two with her monogram and one of the lovely acne lotions. The last doesn't sound very romantic, I know, but it's a godsend for the occasional eruption that has a way of popping up just before a dance or dinner date. Get one of the healing, medicinal preparations that act as powder base at the same time.

Market Meanderings

Federal Bake Shop Inviting to Visit; Rag Dolls Go With Lollipops; Date and Nut Loaf Cake Tempts; Potatoes Here From Texas.

CHRISTMAS shopping days are relieved of much of their strain for many Washingtonians when they visit the luncheon and food shop superintended by the smiling Mrs. M. B. Blake, co-worker with her husband in the Federal Bake Shop, around the corner from F street, on Fourteenth street. The pleasant attitude of Mrs. Blake toward the often weary and sometimes hard to please Christmas shopper, or toward her customers at any time of the year, must have had much to do with the phenomenal success of the Federal shops in Washington. The two local shops of the Federal Bakery, a national baking concern, are rated the most successful of the scores in the Federal chain, located in dozens of large cities. Their three successful years in Washington have meant much to Mr. and Mrs. Blake, so much that they are buying their permanent home here and enjoying life in the Capital.

Mrs. M. B. Blake.

"Trying to give the public what it wants when it eats downtown—something that tastes home-made" was Mrs. Blake's reply to the Meanderer's request for explanation of her quick success in the lunch and afternoon tea business. Those who tried the home-made spice cake a la mode this week will realize what Mrs. Blake means by "home-made taste." Another part of the Federal's way of winning the public is the use of women cooks only, Mrs. Blake said. Women's natural cooking ability makes them more critical of their products, this successful restaurateur believes. Balanced menus, based upon her years of careful study of foods, are another part of the successful way this woman has found to feed her customers.

The role of business partner with her husband is filled by Mrs. Blake with interesting impersonality. New employes in the shop often work for days before they know the two managers are matrimonial as well as business partners. In the important home background of this interesting pair's business activity is an 8-year-old son.

True Christmas coffee cake or "stollen," with all its toothsome appeal, is to be offered by the above-mentioned bake shop on Friday and Saturday. Candied orange and lemon peel, citron, cherries, currants and pecans are thick in this "stollen," which is to sell in 33 and 49 cent sizes. On Friday one of the plum-miest offerings is to be whipped cream puffs for a nickel apiece.

A Santa Claus doll carrying a pack of tiny toys and candies is a suggestion for an original gift for the child who "has everything." These dolls are featured in an important Fifteenth street candy shop for $1.75.

Winsome rag dolls with hair of yellow yarn and an armful of lollipops are going to contribute to the Christmas happiness of many little girls in Washington. These unique rag dolls are found in the high class candy shop on Fifteenth street, downtown. The dolls sell for 65 cents.

The exceptionally good fruit cake from a G street pastry shop which sold at special prices last week pleased hundreds of Washington women. Many of the Meanderer's readers wrote or telephoned to ask if a light fruit cake is made in this shop, and the answer to that, made by the head pastry chef in charge of fruit cake operations, is "Yes, indeed." Light or dark Christmas fruit cake, made of choice fruits from Italy and real sherry, is 60 cents a pound, or a 5-pound cake for $2.75.

Christmas trees in all sizes for Washington's Yuletide celebration are coming in from northern regions and from nearby pine forests. Tall spruce trees from Maine, Vermont and Canada are photographed in the Southwest Market area, near Tenth and F street southwest. The tallest of the spruces measures about 22 feet.

Sun dried apricots are ground and mixed with honey in a delicious marmalade found in a fancy food shop in a big department store. Another pleasing mixture, intended for salads, found in the same interesting corner, contains mayonnaise, honey and apricots, and a pure, whipped honey spread is another delectable bit worthy of notice. These mixtures sell in 8-ounce sizes for 25 cents.

Date and nut loaf may be just the cake for those who do not care for the traditional Christmas fruit cake. The date and nut loaf, in tins, sells in ten-ounce sizes for 21 cents and 1½-pound tins for 44 cents in the interesting food shop of one of the big department stores. Sherry wine jelly, 20 cents for 10 ounces, is another item of holiday appeal in this popular shop. The ultra-thin cheese wafers and celery wafers are rapid sellers there, too.

Gay, red tins of old-fashioned hard candies, weight 2½ pounds, stamped with the name of a famous brand, sell for $1 in a high quality candy shop on Fifteenth street northwest.

New potatoes from Texas have arrived in Washington in time for the Christmas meal planning. The 1932 crop of new potatoes is to sell five pounds for 25 cents in chain stores, a decided decrease over their 1931 Christmas price of three pounds for a quarter. The potatoes are larger, too, than is usual at this early season, as if to give the largest measure possible in a difficult year. One chain store manager describes them as "about as large as a big egg."

Mock fruits of almond paste in the shape of bananas, apples, pears, plums and strawberries, are clever Christmas accomplishments of a well-known pastry chef on G street. In this shop one finds the large almond paste turkeys, too, that sell for $1.50. Little tea cakes, iced with holiday colors, and beautifully decorated fruit cakes are attracting buyers to this food-selling place.

The heavy snow of last Saturday was a heavy blow to the food-selling hopes of the farmers in the official farmers' market in Southwest Washington. The farmers who had poultry, eggs, vegetables and other foods ready in their stands for Saturday selling lost heavily as a result of frozen produce, and have spent days in re-establishing themselves. But again their hopes are high for a share in the Christmas profit in the local food market. Poultry, eggs, potatoes, fruits, vegetables, home-canned foods, cider, mincemeat, pumpkins and other foods are ready for the housewives' inspection.

This retail corner is an especially good place for buying Christmas greens—in bunches, by the bushel, in wreaths, in festoons by the yard—at very low cost, for the holly and other Christmas greens brought in by the farmers are trucked from their nearby homes at small expense to themselves.

As Christmas nears the cost of Christmas trees lessens, and in this Southwest district, where the buying and selling of Christmas trees occupies large parts of city blocks, the cost is as small as the Meanderer has been able to find anywhere.

Daughter of Noted Southern Spy Dies

Belle Boyd Was Mother of Mrs. B. S. H. Mowery, Former Actress.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 21.—Mrs. B. Swainston Hammond Mowery, former actress and daughter of Belle Boyd, Confederate spy, of Martinsburg, died Friday at her home in New York City.

Mrs. Mowery was born at Syracuse, N. Y., educated in convents in Chicago and Indianapolis and in private schools. At 17 she was married to Joseph P. Williams, with whom she lived in the South and West. After his death she became an actress and appeared in "Milk White Flag" and later in "The Little Minister" under direction of Charles Frohman. In 1908 she was married to Harold W. Mowery, from whom she was divorced in 1920. She had lived in New York for 30 years.

She was the daughter of Belle Boyd and the latter's second husband, Col. John S. Hammond, Union officer, King Edward, when Prince of Wales, attended the Hammond-Boyd wedding. Mrs. Mowery and a sister, Mrs. Isabel Michael, visited here several years ago while endeavoring to have her mother's remains removed from Wisconsin to the Boyd family burial plot in a local cemetery.

Mellwood Clubwomen To Spread Jail Cheer

Inmates of the Prince Georges County jail and almshouse will have a brighter Christmas through the efforts of the Mellwood Women's Club, which plans to visit both institutions with packages of candy, nuts and tobacco.

In addition, the club will hold Christmas exercises at the living Christmas tree on the courthouse lawn, and plans to distribute toys to needy children in the community. Mrs. R. Ernest Smith, chairman of the welfare committee, has appealed for toys, books and dolls to be given away. Mrs. Frank P. Scrivener is in charge of the Christmas tree celebration, which will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Women Prisoners Make Dolls for Needy Children

The busy hands of women prisoners at the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., have fashioned 500 dolls which will bring Christmas gladness to 500 children, inmates in District charitable institutions.

One hundred of the dolls already have been distributed among children in the Gallinger Municipal Hospital. Doll making is a new industrial activity at the penal institution.

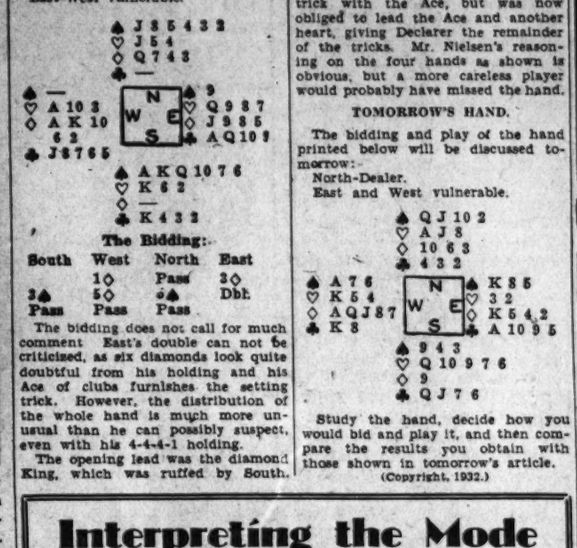
A RARE END-PLAY

AN unusual type of end-play is one where a player, by deft manipulation, avoids leading a suit in which he has two unpleasant three-card combinations in each hand. Mr. Isak Nielsen, of Oslo, Norway, recently executed a play of this kind when it was obviously the only possible manner in which he could fulfill his contract.

West—Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.



The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
	1◇	Pass	2◇
Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding does not call for much comment. East's double can not be criticized, as six diamonds look quite doubtful from his holding and his Ace of clubs furnishes the setting trick. However, the distribution of the whole hand is much more unusual than he can possibly suspect, even with his 4-4-4-1 holding.

The opening lead was the diamond King, which was ruffed by South. Declarer immediately led a club and ruffed in Dummy, after which he returned a spade to his own hand. He now cross-ruffed three clubs and two diamonds, and found the lead placed in Dummy. To play the Queen of diamonds and ruff at this point seemed the logical play, but it was apparent to Mr. Nielsen that this placed too much of a premium on the location of the Queen of hearts. He therefore led the Queen of diamonds, discarding the heart deuce from his own hand. West won the trick with the Ace, but was now obliged to lead the Ace and another heart, giving Declarer the remainder of the tricks. Mr. Nielsen's reasoning on the four hands as shown is obvious, but a more careless player would probably have missed the hand.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North-Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

WITH the definite shortening of the center front of the evening gown by any number of the Haute Couture, evening shoes are important again. Not that they ever became anything ordinary—but not long ago it sufficed if an evening shoe was well shaped and well made, and matched the dress in crepe or satin. Now the little foot that peeps from under the front hem of the evening gown seems to be more conspicuously framed by the drape of the skirt—and consequently demands more art in itself.

The new evening slippers must fit either the color or the period of the gown—if the gown is a period idea. Square toed evening slippers are seen again—with appropriate gowns—and charming they are on the long, slender foot!

• • • •

The coque feather boa for evening wear is the last word in feather chic. The reason for the particular popularity of this feather is because in white it is so utterly white—in black so glisteningly black. The feather boa is worn as contrast—usually, white on black, black on white.

• • • •

And the colorful scarf made of assembled colored ribbons sewn by hand onto a foundation of silk net are delightful—a Christmas gift idea, that, even if you have to sew the ribbons on by machine to save time. The scarves are slender and the ribbons narrow—and no lining! just the pleasingly combined colors of the ribbons on the net.

• • • •

The beach hat of the moment is being developed in dress materials, without a doubt—that is Palm Beach, of course. The straw men won't like that so much! But Miladi has found the cloth hat more flattering, and that is that!

• • • •

Have you any idea how helpful is our leaflet on how to wrap and seal Christmas gifts, and how to make Christmas boxes? Better send for it, as there is still time—because there are millyuns of suggestions in it for making your Christmas gifts look ever so much more attractive. Probably you can use a lot of things that are around the house, too. A stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post will bring you this leaflet, and, if you wish, add a special delivery stamp so that the leaflet will be sure to get to you in time.

Au revoir!

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE Radio Manufacturers Association soon will be numbered among the many prominent trade organizations maintaining headquarters at the National Capital. The R. M. A. officers in January will be moved from their present location at Chicago to Washington, in charge of Bond Geddes, executive vice president and general manager of the association.

Many immediate and important interests of manufacturers before Congress and elsewhere in the National Capital as well as Washington's central and administrative facilities caused the association's board of directors to decide on removal of headquarters to the Capital.

The legislative and other Capital interests, as well as its other functions, will be managed by Mr. Geddes, although a Chicago office also will be retained. Mr. Geddes is well equipped from long experience to handle radio legislation and other official interests in Washington. He is a member of the bar of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, and during many years' experience as chief of the Capital staff of the Associated Press at Washington and also as manager of the Washington bureau of the United Press Association, has an intimate working knowledge and wide acquaintance here.

FRANK D. SCOTT, Washington attorney, formerly a member of Congress from Michigan, has resigned as legislative counsel of the Radio Manufacturers Association.

"With regret his resignation has been accepted by the board of directors," Mr. Geddes said, "in order that Mr. Scott can give more time to private law practice, especially before the Federal Radio Commission."

As chairman of the committee in the House having to do with radio, Mr. Scott had charge of many laws developing broadcasting, including the present radio act.

"THE Animal Kingdom," the new screen play which will open the RKO-Roxy Theater in Radio City, will be featured in the Hollywood-on-the-Air program (WRC, 12:30 p. m.).

Ann Harding, Leslie Howard, William Gargan, Neil Hamilton, Ilka Chase, Myrna Loy and Henry Stevenson, who play leading parts in the picture, will be heard on the air.

This film will open the New Year at the local RKO Theater, according to present plans.

Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta" will be presented by the Aborn Opera Co. in the Five Star Theater production (WJSV, 10 o'clock) tonight. The principal parts will be sung by Roy Cropper, Edward Nell, jr., Vivian Hart, Eulalie Young, Laura Ferguson, Hal Ford and William Philbrick.

Two compositions by the Washington composer-pianist, Greta Lorieberg von Beyer—"Lullaby" and "Purple Asters"—will be included in the program of Frances Gutelius, pianist, tonight (WMAL, 8:30 o'clock).

PITTS SANBORN, commentator of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, would, doubtless, be more than justified in using superlatives in describing the orchestra's playing, but he seemed to be employing unusually fancy verbiage in appraising the performances of individual musicians who, during the intermission recently, played a few bars so that listeners might know what the different instruments sounded like by themselves.

After the oboe demonstration, Mr. Sanborn (who, by the way, pronounces "oboe" "oh boy") said: "Superb!" When the trumpet player had finished his little stunt, Sanborn exclaimed, "Still more magnificent!"

After the trombone player had obliged by letting the audience hear what a trombone (which James Whitcomb Riley once called "the horn that swallows itself") sounded like, Mr. Sanborn declared, "Most stirring!"

Finally, after the tuba player had descended to a tone depth lower than any bass you ever heard sing "Asleep in the Deep," Mr. Sanborn commented, "A truly majestic demonstration!"

A RUMOR filters through that President Hoover lately has been considering the appointment of a successor to Gen. Saltzman on the Radio Commission, a vacancy which has existed for about six months. The general theory has been that the President did not make the appointment shortly after the vacancy occurred because he desired to cut the commission down from five to three members.

Ronald Dawson and the Northern Dramatic Co., in cooperation with Carter Barron and Eddy Gilmore, of the Fox Theater, will present an adaptation of "Cynara" (WOL, 7:30 p. m.). The film, starring Ronald Colman and Kay Francis, will be shown at the Fox, beginning Friday.

Baron Munchausen will reveal his plans for Christmas (WRC, 10 o'clock) tonight.

What Holland is doing to overcome the economic inroads upon its commerce will be explained by W. P. Montyn, consul general for the Netherlands (WRC, 11:15 p. m.). Cesare Sodero and his concert orchestra will be heard in a program of Dutch music.

One of the following nine girls will be selected this afternoon for regular appearance with Barnee and his Riviera Orchestra, a Maxim Lowe unit playing at the Shoreham: Geraldine Furlong, Madeline Sheppard, Mary Stevenson, Marjorie Oglesby, Eileen Weber, Nadine Brownfield, Joan Marr, Adele Harris and Mildred Cherot.

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL

THE week before Christmas being what it is—a preparatory period for special yuletide bills, twisted schedules, elaborate premieres and the like — the most important thing, no doubt, is to get the record straight. So—

Bebe Daniels.

A special preview performance of "Silver Dollar" will be given in honor, and under the auspices, of the Colorado State Society of Washington at Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater tonight at 8:45 o'clock. Admission will be by invitation, the regular public run of the picture beginning tomorrow, December 23, under the customary house policy.

The story of "Silver Dollar" concerns itself with the events attending the silver stampede to Colorado and the consequent historical development of the State and its leading cities. This expansive canvas provides the background of a film play that particularly interests itself in the colorful career of a noted American figure. The principal role is played by Edward G. Robinson, with Bebe Daniels picturesquely cast in the feminine role of chief importance.

The Colorado Society's committee in charge of arrangements for tonight's premiere includes Senator Edward P. Costigan, Senator Carl Schuyler, Representatives William B. Eaton, Guy U. Hardy and Edward T. Taylor, Mrs. Mabel Huston and the Messrs. E. E. Fuller, Frederick Lincoln, E. M. Thomas and Clifford E. Roop.

Among the 500 Coloradoans, in addition to those named, who have signified their intention of attending tonight's performance, may be mentioned Senator-elect Adams, Robert J. Grant, Director of the U. S. Mint; James Grafton Rogers, Assistant Secretary of State; Charles R. Small, Assistant to Attorney General; Hon. Frank J. Gardner, Theodore Joslin, secretary to President Hoover; Richard Jervis, chief, White House Secret Service; Commander John F. Shafroth, Gen. Carl Rucker, Thomas R. MacDonald, chief, U. S. Bureau Public Roads, and Stanley E. Hornbeck, State Department.

It should be noted that, in view of the extraordinary circumstances surrounding tonight's special screening of "Silver Dollar," Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Nancy Carroll and Lilyan Tashman, in "Scarlet Dawn," in conjunction with the special football reel of the game between the University of Southern California and Notre Dame, will be presented for the last time today, beginning at 3 o'clock. With the conclusion of the 3 o'clock performance, at approximately 5, the house will be closed in preparation for the gala goings-on three hours later.

It should be borne in mind, also, that the RKO-Keith Theater is breaking in a new bill for a three-day run, beginning this morning.

The feature is "The Sport Parade," in which the principal roles are played by Joel McCrea, Marian Marsh, William Gargan, "Skeets" Gallagher and numerous others.

Although said to have been something of a problem to the picture's producers, the creation of "woman interest" in "The Sport Parade" has been cleverly contrived. Miss Marsh, one of the younger beauties of the screen, is early placed in a situation well calculated to stimulate the imagination of both sexes—a three-cornered situation, if you must know all the details, sometimes referred to as a triangle. By virtue of unique treatment, this triangular romance is engaging the enthusiastic interest and approval of as many women as men, even if the title is 99 44-100 per cent male.

Now, if you would care for a mess of chatter from the publicity manufactory operated by Loew's Fox Theater, probably the first item would be that the doors at Loew's Fox will not open until 11:45 o'clock Saturday morning of this week for the showing of "Cynara" and its surrounding program, by reason of the annual Central Union Mission children's party to be held earlier on that day.

Each year the mission invites approximately 1,500 needy children to the Fox and presents them with stockings filled with toys, articles of clothing and candy. This is a rite that naturally defers the presentation of the regular program, and one, incidentally, that will neither be slighted nor hurried this Christmastime.

Then there is the item of juvenile entertainment to be taken into consideration. So that there will be a plentiful sprinkling of features for the youngsters, the program will embrace a Mickey Mouse cartoon comedy, "Mickey's Good Deed," and, as part of the stage show, "Gautier's Toy Shop," in which most of the performers are dogs and ponies.

And if you are worried about Phil Lampkin's overture, it will be Rubinstein's familiar "Kamennoi Ostrow," with special scenic and lighting effects worked out by Mr. Lampkin and the Fox electrical staff.

Then, to cap all this, on Christmas night—or rather on Monday morning—beginning at exactly 12:01 a. m., a Christmas midnight performance will be given as a means of crowding in the first celebration of the legal Monday holiday accruing to the Capital's workers from a Sabbath Christmas. The entire bill—screen, stage and orchestra—will be presented, the regular scale of admissions will be charged and no seats will be reserved.

Reverting to "Silver Dollar" for a moment, the special Christmas attraction to be shown in conjunction with this feature at the Met will be a novel Vitaphone cartoon, "The Shanty Where Santa Claus Lives," a comedy song-cartoon, built about the exciting experiences of a little street urchin, who is taken by Santa Claus to his home in Toyland, where he discovers a child's Paradise amidst an array of the funniest toys you have ever seen, so Mr. La Falce tells me.

At Loew's Columbia, "Hook and Ladder," an "Our Gang" comedy, will be the special Christmas attraction, to add a seasonal touch to the bill that is featured by Victor McLaglen and Greta Nissen in "Rackety Rax," which sounds more like Halloween, if you ask us!

Bursting into a blaze of Christmas gayety after a period of several weeks of darkness, the Rialto Theater will come back to life on Christmas Day, Sunday, with Boris Karloff and Zita Johann the principal figures in another of Mr. Karloff's weird exhibits of the intricacy of make-up, called "The Mummy," concerning which, and the difficulty of its making, this column not so long ago ran an extended piece, largely extolling Mr. Karloff's patience in permitting himself to be converted into a life-size mud pie!

All of which may be condensed into the succinct statement that by the time Christmas Day arrives, the attractions in the downtown first-run film houses will be about as follows: Metropolitan, Edward G. Robinson and Bebe Daniels, in "Silver Dollar;" Loew's Fox, Ronald Colman and Kay Francis, in "Cynara," and Lina Basquette headlining the vaudeville bill; RKO-Keith's, Lee Tracy and Lupe Velez, in "The Half Naked Truth;" Earle, William Powell and Joan Blondell, in "Lawyer Man," and the Tastyeast Jesters headlining the vaudeville bill; Rialto, Boris Karloff and Zita Johann, in "The Mummy;" Palace, Sylvia Sidney and Cary Grant, in "Madam Butterfly;" Columbia, Victor McLaglen and Greta Nissen, in "Rackety Rax."

At the National, the Christmas offerings will be "The Student Prince" and "Blossom Time," two of the most tuneful of modern operettas, to be shown three days each—the former with a Wednesday matinee, the latter Saturday—beginning Monday night, December 26. Each work is sung by its own specially selected cast of principals and each has been accorded a material investiture that is said to place these latest revivals quite on a par with the original productions that wrote important history into the record of the light musical stage in America.

Katharine Cornell has taken an option on the American rights for the production of "Venus and Adonis," by Andre Obey, the French playwright who wrote "Lucrece," in which she is now appearing. As with the latter tragedy, Obey found his story in a Shakespeare poem, Mr. Ray Henderson points out, but he has treated it in a style different from that employed in "Lucrece." Miss Cornell h not as yet decided to produce "Venus and Adonis," because, since it is a short play requiring only 50 minutes for performance, it is difficult to find a place for such a piece in the American Theater.

Today the theater and radio editors of the local press will sit in judgment on the finalists in Maxim Lowe's auditions out of which will come a feminine vocalist to be heard regularly with Bert Bernath's Orchestra in the Supper Club of the Shoreham and over the air.

The crowns of their heads will be shaved and the electric plates adjusted at 2 p. m., immediately following the death march of the last mile up to the loudspeaker mike.

May the Lord have mercy on their souls!

Always merry and bright, scattering sunshine all about—that's our motto!

Capital Lions to Give 100 Baskets to Families

Plans for the distribution of food baskets to 100 needy families on Christmas eve were made by the Washington Lions Club meeting in the Hotel Mayflower yesterday. Members of this committee include R. E. Myers, E. E. Farren, Pierre Bealer, William Loetsch, Henry Millard, Charles Krey, Charles Hillegeist, George Lewis and Arthur Heaton.

Columbia Players Repeat Success in Milne Comedy

Deft characterization, accompanied by considerable dramatic capability and originality, were displayed by the Columbia Players' cast last night in enacting A. A. Milne's clever comedy, "To Have the Honor," before a second night audience at the Wardman Park Theater.

It is the tale of a marital twain, severed for a time, and finally spliced by a jumble of circumstances. Both man and wife are delineated as master social humbugs and their propensity along that line brings about the reconciliating situation.

The entertainment of a pseudo-prince by the pretender widow of a hero of the wars brings about the clinching of the plot and provides the regaling main comedy. As the democratic prince and supposed playboy of a continental principality, S. Allen Foster is a distinct success.

Dorothea Lewis and Aurora Foston were exceptional in their roles. Others whose acting ballasted the entire production's undoubted success were Joe Bourne, Philip Cole, May Cole, Dorothy White, Mary Ellen Cato, B. A. P. Doehrer and Jane Garrick.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, K. C., is asked by Sir Simon Flaquer, a noted English solicitor, to defend Mrs. Paradine, who has been arrested for the murder of her husband, who had been blinded in the war and had been decorated with the V. C. Sir Simon tells Keane that Mrs. Paradine is a beautiful Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation in Copenhagen by an American diplomat, taken as a servant to America and later made her way to England. She'd married Maj. Paradine after the war. He agrees to handle the case and becomes immediately intensely interested in it.

Sir Malcolm is happily married to Gay, but when he calls on Mrs. Paradine at Holloway Jail he feels the strange fascination of his beautiful client. He is worried because Lord Horfield might be named as judge of the trial and endeavors to be friendly to him. He and Gay give a little dinner party to which they ask Lord and Lady Horfield. After the party Sir Malcolm studies a photograph of William Marsh, Col. Paradine's valet, and the idea occurs to him that the man who acted in so intimate a relation to his blind master might have had an opportunity to kill him. His plan of defense begins to take form in his mind.

Gay meets a Swedish painter, Baron Sedelsward, at the Flaquers' and he invites her to a private view of his paintings. Sir Malcolm decides to go to the exhibition when he learns that Sedelsward was acquainted with Mrs. Paradine. He asks the painter to dine with him that night.

Judy Flaquer, Gay's friend, suspects that Sir Malcolm is neglecting Gay because of his abnormal interest in his client. Lady Horfield also warns Keane to "look out" for his wife.

HE bent forward, gazing into Sir Simon's face with intent eyes.

"None that I know of."

"None! None! Very well! A point in your favor, but only negative. Realizing how little we had in hand for the defense, I've been searching ever since I came into the case for something that would help us. And naturally my mind's been dwelling on this William Marsh. We've already talked of that. I needn't recapitulate. I saw light at last, as I told you. Owing to circumstances, Marsh's proved devotion to Col. Paradine, and so on, it was obviously very difficult to connect Marsh with the crime in such a way as would carry any weight with a jury. My theory of a murder suggested, even demanded, by the victim gets over that. I saw my chance when I thought of it. I saw her chance. You must realize the possibilities such a defense contains. Yet I feel you're hanging back. I wouldn't see you this morning because I had to see her first and find out what her reaction would be to it."

"And what was it exactly?" Sir Simon interposed. "You said she was greatly impressed, and so forth. But what, in your opinion, was it exactly? It's important that I should know."

"Favorable! Favorable!"

"Favorable?"

"In the sense that she didn't turn it down. She saw its possibilities."

"Possibilities! Did she give you the impression that she thought such a murder was a conceivable fact?"

Sir Simon saw the usually exceptionally expressive face of his companion suddenly become blank, and its strange blankness recalled to him memories of the face of Mrs. Paradine.

"Yes!" said Keane.

And his voice to Sir Simon sounded blank.

Keane sat down again in his chair by Sir Simon and laid a hand on his arm. His manner had completely changed and the blank look had vanished from his face. He looked eager, persuasive, friendly, but there was determination about his lips.

"I know your record. The whole bar knows your record. You're a man of audacity. You don't boggle at trifles. In your time you've put up extraordinary fights for your clients. If you hadn't you wouldn't be where you are. We at the bar haven't forgotten the famous Morse libel case and your defense of Sir William Morse in that. We haven't forgotten the great gambling case in which you got off Capt. Satchell. Flaquer, you're the most audacious solicitor in London, and every one knows it. So why should you throw cold water over me when I come to you with a proposition that I confess is a startling one? Has it come to this that you won't subscribe to a defense unless you're absolutely convinced that you believe in it? Come, come, Flaquer! You and I are old hands in the law and we know that in these great legal fights lawyers have sometimes to compromise with their consciences. It's a battle of wits. We have to sharpen our weapons to a fine edge. Don't hold back because you're pursued by doubts. Neither of us knows who murdered Col. Paradine. We have to deal with the 'maybe.' And I'm convinced that my 'maybe' gives us our greatest, perhaps our only chance of winning this case. Say you agree! Leave the thing in my hands! And I swear to you that Mrs. Paradine shall go out of the Old Bailey a free woman."

Sir Simon received this outburst—for it was an outburst—in silence. Keane's allusions to the Morse libel case and the case of Capt. Satchell had evidently gone home to him. Keane realized that with a satisfaction that was pitiless.

"Leave it to me and I pledge you my word we shall win," he said to break the silence.

And, without knowing that he did it, he pressed his muscular fingers hard on Sir Simon's arm. Releasing his arm quickly, Sir Simon said:

"I don't think I lack audacity, but I like to know where I'm going. I wish you'd tell me something, Keane, as frankness—" a slightly embittered smile flicked over his lips—"is the order of the night. You asked me a leading question just now about Mrs. Paradine. Let me ask you one about William Marsh. You want to put up this defense. And I don't say it may not be the best we can find, given the circumstances. But do you believe that Marsh was the murderer of Col. Paradine?"

"I think it's quite possible," said Keane immediately, like a man in a hurry. "Given the colonel's acute misery and almost crazy irritation under his affliction, of which there will be ample evidence at the trial, I think it's quite conceivable. And as you talked just now about Mrs. Paradine being queer, let me tell you that Marsh is no ordinary individual either."

"That's true!" said Sir Simon, musingly. "And you actually got her to say she would go against Marsh? Did you—did you frighten her? Did you succeed in doing that?"

"I believe I made her realize thoroughly the very great danger of her situation. And I'm not sure, strange as it seems, that she had fully realized it before. Now she certainly does."

"Be quiet for a moment, please. I must give all my mind to this," said Sir Simon.

Keane's allusions to those two cases, the Morse and the Satchell cases, had touched him shrewdly, and they had been meant to touch him. He fully realized the pitiless feeling which had prompted Keane to that thrust. A man may know in the secret place where he often abides that certain of his less scrupulous actions have not been missed by his fellow men, but he does not care to be informed of that fact. And Sir Simon, who had not a little professional pride, resented Keane's remark about lawyers sometimes compromising with their consciences. It had seemed to draw him into a connection with Keane that in his present frame of mind, and having Gay in his thoughts, was very unpleasant to him. He understood why Keane had been prompted to this outburst but he couldn't forgive it, nevertheless.

"The Paradine case is becoming the very devil!" he thought. And, a rare thing with him who loved difficult cases, he began to wish he had never undertaken it.

And now this William Marsh business!

He dismissed thoughts of self, thoughts of the ethereal Gay, and concentrated on the case. He had a great belief in Keane's powers as an advocate, but he knew very well that if those powers were to have their fullest scope Keane must be allowed to take his own way, must even be given every encouragement in taking it. Like all strongly emotional men, Keane had his ups and downs. When he was up he was brilliant. But in moments of depression he seemed almost to wither. Opposition from his opponents in court often spurred him to his best efforts, but opposition behind the scenes from any one who was working with him was likely to have quite the contrary effect. This was a touch and go case.

Two women were in his mind. He visualized them both: Gay, with her wistful yet formerly joyous charm now tempered to a sadness which she tried to conceal by an abruptness occasionally by a brusqueness, not natural to her; Mrs. Paradine, with her fascinating pallor, her large silver gray eyes and primrose pale hair, her tall, very slim figure, long narrow white hands and serious simplicity or simulations of simplicity. They stood before him as enemies and seemed to say to him:

"For which of us do you stand? On whose side are you? Will you fight me—or for me?"

Gay against Mrs. Paradine—Mrs. Paradine against Gay! And the test! Sir Simon longed to put Keane to that test. Gay was his friend. He was fond of her. He admired, perhaps even loved her in an almost fatherly way. But Mrs. Paradine was his client. He had undertaken her cause. She was paying him to fight for her life. He had a tremendous duty towards her.

If—Keane might retire from the case. He was a man of strong temper. Opposition enforced it. A quarrel between him and Sir Simon, one pitting an obstinate will against the other, might lead to an explosion and Keane's retirement. And then possibly things would come right again between Gay and her husband. For once out of the case Keane would be cut off entirely from Mrs. Paradine. Their connection would automatically come to an end. Sir Simon was minded to strike a blow on behalf of Gay. The temptation was great.

But possibly a woman's life was at stake. And then he saw a woman's happiness, Gay's, set in the balance against a woman's life, Mrs. Paradine's. And he did not know what to do.

"Well!" Keane said. "Have you reached any conclusion?"

He spoke in a calm impersonal voice. His manner, Sir Simon thought, was the manner of a man holding himself well in hand.

"Suppose I can't go with you, Keane? Suppose I can't see my way to work with you on the lines you propose? What then?"

Keane's face changed, set itself in a stern expression.

"Do you mean that you reject my suggestion for the defense?"

"You spoke just now of compromising with conscience. Your implication seemed to be that I shouldn't have much difficulty in doing that."

"My dear Flaquer, I assure you I only meant—"

"One minute, Keane! But supposing that in this Paradine case I didn't see my way to compromise? Supposing that your suggestion for the defense seemed to me immoral?"

"How immoral?" Keane interjected defiantly.

"Wouldn't it be immoral to try to fix the guilt of a crime on a man one believed to be innocent?"

"I don't propose to do that. I suspect William Marsh. I strongly suspect him."

"You do! Very well. But suppose that I don't? Can you expect me to stand by and be responsible, with you, for a veiled attack, if it be veiled, on an innocent man? Do you expect me to make such a compromise with my conscience as that? Just now, though, to tell you the truth, you gave me the impression—I may be wrong, that, in putting up this defense you've thought of, you and I would be going hand in hand, into—what shall I call it?—into a conspiracy.

G. W. GRID TEAM TO PLAY TEN HOME GAMES IN 1933

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

JOE JACOBS expects to jar the paying public out of its indifference today with the announcement that Max Schmeling has signed to meet Max Baer next June with Jack Dempsey in the promotorial role.

Thus two challengers sidetrack the champion to engage in the summer's choicest pugilistic plum. Jack Sharkey, with insufficient popular favor to demand and gain a big gate with either Schmeling or Baer, will be on the sidelines in company with Madison Square Garden, which has likewise been given the frigid shoulder by Baer and Schmeling.

The fact that Baer has chosen to cast his lot with Schmeling instead of signing for a Sharkey bout is no pleasing commentary on the champion's drawing power. It is the first time in this department's memory that a heavyweight challenger has overlooked a championship chance to engage in a nontitular bout with another challenger. However, this column's long-shot prediction seven months before the bout is that Max will be the winner.

Ten Big Home Games Listed.

Washington football fans are beginning to realize dividends from their patronage at George Washington University's football games last season. The announcement of the Colonials' 1933 schedule this morning is gratifying, indeed.

Athletic Director Jim Pixlee could have done little better for Washington fandom. Every contest on the schedule is to be played at Griffith Stadium, which means ten home games for the Colonials, a feat in itself when the trials of schedule making are taken into consideration.

Clemson, Auburn, West Virginia Wesleyan, Tennessee, Washington and Jefferson, Tulsa and North Carolina State comprise an impressive list of opponents for the Colonials and undoubtedly is the most severe schedule ever undertaken by a local college.

This schedule for 1933 was made possible only by the patronage of Washington fans at last season's games, the receipts of which enabled George Washington to offer the guarantees that would interest ranking colleges.

Carlin to Capably Fill Fenlon's Shoes.

Even the graduation of Johnny Fenlon does not dim the prospects of George Washington's 1933 eleven. The shoes left vacant by Fenlon will be filled next season, and adequately, by the Colonials' captain-elect, Lee Carlin, who didn't play in any game last season due to a shoulder injury, but who is reckoned equally as brilliant a back.

Carlin will have the same company in the backfield that supported Fenlon, with the exception of Kriemelmeyer. As running mates there will be Doose, Baker, McCarver, Carter and the Parrish brothers. Pixlee is not bemoaning any lack of backfield talent with this septet available.

The Colonials' line may be even more trustworthy than the rock-ribbed forward wall of last season despite the loss of Slaird at tackle and Blackistone at center. Every member of the front-line defense will be on the firing line next fall and coming up from the freshman team will be a grist of worthy replacements.

Chief among the sophomore linemen of 1933 will be Sid Bolker, former Tech High tackle, already rated of varsity caliber, and Jumbo Denning, a center of a mere 215 pounds.

B. Didrikson Turns Pro Athlete

Will Write, Enter Film Work and, Maybe, Swim Channel.

Decision Ends Tiff With A. A. U. Over Amateur Status.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Dec. 21 (A.P.). — Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, the single-handed track team, announced tonight she was turning professional.

The 19-year-old Olympic star, suspended from amateur competition ten days ago by the Amateur Athletic Union because of the appearance of her name and picture in a motor car advertisement, said she would write, "do some film work" and wanted to swim the English Channel and the Hellespont after circumnavigating Manhattan Island as a tune-up.

And she declared matrimony was not under consideration, "at least for the present."

Wires Her Resignation To Secretary.

Miss Didrikson wired L. di Benedetto, secretary of the Southern A. A. U. at New Orleans, that "with kindest regards," she was leaving the organization.

Miss Didrikson said she hoped to write on sports and "perhaps other subjects," and do some film work.

"That has already been arranged," she said.

"Just by way of keeping myself in training, I am seriously considering taking up long-distance swimming in a big way. It is one branch of athletics I have not specialized in before. I became interested in it, seriously and for the first time, at the Olympic games. It awakened a latent ambition to do something real in that sphere.

"But I realize that I am too light in weight to withstand the gruelling endurance test of a long-distance swim. I want to swim around Manhattan Island, then do both the English Channel and the Hellespont. That means I'll have to put on some extra poundage. Quite a lot of it. For I weigh only 130 now.

Babe Goes to Heavy Eating.

John Russell Mason, organist.

"So I have already doubled my food intake. Until a week ago I'd been eating one real meal a day. My friends say I'm sure to lose my slim figure (they say it's slim), but if I do, I can get it back again. I've done more difficult things."

Miss Didrikson's wire to Mr. Di Benedetto said:

"Have definitely accepted some of many offers recently made me and therefore herewith formally withdraw from membership in and all further allegiance to Amateur Athletic Union. I cherish no feelings of ill will toward anyone. With kindest regards and all good wishes, sincerely yours, Mildred Babe Didrikson."

Heinie Miller Heads Boxing Referees' Group

Maj. Harvey L. (Heinie) Miller last night was elected president of the District Boxing Officials Association at the Jewish Community Center. At the same time Charlie Reynolds was named secretary and treasurer, and the following officials were approved: Denny Hughes, Eddie LaFond, Jim McNamara, Harry Child and Maj. Miller.

TOMMY PAUL WINS.

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 21 (A.P.)—Tommy Paul, National Boxing Association featherweight champion, outpointed Johnny Mitchell, of Detroit, in a tame ten-round feature bout on a charity card here tonight. Paul refused to extend himself at any time.

Pitt Defeat of Notre Dame Voted Outstanding Upset of Year in Nation-Wide Poll Greatest Individual Surprise Was Bill Carr's Three Triumphs Over Eastman; Vines' Victory Over Cochet Polled Many Votes.

(Following is another of a series of six stories of 1932 Associated Press poll on outstanding sports subjects.)

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Judging from the response to the Associated Press poll, 1932 was filled with one surprise after another for the Nation's sports experts, but the biggest shock of all was Pittsburgh's 12-to-0 upset of Notre Dame at a time when the Ramblers were being widely hailed as another "wonder team."

The panther conquest was voted the "surprise of the year" by 43 out of 143 responses to this feature of the second annual poll. Proof that the experts found it difficult all season to "dope" Notre Dame was revealed by the fact that fifteen other observers named the Ramblers' 21-to-0 victory over Army as the biggest upset. By the time Notre Dame got around to taking a beating from Southern California, the boys apparently were preserving an open mind on the outcome, for not a single vote was cast to include this result among the year's surprises.

Carr's Track Upsets Outstanding.

Individually, the outstanding upsets of 1932 were credited to Bill Carr, who caused a series of tremors on the Pacific Coast in the summer by beating the great Ben Eastman in three record-smashing foot races. The element of surprise, of course, diminished after Carr's first victory at 440 yards in the intercollegiate championships, but the University of Pennsylvania star received twenty votes altogether and clinched second place in the balloting.

The New York Yankees, already acclaimed as the year's outstanding team in any sport, sprang the biggest baseball upset by taking four straight from the Chicago Cubs in the world series. On the basis of the voting, the biggest Olympic surprises were Eddie Tolan's "double" in the sprints and the triumph of the Japanese men's swimming team over the United States. Ellsworth Vines' straight-set conquest of Henri Cochet in the final round of the American tennis championship singles was voted the leading tennis upset.

Results of the poll on outstanding upsets or surprises of 1932:

Pittsburgh's 12-0 football victory over Notre Dame, 43 votes.
Bill Carr's 3-foot racing triumphs over Ben Eastman, 20 votes.
Notre Dame's 21-0 defeat of Army in football, 15 votes.
New York Yankees' sweep of world series with Cubs, 11 votes.
Ellsworth Vines' defeat of Henri Cochet in United States tennis finals, 7 votes.
Eddie Tolan's double triumph over Metcalfe in Olympic dashes, 5 votes.
Victory of Japanese swimming team in Olympics, 5 votes.
Jack Sharkey's defeat of Max Schmeling for heavyweight title, 3 votes.
Defeat of Texas Christian by Southern Methodist in basket ball, 3 votes.
Jim Bausch's record-breaking victory in Olympic decathlon, 3 votes.
South Carolina's tie with Auburn in football, 2 votes.
Comeback of Chicago Cubs after Hornsby's release, 2 votes.
Ross Somerville's victory in United States amateur golf, 2 votes.
Failure of Gene Sarazen to qualify for P. G. A. championship, 2 votes.
Olin Dutra's sensational play in winning P. G. A. title, 2 votes.
Colgate's football record (unbeaten, untied, unscored on), 2 votes.
One vote each for the following: Cubs' collapse in world series, resignation of John McGraw as manager of the Giants after 30 years, failure of St. Louis Cardinals to finish in first division, play of Arnold Herber for Green Bay Packers in professional football, elimination of Gene Venzke and defeat of Frank Wykoff in Olympic trials, Ralph Hill's performance in nearly winning Olympic 5,000-meter race, Olin Dutra's finish, 68, 65, in Metropolitan open golf; Gene Sarazen's comeback in the last two rounds of United States open golf, downfall of New York Giants, victory of Kerry Patch in Belmont Futurity, Army's 66-0 defeat of Harvard in football, Virginia Van Wie's 10 and 8 victory of Glenna Collett Vare for national women's golf championship, Bates' scoreless tie with Yale, partial collapse of Philadelphia Athletics, Auburn's rise in Southern Conference football ranks.

TURNER MAT SHOW AIDS NEEDY

Garibaldi and Judson Match Is Feature of Card Tonight.

So that all may attend tonight's charity wrestling show at the Washington Auditorium, Promoter Joe Turner yesterday announced that all children up to 16 years of age may see tonight's bouts for the admission price of 2 cans or packages of foodstuffs. That a capacity crowd is in prospect was gleaned yesterday from the amount of the advance sale, one gratifying point of which was the fact that many women—who are ordinarily admitted free of charge—have purchased tickets to the bouts.

The show goes on at 8:30 o'clock.

The Christmas Basket Fund, of the District Police Department, is the charity concerned tonight. In an effort to make the event worth the while of wrestling fans, Turner has gathered six bouts that show promise of fireworks, and in one of these he will present himself.

Turner to Wrestle In Person.

Turner's return to the mat is awaited eagerly, particularly by the older wrestling fans of Washington, who used to flock to the Lyceum and the Gayety back in prewar days to watch Turner rassle everything from a black bear to Pinkie Gardiner, for the middleweight championship. Tonight, the 47-year-old veteran takes on Pete Moran, Cleveland middleweight, in a 30-minute bout.

Gino Garibaldi tops the card, meeting Frank Judson, former Harvard wrestling coach, in a finish match. Garibaldi is near the top of the heap in the mat game. Handsome to a degree, Garibaldi has a physique second to none among the heavies. He goes in for the rougher things of the mat, while Judson is more of a straight wrestler.

Coleman and Cox To Clash.

The semiwindup is as good as the final. It brings together 5-foot Abe Coleman, just one lump of muscle, and Joe Cox, a willing journeyman performer, whose ability to take it somewhat overshadows his science.

In the three remaining bouts Johan Richtoff, immense Swede, who holds both the last Olympic championships for wrestling, meets Floyd Marshall; Babe Caddock tangles with one Bruno Garasini and Ossie Nygren has to do with Willie Davis.

Tickets can be obtained until 6 o'clock at Turner's Annapolis Hotel office, and after that at the Auditorium.

MEEHAN HAS JOB.

New York, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—Brother Anselm, director of athletics at Manhattan College, announced tonight that John F. ("Chick") Meehan would continue as head football coach in 1933 "and for as many years after that as he wishes."

This announcement was made at Meehan's request in order to deny recent rumors that he was considering a shift to some other school.

BAER FACES SCHMELING IN JUNE

Yankee Stadium Held Likely Scene, Says German's Pilot.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (U.P.).—Max Schmeling, of Germany, former champion, and Maxie Baer, of California, third ranking heavyweight, will fight fifteen rounds in June, according to announcement tonight by Schmeling's manager, Joe Jacobs.

Jacobs declined to reveal other details regarding the bout, explaining that Jack Dempsey, promoter, would make the complete announcement tomorrow.

Dempsey Likely To Promote.

However, it is understood that the battle will be held at Yankee Stadium, under the auspices of the New York Milk Fund. Former Champion Dempsey has been conferring with representatives of the fund and with Jacobs and Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, regarding the fight.

Schmeling is in Germany, but is expected to arrive next month for a Nation-wide exhibition tour with Dempsey. After that he will go into training for the Baer fight.

Ben Eastman to Join Track Tour Abroad

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Ben Eastman, runner-up to Bill Carr in the Olympic 400-meter final, tentatively has accepted an invitation to join the United States track and field team which will tour Europe next summer.

Eastman told Amateur Athletic Union officials he would be glad to join the squad provided he could return to this country in time to start a postgraduate course at Stanford University.

BOYS' CLUB WINS.

In the rough and tumble game the Boys' Club Big Five beat the Sport Marts last night, 32-20, at the Boys' Club. The game resembled an Alumni-Varsity contest, since most of the Sport Marts once played with the Boys' Club.

United Typewriter Grays will clash with the Olmsted Grill five tonight at 9:30 at Central High.

Old Line Five Opens With Wisconsin

Dr. Meanwell Brings Formidable Team Here Tonight.

Chase, Snyder, Vincent, Buscher and Yowell Start.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S basket ball team opens its season with something strongly resembling a bang tonight at Ritchie Coliseum at 8:30 o'clock, by entertaining the University of Wisconsin in one of the most ambitious intersectional court contests ever attempted here.

Coached by the redoubtable Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, greatest figure in basket ball, Wisconsin comes to Maryland with three or four games already under its belt and hungry for another. Maryland, with a younger and smaller squad, has yet to play this year but is full of hope that it will be able to start right in where the two teams left off last year in Wisconsin. Maryland was within a hair's breadth of winning, only to be nosed out by a single basket in the overtime period.

Old Liners Without Berger.

The Old Liners will have to function tonight for the first time in three years without Bozie Berger, Eddie Ronkin, Jack Norris, Charlie May and a few others who carried Maryland basket ball to the Southern Conference championship and other notable conquests. Tonight's opening line-up consists of Bucky Buscher, a regular guard last year; Rufus Vincent, reserve center last year, and Spider Chase, part-time regular last year. Snyder and Yowell, newcomers, complete the squad.

Chase is being counted upon heavily to give Maryland the scoring punch it will need. Chase's main difficulty last year was lack of stamina, and tonight's battle should prove whether the weakness has been carried over into this season.

Yowell Starts at Guard.

Roy Yowell, the only sophomore on the team, is a local boy who went to Western High. His improvement has been marked at Maryland, under the careful training of Jack Faber and Burt Shipley. He may be the dark horse in tonight's hectic proceedings.

Wisconsin must be a very great team this year. Four of the boys are sophomores, having supplanted four veterans who were part of the team that beat the Maryland outfit last year. Notable among those relegated to the bench in favor of newer and better material is Dick Rewey, high point scorer in the game last year.

The line-up follows:

No.	Wisconsin.	Pos.	Maryland.	No.
9	Hamann	F	Yowell	53
17	Smith	F	Chase	45
15	McDonald	C	Vincent	69
21	Ryckman	G	Snyder	57
10	Miller	G	Buscher	59

Wisconsin reserves—Poser (19), Knake (5), Wichman (12), Rewey (13), Bender (25), Oakes (8).
Maryland reserves—George Walker (35), Fred Stieber (39), George Weber (49), Warren Evans (55).

Southworth Is Signed As Coach by Giants

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Billy Southworth, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cardinal farms at Rochester and Columbus, has signed on as coach with the New York Giants for the 1933 season, the ball club announced today.

Tom Clark, former major league catcher, also has signed as coach for another year. Officials of the club said. Southworth, former Giant outfielder, was a roommate of Bill Terry, now manager of the club, during his playing days here.

Japanese Are Improved Ball Players, Says O'Doul

Soon to Be Ready for International Series; Pro League Need of Island; Berg Completes Trip Around World.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Back from a three-month trip to the Orient, where he helped coach Japanese in the finer points of baseball, Frank ("Lefty") O'Doul believes the people in the Land of the Rising Sun have so absorbed the technique of the American pastime they soon will be ready for international competition.

The rangy Brooklyn outfielder, who led the National League batsmen this year, returned today with several associates aboard the Chichibu Maru. With O'Doul were Ted Lyons, Chicago White Sox pitcher, and Herb Hunter, former major leaguer. The trio, with Moe Berg, Washington catcher, conducted a coaching school at six Japanese colleges, making up the "Big Six" League.

O'Doul Teaches Art Of Hitting.

With the assistance of interpreters and the sign language, O'Doul tutored the Japanese in the art of slamming out base hits and handling the duties of the outfield. Lyons lent his experience toward polishing the pitching department while Berg took the backstop men in hand.

O'Doul says the Japanese are weak as hitters, but outstanding as fielders. Lyons thinks the pitchers are further advanced than the rest of the players. Berg, who left his associates in Japan to make a world tour by way of the opposite return route, found the catchers excelled in fielding, but lacked initiative in the directing of the team.

"The Japanese play baseball in mechanical fashion," O'Doul said, "but they are hard to beat, nevertheless. Their improvement since my visit a year ago was amazing. All they need now is professional ball. As it is, they only play amateur baseball, confined to their college days. If probali could gain a foothold, the Japanese could give us a run for the money."

Lyons Finds Pitchers Set in Ways.

Lyons, leading twirler for the White Sox in 1932, said he was surprised at the speed and curve balls of his charges, but his efforts to change them from "a set system" was practically useless.

"Some time or somehow they got the idea to throw a high one, inside, with the count two and two," Lyons said. "The batter always knows what is coming."

Hunter, making his eighth round trip to Japan on a baseball mission, recalled that crowds of from 65,000 to 67,000 fans turned out for games this year, comparable to world's series crowds in the United States.

The coaching schools were conducted at the six leading educational institutions, Waseda, Hose, Meji, Rikkio, Imperial and Keio.

Each college squad was given about 40 lessons. Members of the royal family, including Prince Chichibu, attended many of the workouts.

A's Acquire Pitcher From Portland Club

Philadelphia, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics announced today they had acquired the services of William Dietrich, right-hand pitcher of the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League. In the deal the A's turned over to Portland Pitcher Joseph Bowman and Infielder Albert Reiss. Bowman was with Portland the latter part of last season on option and was returned to the A's when the season ended. Reiss came to the Athletics last summer from Seton Hall.

Carolinians Slated to Be Thanksgiving Foe Here.

Six Difficult Games to Be Played Without "Breather."

By BOB CONSIDINE.

MADE up entirely of local games, George Washington University's 1933 football schedule was announced last night by Head Coach Jim Pixlee. It lacks three games of completion, and two of its announced contests are still tentative, but even in its still skeletonized form it shapes up as the greatest array of football talent ever brought here by one college in one season.

The schedule:

September 30—Open.
October 7—Open.
October 13—Clemson (night).
October 21—Auburn.
October 27—West Virginia Wesleyan (tentative) (night).
November 4—Tennessee.
November 10—Washington and Jefferson (night).
November 17—Tulsa (night).
Thanksgiving Day—North Carolina State (tentative).

When completed, there will be 10 games, all local, one more than last year, when the team established a record of 6 wins, 2 losses and 1 tie in its first year in big league competition. To date only one team which was met last season will be played again next year, Tulsa, which will be played here on the night of November 17 in the fourth annual contest between the two schools.

Westminster May Get Date Again.

However, Westminster College, of New Wilmington, Del., a good "breather," as proven by a 28-0 victory over it this past season, probably will secure one of the three dates which remain blank on the Colonial schedule.

The only surprise of the announced list proved to be the Thanksgiving date, where preference seems to have been given to North Carolina State, not heretofore mentioned in schedule rumors.

There is a six-game period in the center of the schedule which looms as nearest to a "suicide schedule" ever seen in this section of the country. For six successive weeks there is not a breathing spell as Clemson, Auburn, West Virginia Wesleyan, Tennessee, Washington and Jefferson and Tulsa roar in and out of Griffith Stadium. Unless North Carolina pulls an "Auburn" and trebles its ability overnight, the final game of G. W.'s season does not seem likely to uphold the caliber of the rest of the schedule.

Both the West Virginia Wesleyan and North Carolina State games are expected to be closed today.

The Colonials have material galore to hurl against the array of visiting colleges. With the possible exception of his ends, Coach Pixlee will have a team next year as brilliant in the back field as the one this year, and

GILBERT RIDES 3 WINNERS AND MILLS 2 AT JEFFERSON PARK

Rivals Divide First Four Races

Mills, Now 7 Down, Brings 26-1 Shot Home in Third.

Feature Race Landed by Gold Step in Hard Drive.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, New Orleans, Dec. 21.—After Johnny Gilbert and Hank Mills, battling for the national jockey crown, had accounted for the first four races on the card here today with two victories each, their monoply of the spotlight was temporarily halted in the Loyola Handicap, six-furlong headline attraction. It was won by Gold Step, owned by Mrs. S. N. Fairbanks and piloted by Melvin Lewis.

Mills' family was here to watch him perform this afternoon and it was given no joy when Gilbert completed a triple astride the heavily played Zone in the sixth. As neither of the rivals won in the seventh, the day's work netted Gilbert a gain of one over Mills, making his total 201 victories to 194 for the latter.

Gilbert thus became the first American rider since 1927 to bring home 200 winners in a season. Back in 1927, L. Hardy rode 207 winners, a mark that the young Kansan is seriously threatening, and three years before Ivan Parke sent 104 winners past the judges' stand.

Gold Step Game In Feature.

Gold Step was first in action in the feature and dashed right to the front, but the lightly regarded Modesto rushed up and stuck with the ultimate winner for three furlongs after which Gold Step started to draw away. Modesto quit after half a mile and Hillsborough, which had kept fairly close up, became the chief challenger. Gold Step swerved slightly in the final furlong but held his advantage gamely. Hoops closed well to beat Protractor for the show. Hillsborough was second.

Gilbert rode Drombo to a galloping victory in the curtain raiser. Drombo, paying $4.60, scored by six lengths over Doris B., with Well Shod another half-length behind. Drombo overtook the fast but faint-hearted Nomin around the bend and drew far clear through the stretch to win as Gilbert pleased.

Mills Rides Two Winners In Row.

Mills came back with the next two winners. He brought The Spaniard home first in the second in handy fashion and then gave his followers plenty of cause for cheer by booting home Prince Canbar, paying $54.80 for $2, in the third. Gilbert refused to let Mills outshine him and the afternoon's seesaw battle continued at fever pitch when Johnny helped himself to a double by scoring on El Puma in the fourth. After Gilbert completed his triple on Zone in the fifth, both riders called it a day.

The Spaniard paid $6.60 in the second. Blighter took the place a length and a half back and five lengths before Surly. The latter, after appearing to have scant chance with the break, made up a world of ground once in her stride. Mills rated The Spaniard close up to the turn for home, where his mount dashed to the front and held Blighter under control to the end.

Prince Canbar, the longest-priced winner of the day, scored by a length and a half from another outsider, Kentucky Moon, in the third, while Red Fellow, with Gilbert up, was a close third. Mills rated the winner close to the leaders for six furlongs. He then asked the gelding to run and the Prince gamely forged ahead and survived a duel through the final stages.

El Puma and Gilbert Cop In Sixth.

El Puma's triumph in the fourth was Gilbert's 200th of the year. Try It was second, beaten a neck, while Sandwrack accounted for the show. Mills was fourth with Blue Law, which failed in his attempt to record five straight. El Puma lacked early foot and did not respond to Gilbert's urging until approaching the stretch turn. He then wore down Try It in a hard drive. Sandwrack had no trouble beating the heavily weighted Blue Law. The winner paid $6.60.

The heavily played Zone in the sixth event increased Gilbert's lead over Mills to seven in the sixth. Zone was considerably the best, beating Logwood by three lengths to pay $7.00. Morsnuff was a good third. Butch and Chipola cut out the pace until tiring in the stretch, where zone easily picked them up and drew away.

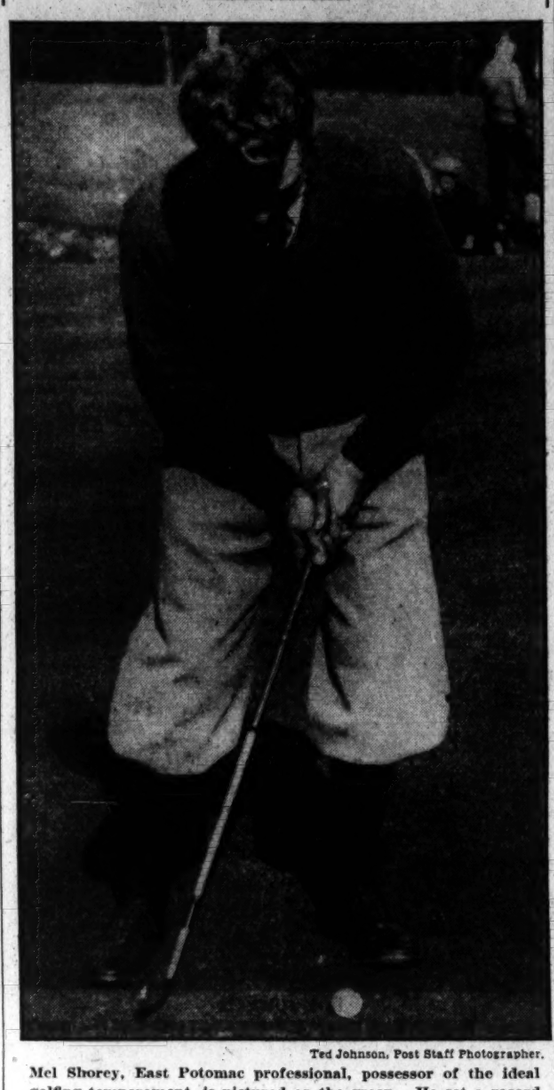
Skill and Luck Aid Jones

Mel Shorey Recalls Bobby's Great Spoon to Green; Atlantan Profited as Ball Skipped Across Lake.



Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

Mel Shorey, East Potomac professional, possessor of the ideal golfing temperament, is pictured on the green. He set a record in putting in 1925 by taking only 28 one putts out of 36 holes.

(Herewith is the twenty-sixth of The Post's series of golf articles by professionals of the Washington clubs.)

By MEL SHOREY
(East Potomac Professional).
As Told to Dave Herman, Post Staff Golf Writer.

IF YOU have ever watched Bobby Jones play his shots, you could not help but notice how cool, calm and, at the same time, determined he is. His sole aim is to get the little white ball to its objective, and he is putting his heart and soul into every shot. He has perfect golf temperament. That is why Bobby Jones has won so many famous championships and is considered the greatest golfer of all time.

In the 1930 national open championship at Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis, I saw Jones play several shots that were as spectacular as any I have ever seen. They were shots that demanded study, deep concentration and cool nerves. But Bobby had everything.

One of the shots was made on the thirteenth hole in the final round. Jones had hooked his drive into the rough. His lie was close. The pin was in a difficult position on the green, on the edge, close to a trap.

Bobby took his stance. He was 230 yards away. He used a spoon, which is one of his favorite clubs next to Calamity Jane (putter). Bobby whaled into the ball. It soared straight in the direction of the pin, had enough carry to ride over the green and hit a foot from the pin, running 2 feet past. A remarkable shot. Jones got his birdie.

Jones won the championship with a 287 total, outdistancing MacDonald Smith by two strokes.

On the ninth hole—a par 5 of some 500 yards—in a previous round the unruly crowd, swarming in from all sides, caused Jones to half top his brassie second after he had made a beautiful drive short of the lake. The ball skimmed across the lake and landed about 50 yards short of the green. He took a number four and did a pitch and run, planting his approach within a few inches of the pin for a birdie four.

That second shot, which turned out lucky for Jones, did not affect his third, which he played so masterfully.

Back in 1925, at Columbia Country Club, in the sectional qualifying test for the P. G. A. championship I discovered that perfect nerve control and steadiness meant everything in golf. I had 28 one-putt greens out of the 36 holes. There were putts that ranged from 40 to 5 feet. I refused to let the lon: ones worry me, and considered them no harder than the short ones. Every time I would sink a putt on a green I felt confident I could duplicate the shot on the next.

GREENLEAF WINS CUE CROWN

Champ Beats Natalie and Ponzi Downs Rudolph.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Ralph Greenleaf, the "boy wonder" of 15 years ago, tonight won his eleventh national pocket billiard title when Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, fighting for a tie for second place, defeated Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, 125 to 78, in 28 innings.

The defeat, Rudolph's second in eight games, eliminated any chance the 1930 title-holder had of tying for the championship in the final game with the defending champion tomorrow night.

Greenleaf won his eighth consecutive game this afternoon, defeating Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago, 125 to 57, in eighteen innings with new tournament high run record of 106. If Greenleaf turns back Rudolph in the final match, there will be a three-way tie for second place between Rudolph, Ponzi and Young Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del. Ponzi and Caras lost three of their nine tournament games.

Champ Minus 23 Prior To 106 Run.

Greenleaf put together his record run in the sixteenth inning after failing to score in the first 15 frames and losing 23 points by scratches, 15 of them a penalty for 3 successive ones. With the champion held scoreless for 50 minutes, Natalie piled up 41 points, largely as the result of a high run of 28 in the first inning.

Greenleaf completed the game in the eighteenth inning with an unfinished run of 42.

Pa. and N. Y. May End Boxing Pact

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 21 (U.P.).—Abrogation of the working agreement between the State boxing commissions of Pennsylvania and New York was suggested today by Harry T. Farrell, chairman of the commission of this State.

The move came as part of the failure of the New York commission to concur with the Pennsylvania board in the barring by the latter of Stanley Poreda, a New Jersey heavyweight. It had been held that Poreda had attempted to "fix" a bout involving himself and George Godfrey, huge Negro boxer. Usually one commission acts in sympathy with the other. The New York commission approved a proposed bout between Poreda and Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, despite the Pennsylvania ban when Madison Square Garden, sponsor of the bout, showed that articles for the meeting, antedated the suspension. Since then the bout was postponed on Schaaf's request because of a lip split while in training.

SCHOOL GRID STARS PLAY FOR NEEDY

Picked D. C. Team to Play in Baltimore New Year's Day.

WASHINGTON schools yesterday received 20,000 tickets to the New Year's Day game at the Baltimore Stadium between an all-District high school football team and a similar combination now being gathered together in Baltimore. Admission to the game, which Baltimore American Legion officials believe will draw 50,000 spectators, is three cans of foodstuffs, or two cans of coffee, or a piece of silver money.

All proceeds, food and otherwise, will be turned over to the Baltimore poor.

Orrel Mitchell, sports coach at Gonzaga High and rated among the best of the high school football mentors in this region, has consented to mould the local team out of the volunteers for service. Practice will start next Tuesday afternoon at Central High, and be conducted there daily for the remainder of the week.

Tech Players Missing.

The following youths will play for Washington: Backs—Keegin and Joe Mills (Eastern), Hilleary and Teehan (Western), Sweeney, Donohue and Carr (Gonzaga), and Simons (St. John's); ends—Banjamin (Eastern), Nye (Western), Council (St. John's) and Rosenberger (Devitt); tackles—Gibbins and Pistolas (Central), Campbell (Eastern), Bruno (St. John's), Mather (Devitt) and Gammage (Western); guards—Kocsis (Central), Wolfe (Eastern), Dunnington (Gonzaga); center—Lewis (Eastern).

Baltimore's team will be chosen from among players of Poly, City College, Southern, Forest Park, Calvert Hall, Loyola, Mount St. Joe, Friends, Gilman and McDonough. The team will be coached by "Pop" Goddard.

Players of the winning team will receive golf medals and both squads will be entertained at a dinner and dance by the Flanders Post, American Legion, after the game.

Gov. Ritchie presented the football for the game.

Hitting the Headpin

A NEW all-time high-game record was established in the Bureau of Standards League last night at the Columbia bowling alleys when the B. T. U. Team smashed the maples for a 617 total. The same team finished with a set of 1,663. Bill Rosier, of B. T. U., carried off both high game and high set honors with 153 and 375, respectively.

Billy Butler, King Pin feminine star, and Ed Blakeney, of the Northeast Temple five, last night won the special mixed doubles match with Lorraine Gulli, of King Pin, and Chester Bild, of Northeast Temple, and carried off honors by a margin of 62 pins. The Gulli-Bild team rolled up a 1,117 total, while the Butler-Blakeney duo shot a 1,152, the latter combination going into last night's block ahead by 87 pins.

Miss Gulli's 146 was high game, while Blakeney posted a 606 for high set.

Ferguson, of Holy Comforter, hit the maples for 136 high game in the Holy Name League last night at Georgetown alleys. McDonough's 356 won him high set honors. Holy Comforter copped high team game and set honors with 551 and 1,564.

Paul Harrison, bowling in championship fashion, scored a high game of 161 and a 398 set to lead the Convention Hall duckpin artists to a three-game victory over Hyattsville last night on the latter's alleys, in the Men's District League. Henry Hiser, of the losers, was high for his team with 126 and 347.

The leading King Pin Team of the Ladies District League, playing with a dummy and substitute, turned back Convention Hall in three games last night, with Billy Butler showing the way with a high game of 145, and Lorraine Gulli with a high set of 360.

Recreation beat Georgetown in two games at Lucky Strike, as Bess Ackman, of the latter team, shot games of 124, 110 and 138 for a high set of 372. Evelyn Ellis had a high game of 148 and shot a set of 331.

Margaret Miltnor helped hoist Billy Woods to a two-game triumph over Columbia with a high game of 130 and set of 347.

The champion Rendezvous girls made a clean sweep of their games with Petworth at the latter's alleys. Peggy McCarty, captain of the Rendezvous Team, finished with a snappy set of 338.

Ollie Clark, of Identity, paced his team with 133 and 356 in the A. G. O. Men's League. Identity won high game and high set honors with 547 and 1,555.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, DECEMBER 21.

Now that I've chased Drombo home, perhaps we can talk horses more freely. Gilbert didn't try to force the early pace today. Broke well back, moved up when he wanted to and won by a city block. The price wasn't anything out of the ordinary for a Gilbert mount. Just $4.60, but it was a cash proposition and certainly saved the day for your old pal Bennings. I had my usual two-a-day. Gold Step was the other to do me justice. Try It tried to put me across in the fourth, but Parke could only take second money. However, she paid $7.40 to place. Another wake-up to my credit. Tomorrow I've named some that will have to walk in their shoes. With my old friend Mike back on the job, I believe they will. And so to bed.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—GOLD RIDGE loves mud and wins a share of races over thick tracks. Trying to outguess a group of fast thinkers in spotting this one to turn on a best effort. However, stranger things have happened and are happening here. BOUNDING DEEP and DON CAESAR for the rest.

SECOND RACE—MARION ORMONT has had a busy campaign this year and has only three victories to show for it. However, this filly is not shipped around the country for a look at the scenery and comes from a stable that is not in the habit of caring for worthless horses. Have noticed a nice work on the gal and will give her a chance to wake up the dead. DR. PARRISH and ABE FURST to battle it out for the rest.

THIRD RACE—LAWFUL GAMBLE is at home in the going and can be depended upon to show some keen speed in this group. Looks like GREEN WAVE and PORGIE are the most dangerous of the others.

FOURTH RACE—Just to be different, I'm going to stick to CATINO in this despite that rather dull effort the last time. This brand of juveniles beat each other. OTTIE M and SPORTING PEARL for the place contest.

FIFTH RACE—NELL KUHMAN is fast becoming one of the few consistent animals in action here, and I can't hesitate to put her on top. FRENCH LASS has some class, and will be out there for no conditioner, I understand. MAKING BUBBLES is a good one.

SIXTH RACE—SWEEP RUSH is dropping down a couple of pegs and should take this field of youngsters into camp. SPOT POT beat some of this variety around Chicago last summer. PULIS to show.

SEVENTH RACE—DANDY DAN gets my call in the final. WATCH GIRL and BALDERDASH for the rest. DUELIST, a bear in the mud, may take it all if there are too many mistakes made by the others. DONATE in the substitute race.

Col. Hammond Resigns Position With Garden

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Due to what was formally described as "disagreement with certain policies of the president," Col. John S. Hammond, one of the last survivors of the Tex Rickard regime, resigned today as vice president of Madison Square Garden and president of the New York Rangers hockey team.

Confirming the resignation, William F. Carey, president of the Garden, announced in Springfield, Mass., that Lester Patrick, manager of the Rangers since their organization by Hammond in 1926, would expand his activities to take in the duties of president of the Rangers and vice president of the Garden corporation.

Simultaneously today it was announced at the Garden that ticket prices for hockey games, believed to be one of the major points over which Carey and Hammond were at variance, had again been lowered drastically, a 33 1-3 per cent slash dropping the scale to $2 for the top priced seats, and 40 cents for the cheapest balcony seat.

G. W. Cub Swimmers Beaten in Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Friends School conquered the George Washington University Freshmen in the local team's pool tonight, 39 to 27. The victors won only three of the seven races, but placed sufficient contestants in second and third places to win the decision.

Friends won the 100-yard breast-stroke, the 50-yard free style, and the 100-yard free style. George Washington captured the relay, 220-yard free style, 100-yard backstroke and medley relay.

In the nast-named event an unusual occurrence robbed George Washington of a fine chance to score another victory. Ghormley, considered the best swimmer of the field by far, collided head-on with a teammate, Bacchus, after making a turn.

RELAY, TWO LENGTHS—Won by George Washington (Flocks, McGinnis, Herbert, Ghormley); second, Friends (C. McCoy, C. Johnson, Vincenti, Kelly). Time, 1:14.2.

100-YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Blucher (Friends); second, Moses (Friends); third, Azzey (George Washington). Time, 1:16.2.

220-YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Ghormley (George Washington); second, Ellis (Friends); third, Kelly (Friends). Time, 2:46.3.

100-YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Frey (Friends); second, Scheer (Friends); third, Ghormley (George Washington). Time, 1:04.1.

Washington to Offer Phelan New Contract

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Earl Campbell, graduate manager of the University of Washington, announced today a new three-year football coaching contract for Jimmy Phelan has been approved by the board of control and would be offered to the Washington mentor before he leaves for the East this afternoon.

"Every effort will be made to get Phelan to sign the contract before he departs," said Campbell.

ALEXANDRIA BEATEN BY WESTERN

Brennan, Duvall Top Host Courtmen in 31-25 Victory.

AFTER being in the throes of a slump for three consecutive games, Western High School's basket ball team snapped back into winning stride yesterday afternoon in its own gym, defeating Alexandria High, 31 to 25, in a contest that saw the home forces dominate in every quarter.

Western's two sharpshooters were Brennan, center, who hit the nets for four field goals and three foul shots, and Duvall, forward, who had four field throws and one foul toss to his credit. Bieri played a roving game at guard.

Chilcott's eagle eye netted him 12 points. The Alexandria guard rolled up five field goals and his fine all-around playing threw a scare into the Western ranks in the final ten minutes.

Western shot into the lead and, after one-fourth of the game had ticked by, was out in front, 15 to 5. At intermission Western led, 22 to 9. Alexandria got busy and pulled up to 25 to 17, going into the final quarter, and the home cagers were forced to battle for dear life to stave off defeat.

perhaps even more trustworthy in the line.

Returning to service are Capt. Lee Carlin, a half back, who scintillated two years ago; Nig McCarver, who should be bigger and better next year; Johnny Baker, Chris Doose and the Parrish brothers. The loss of Wayne Chambers, Fred Mulvey and Bob Galloway, responsible ends, will be hardest to replace as the 1932 freshman team showed no particular spark of genius on the wings. The loss of such linemen as Slaird and Blackstone, tackle and guard, is all but offset by the retention of Stewart and Pearce and the up and coming freshmen.

Stocks Slow Up Declines To Average of One-Tenth

Some Industrials Advance as Sales Slacken to 737,980 Shares.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The stock market put the brakes on its recent downward slip, but contented itself mainly with holding prices as they were. There was little evidence of a rally.

Some of the industrial favorites, including U. S. Steel preferred, which had been singled out for selling early this week, responded to the lash of short covering, running up a point or so, but the main body of industrial stocks were steady or only fractionally higher.

The tobacco and railroad stocks looked rather feeble, most of them declining under scattered but fairly steady liquidation. The coppers also skidded for a time, when board room gossip turned to the question of large surplus stocks of the red metal and prospects for further price cuts, but in the late trading they shook off some of their earlier weakness and were about steady at the close. Foreign copper prices were again firm. Trading was again quiet transfers totaling 737,980 shares.

American Tobacco "B" lost nearly 2 points. Anaconda, Kennecott and American Smelting were fractionally lower. Santa Fe and Union Pacific whittled down their earlier losses to fractions. New York Central lost more than a point. American Can, Allied Chemical, Case, Consolidated Gas, Standard Oil of New Jersey and United States Steel common closed slightly higher. Coca-Cola gained 1½. Owens-Illinois Glass, after sliding down more than a point at one time, closed slightly higher on a spurt in the late trading, after the success of the wet group in a test vote on the beer bill in the House in Washington.

The midweek trade reviews were mildly encouraging, although little direct effect was shown in the market, which continued to be dominated largely by professionals. The gain in electric power production for last week, which carried the margin of difference compared with last year to 6.7 per cent against a spread of 9.1 the week before, helped the utilities in a degree. However, much of this gain, which exceeded similar increases in the corresponding weeks of 1931, 1930 and even 1929, was attributed to the weather. There were many stormy dark days last week.

Stocks.

General declines slowed down to one-tenth of a point. Some industrial favorites gained. The turnover dropped to 737,980 shares.

Bonds.

Losses were continued under the leadership of semispeculative issues. The sag averaged two-tenths of a point. Trading was heavier, the sales totaling $11,781,000.

Curb.

Quieter trading marked curb transactions and the list declined fractionally. Selling for tax purposes was blamed. The turnover reached 160,000 shares.

Wheat.

Liquidating sales sent prices down in early trading, but buying and questioning the accuracy of the Government's crop report resulted in a rally. Oats gained; corn was down. December wheat sold at 44⅝ to 44½ cent.

Cotton.

Dealing was quiet, with prices sagging 5 to 6 points. March closed at 6.00; offerings in Liverpool were absorbed by trade calling.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Amid quiet conditions on the stock exchange today, German bonds remained firm. Renewed support was given to gilt-edged securities and industrials benefited by reinvestment of British funds. Other sections moved listlessly and the closing was quiet.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was still cautious owing to the domestic financial questions. Prices were slightly lower, but the closing was steady.

Berlin—Prices moved irregularly at the opening of the bourse and weakened at the close.

BONDS SINK LOWER IN HEAVIER TRADING

Semispeculative Issues in Losses; Turnover Is $11,781,000.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The bond market again stepped down to a lower level today despite resistance displayed by the highest grade investment groups.

Continued pressure on some of the semispeculative liens was the weak link in the price chain. The rails were the principal sufferers, although a few of the utilities exhibited a declining trend. United States Governments were generally firm and the foreign list mixed.

Volume increased on the downgrade, sales totaling $11,781,000 against $10,720,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds lost two-tenths of a point.

Easy money conditions and hope for a drastic reduction of governmental expenditures were credited by some dealers for the steadiness of the Federals. An improvement in Electric Power output was a moderately constructive influence, but the carriers were depressed not only by the recent Central of Georgia receivership but by reports that other reorganizations might be expected next year.

Government loans were up most of the day, six creeping forward to new highs for the year. Several of them eased from their top marks, however, in late trading.

Losses of 1 to 3 or more points were recorded by some issues of Baltimore & Ohio, Central of Georgia, Central Pacific, Central of New Jersey, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Chicago & Western Indiana, Illinois Central, International Great Northern, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Southern and Texas & Pacific. St. Louis, Peoria & Northwestern 5s dropped 29 points. Loans of Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio advanced slightly.

Armour & Co. 4½s breasted the current with a gain of 2½ points on a heavy turnover. Bonds of Consolidated Gas, Duquesne Light, Brooklyn Union Gas, Goodrich, Goodyear, Interborough Rapid Transit, National Steel, Loew's, Republic Iron & Steel and United Drug were firm.

Electric Power Production Is Increased During Week

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Electric power production picked up sharply in the past week, the weekly tabulation of the National Electric Light Association showed today.

While a gain in the week ending December 17 is the usual seasonal experience, the upturn this year was substantially larger than in the years 1931, 1930 or even 1929. To a substantial degree, it presumably reflected dark, stormy weather over much of the country.

Total kilowatt hours for the past week were 1,563,384,000, a gain of 44,462,000 over the previous week. In the same week last year, the gain over the previous week was less than 4,000,000, and in 1929, about 19,000,000.

Last week's production was 6.7 per cent under last year, the best comparison in five weeks. The previous week had been off 9.1 per cent from 1931. The comparison made with last year by New England alone failed to improve, being off 5.6 per cent from 1931, against 5.4 per cent in the previous week.

For the Atlantic seaboard as a whole, however, the improvement was marked, for it was 3.7 per cent under 1931, against 7.4 per cent a week previously. The central industrial region was within 8.2 per cent of the previous year, against a divergence of 11.1 in the previous week. The Pacific Coast was 5.9 per cent under 1931, compared with 7.7 per cent in the preceding week.

U. S. Will Receive $70,000,000 in Gold

Shipments From Europe Before End of Year to Swell Balances.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Reports received by some of the larger Wall street banks from Europe indicate that about $70,000,000 of gold will arrive in this country before the year ends, it was said today.

Great Britain, France and India, bankers said, were the principal shippers. About $46,000,000 in gold is expected from England, partly representing the shifting of the metal in connection with Britain's December 15 war-debt payment and partly for rebuilding her balances in New York.

Approximately $8,000,000 in gold is expected to arrive tomorrow from France, with an additional $3,000,000 expected to leave France this week. Indian gold, reported on its way to New York from Bombay, has been estimated at $15,000,000. Scattering shipments are also expected from other countries. The result, bankers stated, would be to restore fully as much, and probably more gold to this country, than was taken away in the international run on American gold last spring.

Irving Trust Is Seeking Adjustment in Match Case Tangle.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The Irving Trust Co., as trustee in bankruptcy for International Match Corporation, today began suit in United States District Court against the Bankers Trust Co. and the National City Bank for $4,106,181.50 with interest.

The action supersedes one against the same banks and other defendants, which was dismissed yesterday with the consent of counsel for all parties.

The original suit was begun to obtain possession by the trustee of 350,000 shares of common stock of Diamond Match Co., the stobk having been deposited as collateral for a loan of $4,000,000 to International Match. The Diamond Match stock has been sold since the first suit was started and the bulk of the proceeds is being held pending court determination as to ownership.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Converters today covered nearby cotton goods requirements. Finished cottons continued to sell at irregular and low prices. Silk manufacturers were booking small filling in orders for retailers and some orders from cutters. Rayon was firm, wool goods quiet, and burlaps inactive.

CURB TURNS HEAVY WITH LIGHT LOSSES

Trading for Quiet Session Drops in Volume to 160,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Curb stocks developed a somewhat heavy undertone today, in quieter trading.

Losses were largely limited to small fractions, save in some of the comparatively inactive issues, where some rather wide declines suggested selling to establish losses for tax purposes. The total turnover of 160,000 shares was about 40,000 under yesterday's.

In utilities, Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric sagged about ½ point, but were off only ¼ at the finish. The Bond & Share and American Superpower preferred issues lost from ¾ to 1¾. Central Power & Light 7 per cent preferred appeared at 36, a loss of more than 30 points since it last traded. New England Public Service 6 per cent preferred appeared for the first time in many months, at 12, off 53½ points from the preceding transaction. Among the communications, Bell Telephone of Canada lost 2½.

In the industrials, Crane Co. made one of its infrequent appearances, at 5, off 4¾. Deere and Aluminum Co. sagged fractionally. The Ford issues were about steady. In the oils, Standard of Indiana was about steady, and Gulf rallied nearly a point. Darby Petroleum sold at 1½, a new low and off 2½. Roan Antelope was a firm spot in the coppers, rising ½ point. This South African low cost producer has determined to increase its output, despite the opposition of other producers. Bunker Hill and Sullivan, a comparatively inactive mining issue, appeared at 16½, off 4½.

SILK MARKET.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Raw silk futures closed steady; sales, 1,090 bales; December, 1.36 bid; March, 1.40; May, 1.39. Open market quotations (60-day basis): Shanghai Steam, Extra, B, 1.60; Canton Double Extra, 14-16, 1.12; Japanese Crack, Double Extra, 1.62.

GOLD MOVEMENT.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The country's monetary gold stock increased $1,532,200 through the arrival of that amount from India, the New York Federal Reserve Bank announced today. There were no exports and no net change in the stock of gold held under earmark for foreign account.

United States Gives Up Per Capita Steel Lead

Cleveland, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—For the first time in more than six years the United States has lost its rank as the world's leading nation in per capita consumption of steel, the magazine Steel reported today.

Domestic consumption of steel averaged 242 pounds per capita this year, the magazine said, while Great Britain went into first place with an average of 249. France was third with 175 pounds per capita and Germany fourth with 149 pounds.

The United States retained its leadership in total volume, however, with 13,500,000 tons of an estimated world consumption of 49,160,000 gross tons this year.

WHEAT PRICES GAIN AFTER EARLY DROP

Federal Estimate of Crop Is Questioned; Buying Aids Upturn.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Extensive liquidating sales by Eastern holders of wheat futures tumbled the Chicago market temporarily today to below the season's bottom level, but fractional rallies ensued. Accuracy of Washington official crop estimates were widely questioned.

Late rallies in wheat prices were ascribed to purchase orders on the part of United States Government-sponsored agencies and to buying here against simultaneous sales at Winnipeg. Liverpool wheat quotations declined to a new all-time record low for futures in that market and to the lowest known for cash wheat or futures in England since 1588.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝ higher; corn, a shade to ⅝ down; oats, ⅛ off to ⅛ up, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents lower.

Prices Incline Downward.

Only at the opening and at the close did the Chicago wheat market display an upward trend. Most of the time prices worked irregularly down grade. The main reason apparent was that official domestic winter wheat acreage figures showing but a trifling reduction of 1.3 per cent were asserted by unofficial trade experts to be totally at variance with all private advices.

Bears in wheat contended further that Government figures suggesting a domestic winter wheat crop of but 400,000,000 bushels were premature, and that better methods of calculation pointed to 525,000,000 bushels.

Government experts were alleged to be using a very low par, which in the past had been misleading. On the whole, the Government crop report, which in some respects was regarded as sensationally bullish, fell flat as a market influence, notwithstanding that it suggested the smallest domestic winter wheat yield since 1904.

Corn and oats averaged lower with wheat. Increased rural selling of corn was reported.

Provisions receded owing to downturns of hog values.

WHEAT FOR MONEY BASE IS ADVOCATED

British Bank Director Says Move Would Be Aid to Recovery.

London, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The use of wheat as a basis for money would double the price of the grain and provide a swift avenue for return of prosperity, believes J. F. Darling, a director of the Midland Bank, one of England's important financial institutions.

Darling, who would link wheat to gold and silver, believes "that in wheat as a basis for currency we possess an even more powerful instrument for raising prices and stimulating world trade."

"Wheat," he declared when announcing the scheme, "has in a marked degree one of the qualities of a currency basis in that it is in universal demand and has a world-wide market."

There would be a central superbank as custodian for such wheat and gold and silver as formed the basis for the currency. His plan—as advanced—considers only the British Empire and would use 300,000,000 bushels of wheat.

"Debts could then be settled by a debit and credit in the ledger of the custodian. Nor would it matter in how many elevators or warehouses the wheat was stored, or in what empire countries they were situated, so long as they belonged to the same organization and wtre subject to efficient care and inspection. The location of the wheat would then become a matter of convenience for the ultimate marketing of it."

Tracing the idea back to the days of Abraham, and the centuries before when wheat was widely used as money and stored in temples, he would form a super-central-bank embracing the empire

This institution "would hold the gold and the wheat as assets, and on the other side of its balance sheet there would appear corresponding balances to credit of the currency-issuing authority of each country, against which local currency would be issued.

"Therefore, a debit to the account of one country and a credit to that of another would be tantamount to a transfer of so much gold and so much wheat, without necessarily the gold or the wheat even leaving the vault or elevator in which it was stored."

National Credit to Pay More of Gold Note Issue

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The National Credit Corporation today announced that on December 30 it would redeem an additional 5 per cent of its outstanding gold notes, leaving unpaid only $6,750,000 of its original capital subscriptions of $135,000,000.

The corporation was formed in October, 1931, as a privately organized banking venture to give help to banks, pending creation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Its capital was furnished by banks throughout the country, principally by New York and Boston institutions. When the Reconstruction Corporation started operations, the National Credit Corporation withdrew from the field. Today's announcement marked the ninth partial redemption of its outstanding notes, which it started to retire beginning last March.

CHRISTMAS SEASON AT THE PACKAGE WINDOW.

(As It Never Happens.)

POSTAL CLERK—Good morning, may I be of some service?

Lady—I wish to see what it will cost to send this package.

Postal Clerk—I'll be very happy to weigh it for you. It is a Christmas package bringing joy to some little heart, I assume?

Lady—Yes. It's for a little niece of mine.

Postal Clerk—What satisfactions the little dears bring to us in the Yuletide season, don't they? I have a little niece of my own, you know. About 4 years old.

Lady—How interesting! Just the age of mine.

Postal Clerk (examining package)—This isn't tied very tightly, lady.

Lady—Oh, I'm so sorry. I'll tie it . . .

Postal Clerk—Not at all. I've got some stronger twine right here and it will be a pleasure to tie it for you so it will hold. I never like to see packages go out insecurely tied.

* * * *

Lady—I must have been very careless.

Postal Clerk—Not at all. You probably were a little hasty, but never mind. It's no trouble for me at all. I've been at the package window for years and I just love to tie packages for people.

Lady—I'm awfully grateful.

Postal Clerk—The address isn't very clear, is it?

Lady—Isn't it?

Postal Clerk—We can take a chance, if you wish, but I think you've written it too small.

Lady—Let me have it and I'll address it again, of course.

Postal Clerk—I'll be very glad to do it for you, if you will allow me.

Lady—But you're a busy man.

Postal Clerk—Nonsense! We have more to do around Christmas time than other times, perhaps, but that's what we're paid for. I'll feel better about it if I do it for you. You won't mind, will you?

Lady—Not if you insist.

Postal Clerk—I'll feel so much better if I know it's properly done.

(He addresses the package correctly and weighs it.)

Lady—It's so nice of you. Now how many stamps will I need?

Postal Clerk—Oh, never mind about stamps.

Lady—Never mind about stamps?

Postal Clerk—No, I'll take care of that for you. We have so many of them here.

Lady—But surely I wish to pay what they cost.

Postal Clerk—Not at all. We have more stamps in this postoffice than we know what to do with.

Lady (quite flabbergasted)—I don't know what to say.

Postal Clerk—That's all right, lady, and a very Merry Christmas to you.

MORE COLD IS SEEN; HERO OF WORLD WAR IS FROZEN TO DEATH

Rain Promised by Nightfall; Man Hurt in Collision; Boy Sledder Victim.

Official Bow of Winter Follows Shortest Day

Winter made its official bow at exactly 8:15 o'clock last night, when the sun reached its southernmost declination and passed a moment before beginning the six-month march toward the north.

The arrival of the boreal king was not heralded by driving snow, but his icy breath was apparent in a damp cold of a gray day which held threat of rain for today.

Yesterday, the winter solstice, was the shortest day of the year. The sun rose at 7:23 a. m. and set at 4:49 p. m., giving 9 hours and 26 minutes of daylight.

Winter's advent into Washington brought a prediction of slightly colder weather for the next few days, and, as the city went about continuing to dig itself out from the first preview of subzero temperatures, a toll of one dead and several injured was recorded.

Yesterday's spell of bright sunshine and warm winds was short-lived. Not until the end of the week will the sun again make an appearance, the Weather Bureau declares. Today will be cloudy, with rain promised by nightfall. The temperature will continue to fall, and a prediction of slightly colder and party cloudy was given for tomorrow.

At 5 a. m. yesterday the temperature dropped to 18 degrees, the lowest mark for the day. A minimum of 28 degrees was predicted before daybreak today.

Veteran Frozen to Death.

A hero of the World War succumbed to the freezing cold early yesterday. He was Lieut. Joseph L. Carll, 45, found frozen to death in front of his home at 307 I street southeast.

Injuries to a leg in the World War prevented him from rising after a fall in the snow, and he lay helpless, perishing from the cold.

Among those suffering injuries because of slippery roads and sidewalks was Vernon R. Berryman, 21, of 610 Irving street northwest. He suffered several fractured ribs and a fractured shoulder when his automobile was in collision with another car near Fairfax, Va.

Automobiles in Collision.

Berryman and Mrs. Christine Reading, 24, also of the Irving street address, who was a passenger in his machine, were taken to Emergency Hospital. Mrs. Reading suffered fractures to several ribs, but was allowed to return home.

Their car was in collision with the machine of Miss Betty Hodges, of Middleburg, Va. Berryman's car overturned after locking wheels with the other machine. Miss Hodges and Miss Ruth Smithurst, of 1820 California street northwest, who was riding with her, were treated by a private physician at Fairfax.

When a footpad attempted to snatch the pocketbook of Miss Mary Schmidt, 28, of 718 Farragut street northwest, she lost her footing and fell to the pavement. She was treated at Emergency Hospital for a sprained left thumb and injuries to the shoulder. She told police she was walking on K street, near Fifteenth street northwest.

Boy Hurt Sledding.

Judson Holmes, 13, of 2933 Cathedral avenue northwest, suffered a sprained back while sledding on a hill near the Shoreham Hotel. His sled struck a tree, throwing him to the ground. He was treated at Emergency Hospital and admitted.

The cut in salaries of unemployed men hired to aid in cleaning snow from streets throughout the city was upheld yesterday by Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor. He said that under the economy act, the 11 per cent cut was necessary, no matter how long the temporary employe had been working.

Among yesterday's outgrowths of the storm was a series of tie-ups in traffic due to frozen street car switches and icy streets. The draw span of Highway Bridge froze open and held up travel for several minutes until workmen thawed out the frozen hinges.

Lieut. Carll in Service Overseas for 18 Months

Lieut. Joseph L. Carll, 45, World War hero, who was found frozen to death in front of his home at 307 I street southeast yesterday, was a veteran of eighteen months' service overseas, serving in the Tank Corps and the Air Service. He was the recipient of a decoration from the French government for his Tank Corps service.

He was a veteran of eighteen months' service overseas, serving in the Tank Corps and the Air Service. He was the recipient of a decoration from the French Government for his Tank Corps service.

His leg injury had made it difficult for him to walk and he had been receiving treatment at Walter Reed Hospital for several weeks.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow with mass at 9 o'clock at St. Martin's Church. Burial will be at Arlington Cemetery with full military honors.

He is survived by his father and mother, Louis A. and Mrs. Annie A. Carll; a brother, Charles A. Carll; a sister, Mrs. George Gericke, and his wife and two children, Mrs. Mary B. Carll and Mary and Joseph L. Carll, jr.

Christmas Party Held At Crosby Noyes School

A Christmas party, featured by donation of toys to poor children and vocal and instrumental music, was held last night by the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association at the Crosby Noyes School.

Officials of The Evening Star, including Frank B. Noyes, the president, and Clifford Berryman, cartoonist, were guests. Mr. Noyes, grandson of the man after whom the school is named, described the workings of a modern newspaper. Mr. Berryman drew a number of cartoons which he presented to the school.

Will Participate in Mission Distribution of Food to Needy.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover is scheduled to visit the Central Union Mission tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock to take part in some of its Christmas activities.

Unable to attend the children's party which the Central Union Mission is giving Saturday morning, an engagement she has not missed during the last three years, Mrs. Hoover consented to help distribute the 350 baskets of food for needy families who will come to the mission tomorrow to collect them. It was Mrs. Calvin Coolidge who inaugurated the custom of the President's wife in attending the Christmas parties of the mission, and Mrs. Hoover has had much enjoyment in keeping up this custom. Consequently, when she found that plans for their Florida trip interfered this season, she notified Mrs. John S. Bennett that she would be on hand tomorrow instead, unless her plans are changed unexpectedly.

Secretary of War Hurley and Mrs. Hurley will greet the children of the mission at the Christmas tree party Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Fox Theater. They will help Santa Claus hand out the first group of bags and join in the other festivities of the day.

Santa has been good to the large number of children on the mission's list this season. He has filled every bag bearing the name of a boy and girl, despite the depression, and each bag contains the things every child likes to get on Christmas.

For the jobless men and boys, the mission will serve dinner on Christmas Day. The cook is preparing to take care of 750 at dinner.

$25,000 Bond Is Set For Suspect in Holdup

Charles Watkins, 32, yesterday was held for the grand jury under bond of $25,000 when he was arraigned in Police Court on a charge of attempting to hold up Dr. Erwin Fraase, druggist, of Fourth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

The high bond was set when police informed Judge Ralph Given that additional charges might be placed against Watkins. The holdup with which he is charged was thwarted when Dr. Fraase felled Watkins with a blow to the head and then held him for police.

Filipino Acquitted in Slaying.

A jury in the Court of Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue yesterday acquitted Pedro La Cuesta, a Filipino, of the slaying of William Anderson, colored, last August. Attorneys James K. Hughes and Octave Blogness defended La Cuesta.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

A great many minor accidents and driving inconvenience is caused by lack of knowledge with regard to the right of way in making left-hand turns.

A driver making a left turn should, if possible, maneuver his car to the extreme left of traffic moving in his direction and then make a suitable hand warning of his intention.

Any car coming in the opposite direction to the one turning has the right to continue ahead if it reaches the intersection before the motorist turning.

However, if the driver who is about to make a left turn reaches the intersection before oncoming cars, he has the right of way and should be allowed to complete his turn.

Accident figures are as follows:

	1931.	1932.
Deaths	74	116
Injuries	3,403	3,653
Accidents	7,757	7,427

Randle Citizens Fight Dirt Moving

Contractors' Practice of Invading Private Plats Draws Censure.

Voicing a protest against contractors removing dirt from private grounds to fill in school property, members of the Randle Highlands Citizens Association, meeting at the Orr School, last night, stated that the dirt should be removed from streets that have not been cut through.

This it was suggested would accomplish two purposes at one time and reduce the drain on public funds. The group voted to advocate additional street entrances to the Fort Dupont parkway, now under construction.

A resolution was adopted to send a letter to the Senate committee investigating the traction merger, offering their support of the project.

The organization adopted a revision of their constitution. William R. Redmond and Mrs. Gladys I. Sanders were voted in as members. Adelbert W. Lee, president of the group, presided.

Woman's Asphyxiation Is Adjudged Suicide

Coroner Joseph D. Rogers yesterday issued a certificate of suicide in the asphyxiation of Miss Sarah E. McElroy, 60, who was found dead Wednesday afternoon in her home at 920 M street northwest.

She left a note which indicated that financial difficulties prompted her act.

RENT SLASH PARLEY PLEDGED BY BOARD

Whiteford Offers Conference on Lines Suggested by Senator Copeland.

A definite move within realty circles to bring down rentals, through an early conference of owners and brokers, under Washington Real Estate Board auspices, was pledged at a hearing yesterday of the Senate District rent investigating subcommittee.

The proposal was made by Roger J. Whiteford, attorney for the board, along lines suggested by Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York. Members of the board attending the session acceded, and Thursday night of next week was set as a tentative date for the conference.

Meanwhile, the Senate subcommittee planned to resume its hearings at 10:30 this morning.

Senator Copeland, Chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, and Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, indicated they will attend the realty conference.

Filling Station Robbers Escape With $40 Cash

Holding up the attendant and a friend visiting with him, two robbers late last night rifled the cash register of a filling station at Eleventh street and Park road northwest and escaped with $40 in cash.

The two men, one with a gun, held James T. McNerhany, 326 Fourth street southeast, the attendant, and J. E. Delaney, 3531 New Hampshire avenue, at bay until they gathered up the money. Then they enforced the two men to lie on the floor in the wash room while they made their escape.

3 SMALL CHILDREN, OVERCOME BY GAS, TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Found Unconscious in Bed; Parents Made Drowsy; All Will Recover.

Three bewildered little youngsters lie in Children's Hospital, their minds a blank to events that sent them speeding through downtown streets in a bright red ambulance last night.

Harold Baker, 6, and his two sisters, Aileen, 4, and Dorothy, 15 months old, went to bed shortly after supper last night, complaining of being sleepy. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Barker, couldn't understand what brought on the drowsy spell, which struck all three children at the same time.

Complains of Sleepiness.

As the family sat about the supper table in the kitchen of their home at 105 I street northwest, little Aileen rose and told her mother she was sleepy. She was put to bed, and soon her brother and sister also complained of sleepiness. They also were put to bed.

Mrs. Barker held the youngest of her children, tiny Carl, 3 months old. The air became stuffy. She opened a window. Still the air didn't clear. Little Carl dropped into a deep sleep.

Mr. and Mrs. Barker, overtaken by dizziness, hurried to the beds of the other three children, and found them unconscious.

Rescue Squad Called.

Not until then did Mr. Barker detect the odor of coal gas. He threw up all windows, closed the doors of a coal stove in the next room and summoned the fire rescue squad.

Harold, Aileen and Dorothy revived to find their bedroom crowded with firemen. Taken to the awaiting ambulance, they were soon speeding toward the hospital.

Little Carl, after breathing fresh air, soon awoke and appeared none the worse for his experience. Mr. and Mrs. Barker were only slightly affected. Physicians said Harold, Aileen and Dorothy would pull through with no serious consequences.

She Is Gone

Josephine, News Vender Known to Thousands, Is Found Dead.

Josephine, elderly news vender, whose last name no one seems to know, but who was known to thousands, is dead.

Her body was found yesterday in her room at 910 Twelfth street northwest by a fellow roomer. She apparently had been dead several hours when found.

Two gas jets in her room are said to have been found open, but it is not known whether her death was accidental, or whether she chose the Christmas season to end her troubles. She is known to have been suffering greatly from rheumatism during the recent cold weather.

Garbed in the same black hat and coat year in and year out, Josephine seldom was missing from her corner. During recent weeks she had sold papers at Fourteenth and I streets northwest, but formerly she had her stand at Fourteenth and G streets northwest.

The cause of her death is being investigated, and also her real name.

HOUSE QUIZ ON D. C. RELIEF FUND CLOSES

Welfare Leaders Plead for Sums From $1,500,000 to $1,900,000.

The House appropriations deficiencies subcommittee yesterday brought to a close hearings on the District's request for at least $1,250,000 to finance relief activities in the District for another year, with an abundance of testimony that the fund will prove inadequate.

The subcommittee will meet in a day or two to mark up their version of the relief estimate for presentation to Congress. It will provide only for relief needs through June 30, leaving funds for the remainder of the calendar year up to the District appropriations subcommittee.

Walter H. Ufford, of the Monday Evening Club, told Representative Joseph W. Byrns' deficiencies subcommittee yesterday that at least $1,500,000 should be allowed for the year, while Miss Louise McGuire, of the American Association of Social Workers, said $1,900,000 is needed.

Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer, Director of Public Welfare George S. Wilson and John F. Colpoys, representing District trades unionists, said the District can not do with less than $1,250,000.

Capitol Architect to Testify.

David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, will testify before a House appropriations subcommittee tomorrow on President Hoover's recommendation for a $240,000 appropriation to purchase land west of the Capitol, already condemned, for extension of the Capitol grounds.

ARTS CLUB CONCERT ENJOYED BY MUSIC LOVERS OF CAPITAL

Choral Group Directed by Otto Simon Pleases With Christmas Program.

The Choral Group of the Arts Club of Washington, Otto Torney Simon, director, gave its Christmas concert last night in the auditorium of the club, which was filled to overflowing with music lovers.

The Christmas music was preceded by a short prgoram of classic choruses, beginning with the chorale, "Awake," from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," followed by the finale from the same work; then "Three Pictures," from Rubinstein's "Tower of Babel," and the "Agnus Dei," from Verdi's requiem, all beautifully done, with evenly balanced tone, excellent phrasing and beautifu shading. They are much to be commended for their fine attacks and finishes.

Folk Song Scores.

The Christmas music included the lovely "Benedictus" from Liszt's "Missa Choralis;" Mendelssohn's "There Shall a Star;" Praetorius' "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," written in 1609; the German folk song, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht," arranged by Dr. Damrosch, and two chorluses from Handel's "Messiah," "Behold the Lamb of God" and "For Unto Us a Child Is Born," all sung with professional style and finish, fine enunciation and tender sentiment.

Especially effective was the folk song, without which no Christmas program seems complete. This was sung with a darkened room and a gayly lighted Christmas tree, which gave a beautiful devotional atmosphere enhanced by the lovely tone and shading of the chorus. It was like a veritable benediction.

Those Who Took Part.

The accompanist, who had a real burden and performed it well, was Margorie G. Lowe.

The singers were Betty M. Stuart Apte, Edith G. Bittinger, Eva Bright, Rose Bright, Margaret Davis, Elizabeth Dyer, Charlotte A. Enzel, Gertrude Finney, Rebecca H. Fraley, Lois Gray, Matilda Heuser, Levinia Holland, Gretchen Hood, Gladys A. Hoppman, Hazel Grem Hughes, Edna Jones, Elizabeth Maxwell, Edna Morgan, Jean Munn, Minnie Notz, Cornelia Notz, Alma S. Gas Light Merger Plan Is Opposed by Howell

Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, said yesterday he will fight the Senate District committee approval of the proposed merger of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co. unless the companies agree to fix rates without basing their charges on "going value."

He said no "good will" charge should be passed on to the public.
